A NEW REGIME

Old Guard at City Hall Ousted Last Fall—New Men at the Helm of the Municipal Council — Another City Marshal—Parking

Our summer residents who pay more than one-third of the taxes of the city are naturally interested in the personnel of the Municipal Council.

Almost a complete overturn was made in the composition of that body at last December's election. The old crowd which had been sitting pretty for a more or less extended term of years failed of a comeback, a new mayor and three councilmen displacing them. But one of the latter was returned.

The new government includes as Mayor, John E. Parker, a Spanish War and World War veteran; two attorneys, Judge Lincoln S. Simonds and R. Chandler Davis, and to give them their due they have proved, especially the first, a tower of strength for many things as they should be, with R. Russell Bohan and Alderman Hudson, the latter the holdover.

The immediate result was the induction of a new City Marshal, Daniel M. Casey, who was called back to resume the helm at the brick building, if we may mix up our nauticalisms. He had filled the position for some years previously, resigning to enter the Federal service. A complete change of policy followed. Where the law against all forms of liquor traffic had been openly flouted a campaign of extinction against bootlegging was begun and steadily followed up. The result was that the horde of young fellows decked out in purple and fine linen who plied their trade unabashed, on the Main street, have been dispersed. Under a new dispensation in the High Court these men have been given such stiff sentences that they have preferred to accept the judgment of the District Court. Fines accruing approximately $5,000 have been paid into the city treasury, sufficient to pay the salary of the marshal twice over. So from that angle at least law enforcement pays.

And this brings up the old inquiry. Can prohibition be enforced? Can any of the commandments 100 per cent.? It all depends upon the man at the head and the men behind that man in the Council chamber. Prohibition is enforced 75 per cent. in this city.

Editorial and Special Articles

In addition to this, loose methods of doing business have been disclosed in the Highway Department and the results uncovered do not qualify those responsible for a degree of E. E. D. (Doctor of Efficiency). The net result is that some $25,000 or more will be saved this year (and every year as long as the present policy is maintained) with a corresponding increase in morale and effectiveness.

We forgot to mention that as a result of the turnover that the office of Superintendent of Highways has been consolidated with that of City Engineer Griffin, a move that The Shore suggested some years ago. It was the logical thing to do and as a result about fifty per cent. politics has been eliminated from the department.

The writer has been in the local newspaper field for forty-four years and his observation extends well into the fifties. It is his considered opinion that never has the city been so clean and free from all sorts of crime as at present. No major offences against life or person have occurred here for years. A woman or child unaccompanied may go up and down shopping on the Main street unmolested. Never has there been a case of purse snatching or robbery in the daylight—with the exception of one high-jacking case on a back street last summer the dramatis personæ being of a kidney.

Automobile infractions, bootlegging, and non-support cases monopolize the attention of the District Court almost solely. The old rounders who furnished the most of the arrests for imbibing are fast passing off the stage and few take their places in the dock. It seems inconceivable that the citizenry will deliberately vote back the old conditions.

Traffic Regulations

The Municipal Council after due study formulated and passed an automobile street restriction schedule designed to eliminate and alleviate traffic congestion which has caused so much adverse criticism. We publish them on

HISTORIC FORT CONANT

At Stage Fort Park to be Restored by the D. A. R.—Oldest Fortification in Massachusetts Bay Colony — Occupied in All Wars

The one constructive thing that Gloucester will undertake to commemorate the 1930 State Tercentenary is the restoration of Stage Fort Park, Stage Fort—Fort Conant, the soldiers stationed there in the Civil War named it in honor of Roger, the first governor.

This is the oldest well-authenticated fortification in the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Here in 1625, as inscribed on the bronze plate set in Tablet rock, stout-hearted Captain Hewes successfully defied Captain Myles Standish and his Plymouth soldiery sent across the bay to dispossess him. Hewes threw up defences making the rock bastioned fort impregnable and held his ground.

Since that historic clash in the beginnings of the colony the place has been fortified in the French and Indian War, the War for Independence, in 1812, when two companies were stationed there, and in '61-'65, when a company of regulars and a Home Guard outfit were assigned to its defense and in the Spanish War of '98, when a battalion—Cervera's fleet being expected to strike the New England coast—was detailed to defend the harbor and city.

These latter filled the picturesque embrasures. In line with similar work of preserving historic landmarks the D. A. R. all over the country are preserving these historic spots. The conservation committee of Lucy Knox Chapter, D. A. R., has undertaken the work of restoring and preserving this historic ground. To this end the contributions of the patriotic-spirited have been solicited and have come in. Mayor and Colonel John E. Parker is heartily in sympathy with the idea and the Park Commission is also co-operating. The work, which is entirely labor, will be commenced at once and it is intended to have it completed in time for the dedication on the municipal celebration of Gloucester Day at the Park which the mayor and

NORTH SHORE THEATRE

Here is one of the most fascinating and one of the most unusual stories of true adventure ever to come to the screen. "With Byrd at the South Pole" has been imaginatively and effectively produced as one logical and convincing story, throbbing with human interest and all those small, intimate details that make life so fascinating. It must also be remembered that "With Byrd at the South Pole" is the first picture of polar exploration ever recorded on motion picture film, bringing to the people of the world in picture story form, the adventure of adventures which just a few years ago was undreamed of. A Paramount production.

During the last two reels, which reveal Byrd in his now historic flight over the South Pole, the voice of Floyd Gibbons, radio favorite, will be heard, giving a detailed description of the flight in that inimitable, racy, highly dramatic style of his which is so well known to all radio fans.

"With Byrd at the South Pole" will be presented at the North Shore Theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Don't miss the treat of a life-time. It's great!

YACHTING ON CAPE ANN

Historical Sketch of the Beginnings of the Sport—Early Designers, Sam Elwell and George Wheeler, who Pioneered with the "Squash Seed" Type—Black Cloud—Atalanta Race for Tappan Cup—Old Association Days

By JAMES R. PRINGLE

Since last season the Eastern Point Yacht Club has purchased, largely through the initiative of Mr. Arthur G. Leonard of Eastern Point and Chicago, what is known as the Wonson field abutting the Hawthorne Inn section at the entrance to Eastern Point Neck for the high road to a position as one of the leading yachting organizations along the coast, a record of yachting on Cape Ann, sketchy, necessarily, because of lack of space, may be in order. For, in a way, the Eastern Point Club is the legitimate successor of the oldest yacht by a white ash breeze. Among these were boats owned by James H. Shute, Samuel Elwell, George H. Procter, Bennett Griffin, Frank H. Gaffney and others. Impromptu races resulted.

Impetus was given the diversion by Samuel Elwell who was the first local a yachting home. It was originally planned to acquire the Beachcroft upland, but The Shore was brash enough to suggest that the Wonson field, so-called, close to the shore and facing Gloucester bay, was by far the better location. So choice was switched. The Rockmere cottage, so-called, will be utilized as a club house, extensive additions and conveniences having been installed, and in due course of time the club house of the future will in all probability be built.

Now that the Eastern Point Club is assured of its own habitation and is on club on the Cape. I have seen an apostolic succession worked out with not as good a foundation of fact.

The Beginnings of Yachting on Cape Ann—The Zip

The pioneers and campers (tenters) of Wolf Hill and the Annisquam sector furnished the nucleus for the first yacht club on the Cape in the early seventies. Of a sea-faring race, a smart sailboat for pleasure sailing was one of the necessary equipments for getting to and from their work in the town by way of the river, helped out in a calm yacht designer. He turned out a sloop which proved a smart sailer. The first was the Mischief which was sold to Lewis Merchant. Frank Dodd, now of Rockport, Daniel Tarr and some others also were among the owners of boats which held well with the best.

At length Sam Elwell turned out an eighteen footer, the Zip, which he sold to William ("Billie") McKenzie. Billie was then hardly out of his teens, had sailed one, the Hard Times, for John Q. Bennett, which proved a fast one. The Venus was another boat designed by Aaron Brown and afterward owned by William McKenzie.

The Zip proved a great sailer, taking care of everything around these parts. She was observed in the harbor one day by a Boston yachtsman who induced Mr. McKenzie to put a price on her and took her to Boston where she failed to live up to her Gloucester form. Her owner sent for Mr. McKenzie to sail her against the two fastest of the Boston Yacht Club. McKenzie accepted, stipulating that he should choose his own crew. As the race progressed it blew a breeze which obliged the others to reef, but the Zip carried all sail and won by nearly a mile. So it will be evident that there are two elements in successful yachting, the boat plus the man who sails her.

The Cape Ann Yacht Club

Well, about '76 the enthusiasts formed what they named the Cape Ann Yacht Club and the first club house was in the Chisholm block in Main street, afterwards moving to the Hicks building on the easterly side of what is now the George O. Stacey Esplanade, the course being right off Pavilion or Rope-walk Beach as a start and finish and outside being practically the same as the Eastern Point course of today.

George Wheeler Father of Modern Racing Yachts

Meanwhile a new yachting designer-luminary, George Wheeler of Wheeler's Point, appeared on the horizon and evolved a new type of craft. The Wheelers were boat builders and rule o' thumb men. George Wheeler reasoned out that the ultimate in speed was the boat which offered the least resistance to the water. He therefore introduced a revolutionary model which resembled nothing more than a huge squash seed, sloop-rigged. Her under section was practically the same shape as the top, oval and flattish. She had her greatest breadth well abaft the rigging amidships. Before the wind she sailed like a wraith. On the wind she was equally as efficient. She was equipped with a centerboard which held her well up to the eye of the breeze, and she could eat to windward better than most of the keel boats. The model was derided by the advocates of the keels, but except in a very stiff blow approaching a reefing breeze, was as staunch as a church, but in a half-gale was a grain tender. She was necessarily extremely shallow and hardly five inches of her freeboard appeared.

However, the Wheeler idea eventually won out. When in 1887, George Watson, the Scotch designer—whom the writer thinks was the best of all the designers who have ever striven for the recapture of the Queen's cup containing the pot o' gold which Sir Thomas has striven so vainly to dig up at the end of the American rainbow—designed the Thistle, she arrived here and was hauled out on the marine railways at Stapleton, L. I., the advocates of the keel boat got the shock of their lives. Abandoning a British tradition of centuries, Watson boldly cut away a big portion of the forefoot and all of the forward keel, giving what was practically the Wheeler design with a fixed centerboard. Edward Burgess, caught napping, presented the Volunteer with the old style full keel. However, luck was with us and we won. But the American designers learned their lesson. In 1903 they went further than Watson and produced the Reliance, which was nothing more nor less than a Wheeler design with a fixed centerboard and this idea, refined, dominates the model of the challengers and defenders of recent years. Just take a glance at the profile of the Wetamoe. Believe it or not, the model of the international racing yacht of today originated in this city, as the schooner was evolved in 1713.

Annisquam and Rockport Clubs

Other designers of that period were A. T. Gifford of East Gloucester, a Cape Codder, who refined the Cape Cod keel boat of the type of which the Trudette owned and sailed by Leander Haskins of Rockport was his best production. A number of amateur designers came into the ring in the immediately succeeding years. Among these was Thomas Irving who designed and built the Mignon, a thirty-footer, for Horatio Babson, which showed remarkably well and won from the crack Burgess thirty, the Saracen.

The Annisquam Yacht Club followed within a year or two of the Cape Ann Club, composed mainly of the same material as in the Gloucester organization, the leading spirits being Charles and Fred Cunningham, both still going strong today; the late Frank Brown, Frank Hastings of Cambridge, still in the game, and others. The Rockport Club was third in order with Robert Herne, Leander Haskins, Howard Paul, Charles C. Tresnon and others in the forefront, sailing mostly Gifford boats. The course for this club inside the Sandy Bay breakwater was an exceedingly fine one from all angles of view. This latter club held on for about ten years.

Old Association Days

Features of those days were the visits of the Massachusetts Yacht Racing Association which came down on a week's cruise. There was a Gloucester day and a grand open race in the harbor, an Annisquam or River Day with an illuminated boat carnival on the river at night. The late Commodore Luther Bent was a substantial friend of the club in its beginnings and his schooner yacht Felstedquin was the official judges' boat with the commodore as host. It was Commodore Bent who sponsored the purchase of the land and was behind the building of the first yacht club which did much to establish the permanency of the organization.

TO MY LADY IN SEARCH OF THE DISTINCTIVE MAGNOLIA

MAGNOLIA

RETURNING SOJOURNERS to Magnolia note several changes which challenge attention. On the beach upland are two large residences which were not there last fall and which were formerly on the Farnum estate, sold at auction to Gilbert N. Ryan, who had them removed to their present locus. The transfer was not without difficulty and obstacle but Ryan was equal to the occasion. Manchester, in which his lot was located, refused to give him a permit to move along Raymond street. But he was not stumped. The mover arrived at the town landing, loaded the houses on a raft which was towed across to where Ryan's line began at low water whence they were dragged up the beach to the upland which they now occupy. We forgot to say that the owner of an intervening lot who claimed to low water, put the law on Mr. Ryan, preventing him from moving across that strand. Hence his resort to flotation. Where there's a will there's a way, and so it proved in this case.

Eventually, but not this year, some one may play golf on the proposed new golf links, but not, it is estimated, until some one comes across with about a quarter of a million to finance the incomplete project. At present no one seems anxious to step into the financial breach. At the inception of this project, The Shore made bold to say from a knowledge of conditions of the terrain that the Sanborn farm-Blynman farm proposition—Mr. Coolidge offering the latter—was by far the more attractive proposition from every standpoint. Experience is a dead horse for which we pay a high price.

It sounds like old times to hear that the Hesperus is open again for business. Remodelled and thoroughly brought up to date, it has been taken over by a thoroughly qualified hotel man, Mr. Lawrence of New York. We wish him success.

Meanwhile the Oceanside has for its fiftieth year opened its doors for another season. The fine fleur and socially elect of the country for three generations have been its guests. Few of the hostelries which were its contemporaries are now in existence. Offered as a sacrifice to the Fire god or turned over to the building wrecker (as was the Aborn), its contemporaries have long ago passed into history. Who now remembers Rodick's at Bar Harbor or can call the list of fine hostelries in the mountains which have disappeared in flames? I heard a cynic once say when reading a newspaper account of such an event that a paying hotel rarely burned. One of the mysteries I have never failed to solve is how a well filled ice house can burn.

Mrs. John Fremont Hill, who last year purchased the Houghton cottage opposite Cobblestone beach for a summer residence, has arrived for the season.

The Charles C. Smiths of New York, residents here of many years' standing, have returned to their summer home, Lexington avenue.

E. E. Williams and sister of Boston are the occupants this season of the Covell cottage in Lexington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes and family of Haverford, Penn., will again be the occupants of the Lee house, Shore road.

Mrs. L. T. Ponvert of Homoguero, Cuba, who purchased the Scudder house on the Shore road last season, will be in Europe this summer. The cottage will be closed.

The H. W. Farnums of Chicago were June arrivals, taking possession of their fine new residence on the Shore road.

Arthur N. Tilley of Brookline has the Sargent bungalow, Magnolia avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Farr of Boston have taken the West cottage in Manchester Cove.

Percy V. Hill of Augusta, Me., is occupying the Bigelow house, corner Shore and Hesperus avenues.

The family of Mrs. W. Langley Morrison of Boston have returned to their home in Lexington avenue.

Mrs. Mary Mooney and family of Boston have the Adams cottage, Lexington avenue, for the summer.

Miss Elizabeth Scamman of Boston has leased the Jocelyn cottage, corner Fuller street and Hesperus avenue, for another season.

Mrs. Edith Marsh Binney of Marlboro street, instead of taking a cottage at Magnolia this summer, will spend the season at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hawley of 26 Chestnut street are established at "Uplands," their summer home on Highland avenue, West Manchester, formerly the Frank P. Frazier estate, which they bought last year.

Mrs. John Fremont Hill of Augusta, Me., has arrived at the Houghton cottage, Cobblestone Beach, which she purchased two seasons ago and will remain for the season.

After spending the winter in South America and the spring in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond are back at "Lookout Hill" for the summer. While in Spain they met Don Alfonso of Orleans, Infante of Spain and cousin of King Alfonso, and renewed acquaintance with him during his recent visit to the national capital. They were among the guests at the dinner given in the Infante's honor by the Spanish Ambassador and Senor de Padilla at the Spanish Embassy in Washington.

Notice to Water Takers

The use of hose and sprinklers is strictly forbidden. This applies to both meter and fixture takers. The use of water for commercial purposes is alone excepted.

The public is further urgently requested to stop all leaks and waste of water during this period of shortage in order that available supplies be conserved in every way possible.

The co-operation of all citizens is earnestly requested for the public good.

Mrs. Charles S. Penhallow of Beverly has come for another season to her cottage in Magnolia avenue.

The Otis Weld Richardsons of Brookline are occupying their summer home on Norman avenue. This place is one of the show places of Magnolia with its well kept and beautiful gardens.

The E. Prescott Rowes of Brookline have arrived at their summer house, Norman avenue.

Miss Susan Williams of Boston is occupying the Williams house, Magnolia avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Pierce of Boston were among the June arrivals. Their summer home is in Hesperus avenue.

Mrs. Charles Wadsworth of Philadelphia and family are again at their summer home in Oakes Field.

Mrs. J. Harrington Walker and family of Detroit, came in June for another season at her cottage, "Rockledge," on the Shore road.

William G. Reuter and family of Boston are in occupancy of the Lincoln cottage, Summer street.

Mr. and Mrs. Costello C. Converse of Beacon street, Boston, have opened their Shore road residence for the season.

Miss Ida C. Beal of Boston is again occupying the E. C. Richardson cottage, Norman avenue.

Miss Margaret Corlies of Boston has opened her cottage in Fuller street for the season.

Miss Velma M. Morse of Cambridge has returned to Highfield's in Norman avenue for the season.

Borden Covell and family have the Osgood cottage.

James A. Ryan and family of West Somerville are in Beach Crest cottage.

F. K. M. Rehn of New York, has arrived at Fairview Cottage, Oakes Field, for the season.

Del Monte opened his charming villa-restaurant in Hesperus avenue Saturday, June 22. The site has corralled the two most famous spots in Magnolia, Rafe's Chasm, and the reef of Norman's Woe. Nothing could be more enchanting than to sit in the newly screened porch, under Japanese lanterns, and watch the gathering of North Shore society folk.

Thomas J. A. Johnson of Boston and family have the Faulkner house, Shore road, for the season. A swimming pool is among the improvements added to the premises.

Beach View cottage, Raymond street, this season will be the summer home of James McLaughlin and family of Chestnut Hill.

The Misses Maggie and Mary Kelly of Boston are the lessees this season of the Kehoe bungalow, Western avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crocker of Milton have taken the Barry cottage, Shore road, for the season.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Thayer Addison of Cambridge will this season make Magnolia their summer home. They have Island View cottage.

One of the Karem cottages has been taken for the season by Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Ballard of Chestnut Hill.

The Karem bungalow is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Gates of Chestnut Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wallace, also of Chestnut Hill, are domiciled in the Adams cottage near Crescent Beach for the season's occupancy.

The Shore regrets to hear of the death of Jacob D. Cox of Cleveland, for many years a summer resident here. The Cox family came here nearly fifty years ago and has never transferred its allegiance elsewhere. Mrs. Cox and family were among the early arrivals this month. Their cottage is in Hesperus avenue.

With the passing of Miss Fannie Faulkner of Boston during the winter, goes one of the longest in residence of Magnolia summer folk. Her coming here dated from fifty years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. James Green of Washington are the lessees of the Kennard cottage this season.

EAST GLOUCESTER

MORE AND MORE the popularity of East Gloucester grows not only as a cottage center but as an abiding place for those who seek to put off the household cares for a season—that is those who prefer to come to hotels.

And the coming season appears to be no exception to the rule for the most of the hostelrys report bookings up to the average of other years. This has been the big incoming week just before the Fourth. The younger element really call the cue on summer activities and it is not until they return from commencements, baseball and the big regatta at New Haven and they hie themselves to the shore that all forms of social activities begin to hum.

On June 27, Del Monte's Casino opened its doors for the new season with the usual opening night excitement. Ruby Newman and his orchestra are back again supplying their usual delightful dance music, and the genial head waiter, Mr. Frank Fishburne, has returned to the Casino overlooking Norman's Woe for his fifteenth season. Additional parking space is one of the main features of the new improvements this year, and is the answer to a long felt want both on the part of the management and the guests.

Among those entertaining at the Casino last week-end are Mr. W. E. Biddle of Manchester, with a party of six; Mr. R. H. Mitchell and party of ten; Mr. Gordon White of Beverly Farms and party of ten; Mr. and Mrs. Standish Backus of Manchester and party of ten; and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Brown of Bass Rocks with a party of ten.

With its screened porch overlooking the ocean, Del Monte's Casino is an ideal spot for an afternoon's bridge, or for tea, or, best of all for the younger set, an hour of dancing in the late afternoon, following tennis or a swim.

BASS ROCKS

INDEPENDENCE DAY marked the formal opening of the Bass Rocks Club, when the National Ensign was raised to the truck of the club flagpole. As usual, the ladies' committee had charge of the festivities of the day, including a community supper and entertainment.

This committee comprises Mrs. E. B. Sargent, chairman; Mrs. J. L. Newell, secretary, and Miss McKinney, treasurer, Miss Emily McGuckin, Miss Ellis, Miss Amelia Jarvie, Mrs. E. Tucker Sayward, Mrs. Max Talbot, Mrs. Laurence A. Brown, Mrs. Arthur T. Safford, Mrs. James S. Stuart, Mrs. Harry H. Walker, Mrs. Charles H. Wilson, Mrs. E. C. Wilson, Mrs. George L. Fleitz, Mrs. F. A. Brewer, Miss Louise Condit and Mrs. F. H. Pillsbury.

Monday afternoon bridge will be continued during July and August at the club house under the auspices of the ladies' committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ellis and family of Brookline, prominent in Bass Rocks social life, are at their Nautilus avenue house.

Mrs. James C. Farrell and family of Albany opened their fine estate "Felsenmeer," on Atlantic road, in the Grapevine Cove sector, early in June.

Henry D. Schmidt and family of Brookline, who had the Conant cottage in Beach road last year, have returned for another season.

Arthur S. Morse and family of Brookline have leased the Ralph E. Dundas residence for the season.

Dr. Arthur G. Broughton and family of Jamaica Plain have returned to their cottage for the season.

Mrs. C. G. Humphreys is occupying the Newton cottage, Atlantic avenue.

Raymond L. Royce and family of Brookline have returned to Twin Light cottage for the season.

Mrs. Harvey N. Squire of Brookline has the Dr. Smith cottage on Atlantic road.

Mrs. Arthur H. Rowbotham of Brookline has leased the Morey house in Grapevine road for her home during the summer season.

Mrs. Frederick M. Wyer of Lowell was among the early June arrivals. Her cottage is in Atlantic road.

Mrs. Robert A. Pogue and family of Cincinnati have taken occupancy of their cottage erected on Beach road.

E. Tucker Sayward and family of Brookline were among the June arrivals. The cottage, "Wynmere," is in Southern road.

Mrs. Charles Scott, Jr., and family of Philadelphia, have come to Tragibigzanda cottage for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Mills and his sister, Miss Georgianna Dodge of New York, have returned to "Under-the-Cliff" cottage and plan to stay the season.

Mrs. Pembroke Leah Thom of Baltimore has arrived at "Overledge," Atlantic avenue, for the season.

Miss Amelia F. G. Jarvie of Brooklyn, who was in Europe last summer, has returned to her cottage, 11 Craigmoor street, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Hyde of Philadelphia are at their residence at High Popples for the summer.

Mrs. John McGaw Foster of Bay State road, Boston, has come to her Bass Rocks cottage for another season.

Arthur T. Safford and family of Lowell are in their own cottage on Beach road.

Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Sargent of Haverford, Penn., are again occupying "Wyncote," their seaside home.

Harold C. Strong and family of Croton-on-Hudson have come for another season to "Stronghold" in Way road.

Major and Mrs. Charles H. Wilson of New York have returned to their summer home in Way road. They occupy the Warner cottage, so-called, which they purchased three years ago.

The Edward C. Wilsons of Springfield are again occupying "Fairways," corner Way road and Page streets.

EASTERN POINT

TWO FEATURES outstand in the over-the-winter news. First is the purchase of the spacious field adjoining the Hawthorne Inn for the yacht club and the buildings thereon, and second is the decision of the court in the case involving the construction of camps and the tea house near Farrington avenue.

As regards the latter, in its essence the owners of the camp property practically won in every essential point. They are accorded the right to build the camps, and secondly the contention claimed that this group of about fifty houses would constitute a sewerage nuisance is overruled, the court holding that nothing is a nuisance until it exists.

It seems to be the practically unanimous opinion that the club trustees have made a wise move in securing the groundhold of the property adjoining the Gate Lodge, which will be more appreciated as time goes on.

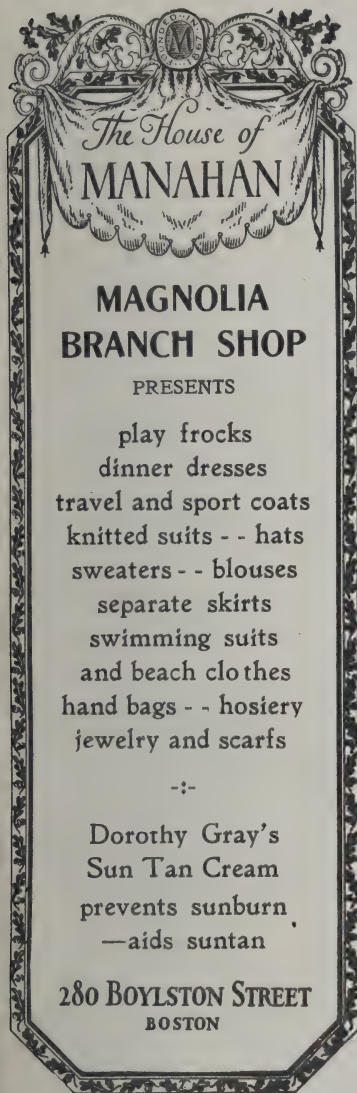

The housewarming of June 21 was attended by some one hundred and fifty persons and Commodore John Greenough, he of perennial youth, founder, guide and philosopher to the club, gave a thumbnail sketch of the organization during its decade of existence, which was well received.

Col. and Mrs. John W. Prentiss have been coming off and on during the springtime to "Blighty," but arrived permanently for the season some two weeks ago. Their winter headquarters are in New York, but their home is at Eastern Point.

Congressman A. Piatt Andrew has made an occasional visit to Red Roof, his home at Eastern Point, during the spring, and after the parlor Congressional days at Washington are over for the time, will remain here for the summer.

Miss Cecilia Beaux arrived about the middle of June at her summer place, "Green Alley."

THE ROCKPORT SHORE

ROCKPORT this summer will make an especial feature of the State Tercentenary and has arranged a continuous program of events extending into September, the summer colony co-operating with the permanent residents.

A feature which promises to loom large on the horizon of summer activities is the theatricals at the Turk's Head Inn Casino. It is bound to draw from all sections of the county.

Straitsmouth Inn—Matilde Ruediger, Alice A. Grady, Dr. P. K. Keavy, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stoneman and M. T. Milne, Boston; Mabel H. Cummings, Hazel Curtiss, Brookline; Miss L. Olson, Frances M. Pray, Benjamin S. Pray, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Cornish, Cambridge; Mrs. Wolcott Calkins and Mrs. Burrill, Newton; Lilla B. Conant, Belmont; Mrs. Nelson H. Sibley, Chelsea; Mrs. Herman P. Belle, Wellesley Hills; Mrs. James A. Hutchinson, West Newton; Ethelyn M. Kinney, Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. H. I. O. Griffith, Bedford Hills; Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Mrs. Grace Appleby, Plainfield, N. J.; Hilda D. Atterbury, Rochester; Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Pinston, Dr. Alexander Pinston, May F. Pinston, Middletown, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Affleck, Yonkers; Winifred Olley and Miss Shryock, Philadelphia; David M. R. Culbreth, Baltimore; Mrs. Wylie J. Daniels, Mrs. Edward Daniels, Indianapolis.

Turk's Head Inn—Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Rogers, Mrs. W. S. Boardman, Mrs. Anna P. Davis and Jennie D. Hitchins, Boston; Mrs. William Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richmond Briggs, Miss Betsy Briggs and Mrs. Grace M. Fitch, Brookline; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Baldwin, Jr., Worcester; Misses Margaret A. and Evelyn L. Sheehy, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Handy and Miss Louise Benjamin, Montclair, N. J.; Misses G. L. and T. L. Oviatt, Mrs. George H. Kelly, Misses Katherine, Aleen and N. E. Kelly, Cleveland; Mrs. Joseph Delanel Hitch, Adeline Hitch, Chauncey Shackford and son, and Miss Helen Moore, New York City.

A recent arrival at Turk's Head Inn is Mrs. Charles Richmond of New York City, who is accompanied by Miss Leonore Harriss, also of New York, and will be joined shortly by Mr. Richmond who is at present playing in the Broadway success, "Strictly Dishonorable."

Turk's Head Inn opened early in June with Mr. Denmark P. Clark, the genial host on hand to greet old guests and new arrivals. With the addition of the new play house, and the expected arrival of various celebrities in the realm of the theatre, the season promises to be a lively one at this popular hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Beal and family of New York City have arrived at the Winthrop, Bearskin Neck, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Kuehne and son of New York City have arrived at the

THE ANNISQUAM SECTION

AS A RULE, the lovers of things as they were, deplore changes and want Annisquam Village to remain as was, a delightful specimen of the olden time, especially as regards the old houses and old roads, but the improvement of the dangerous curve near the yacht club house by widening, meets general approval, eliminating a dangerous curve. This section has a friend at court in Alderman Davis, who is looking after the interest of this bailiwick.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Lee of Boston, who have been enjoying a month at their Leonard street cottage, have gone to New York State for the summer and will again visit Annisquam in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ustick and daughter, Miss Ellen of Baltimore, are settled for the summer at the Vawter cottage on Chester square.

George R. Nutter and mother, Mrs. Nutter, from Boston, arrived yesterday to spend the summer at the Jelly cottage on Norwood Heights.

The Waldo S. Kendall family of Cambridge who spent the summer last year at Cambridge avenue, are here for the season and are occupying the Simpson cottage at Rockholm.

Rogers studio on Pier avenue for the season.

Miss Louise Marshall of New York City is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Rogers of Granite street.

Miss Lelia Usher will not be at her studio home on Union lane this season as she is enjoying an extended travel trip through New Mexico and the western coast.

Samuel G. Hershey of Fitchburg is the guest of Miss Eleanor Weber of Pleasant street.

Dr. Howard Winchester of Boston spent the week-end at his home on Briarstone road.

H. B. Lovell and family of Malden are at their home on Marmion way.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester W. Stevens and son have returned from a winter spent in France and are at their home on Mill lane.

Professor Marshall Saville of New York City has arrived for a stay at his home on Shetland road.

Major Hines of the Veterans' Bureau was a visitor over the week-end at the Rockport Country Club.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

A New Arrival—Reunion of the Clan
—A Moonlight Swim—The Shops
Again

A girl in blue—a girl with golden hair and dreamy eyes—a beautiful silhouette against the blues of distant sea and farther distant horizon. Such a girl, such a picture was Marcia as she stood on the veranda of a house by the side of the sea and gazed out into infinity.

Alone at last after the uproarious reception she had been accorded at the station on her arrival and the particularly noisy dinner planned and executed for her especial benefit, she paused for a moment or two of self communion and examination. Had she been right in coming here? Ought she to have accepted Peggy's invitation to spend the summer at the shore with the clan—so soon? True, she'd fallen in love with each and every one of them at first sight, so to speak. Like one big happy family, they were. Gay hearted Peggy, her cousin, constantly pursued by Chubby, whose main distinction and claim to fame lay in his enormous capacity for ices, sodas and various and sundry sweets; Jimmie and Gay, that adorable couple whose romance of a year ago had been the outstanding event of the season at the shore; Joan, the clever and demure; the ultra-masculine Jack, scorner of Lexington Avenue and staunch admirer of practicality; all of them so dear and kind to this little newcomer from a tiny New England village.

And Anne. One couldn't forget Anne, the backbone of the little group. Impossible to imagine the clan without Anne who kept them all in order, whether it be by loving solicitude or scathing sarcasm. She was quite, quite capable of both.

"Hello, waiting for your ship to come in?"

Startled by the sudden interruption, Marcia swung around to face the voice's owner.

"Oh—I beg your pardon. I thought it was Peggy standing here. I shouldn't have been so—so—"

"It's all right," laughed Marcia, "and silly of me to have been startled. I'm Marcia Ware, Peggy's cousin."

"I'm Larry—Larry Edwards. Live over there—next door," jerking his head in the direction of a neighboring cottage. "I heard you were coming. In fact, that's why I'm here tonight, to meet you."

"Well, you've accomplished your purpose, at least," laughed Marcia. "Shall we go in and tell the others you've arrived?"

Entering the cottage, they found themselves immediately involved in a discussion pertaining to the various merits and faults of the Frigidaire. Peggy had the floor.

"After using one of L. E. Smith's Frigidaires for the last two seasons," she was saying, "I—"

"You'd never use another. Is that the idea, Peggy?" interrupted Larry.

"Larry Edwards, where have you been?" demanded Peggy, forgetting for the moment her passionate defense of Frigidaire. "Didn't you know you were invited for dinner?"

"My humble and most respectful regrets," apologized the culprit. "Please accept them for what they're worth. I was detained."

"Detained, were you?" Peggy frowned forbiddingly. "Then you shan't meet the pride of the family Ware. She—"

"But we've already met, Peg," broke in Marcia. "If I'd know the sort of person he is, I shouldn't have spoken to him, of course. But as it is—" She shrugged prettily and smiled across at Larry.

"Well, the harm's done, I suppose," Peggy capitulated. "But the villain shall pay—and pay—and pay."

"At Barker's tomorrow morning," put in Chubby, "for all of us."

Chubby's suggestion, or threat, or whatever one chooses to call it, was received with enthusiasm, and plans were immediately laid for an early morning shopping tour.

"How about the movies?" suggested

Cottage Pewter

PEWTER belongs to the country cottage! Its quaint charm, its varied service, its immunity from constant care and cleaning are but three of its splendid virtues. To these Ovington's adds a fourth commendation . . . the attraction of modest prices.

Never were pewter table sets lovelier than here at Ovington's and never were they more reasonably priced!

Jack, after what he considered a reasonable time had been spent in the enlightenment of Marcia on the completeness and the utter charm of the Magnolia shops. "There's a corking show at the North Shore."

"Which isn't in the least unusual," supplemented Joan. "But isn't it a bit late?"

"Nine o'clock," Jimmy informed her, glancing at his wrist watch. (It must be confessed that Jimmy was just a bit vain of that wrist watch, having purchased it only that day at Blanchard's.)

"Better wait 'til tomorrow night," suggested Anne, "and do something else tonight."

"How about a moonlight swim?" ventured Gay. "It's a glorious night, and just warm enough."

Her plan was acclaimed, and a rush made for bathing suits and wraps.

It appeared, a few moments later, that Marcia hadn't a bathing suit. But that difficulty was promptly solved by Peggy, who, it seemed, had brought home two from W. G. Brown's and hadn't been able to decide which one to keep. She simply couldn't choose, "and," she told Marcia, "if you'll only take one of them off my hands and mind, I'll be eternally grateful to you."

Peggy—which she then decided, "she really preferred, anyway."

Marcia was very much pleased with her new swim suit. Where did Peggy say she had got it?

"At Brown's," she was told, "and they have dozens of them, as good-looking as these. All sorts of beach equipment, too. Umbrellas, beach chairs—everything to make you comfy on the beach."

An hour later, refreshed and invigorated by their dip, the Clan gathered again in Peggy's living room. Peggy was serving delicious chicken sandwiches and coffee.

"Coffee's great, Peggy," called Chubby. Then losing himself in the depths of his sandwich, "and the chicken—!"

"The coffee's Kybo, from the First National Store," Peggy informed him, "and the chicken's from Shepherd's, of course. I never buy chicken anywhere else."

Sandwiches were followed by a delicious creamy ice, which Peggy told them was Chanticleer Ice-cream, the most famous on the North Shore.

Suddenly the clan as a whole discovered something. It was a spinet desk in a corner which had hitherto been lost in the shadows. But the new and very stunning lighting arrangement which had recently been completed by the Gloucester Electric Light Company, brought it out in its full beauty.

Jimmy and Gay, antique hunters, immediately became engaged in an argument regarding its authenticity as a real antique. Gay was sure of it, but Jimmy couldn't be convinced. Finally Peggy put an end to the dissension.

"You're both right," she said. "It's a genuine reproduction, which I bought unpainted at the Gloucester Coal and Lumber Company's store on Main street and had finished. And, for the benefit of all you antique hunters, they have some splendid old reproductions there; Salem chests, Colonial sewing tables, ladder backs, and oh, just dozens of things that you'll have to see for yourself to appreciate."

"Speaking of antiques," said Joan, "has anybody been to Poole's Antique Shop this year?"

"Gay has," replied Jimmy, "and I can't tell you how hard I had to work to get her out of there. Why, I fairly perspired!"

"Poor dear," chuckled Gay indulgently. "Let's stop there tomorrow on the way to Magnolia." Jimmy groaned.

Some time later, the party broke up, with arrangements completed for tomorrow.

JACK HOOPER—IN MEMORIAM

Yachtsmen were shocked to learn of the death which occurred early in January of John S. Hooper, popularly known as "Jack" Hooper, one of the best known and best liked yachtsmen along the entire sea coast.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Henry Hooper and came to Annisquam with his parents when a mere lad growing up with the colony, his genial and whole souled temperament making him hosts of friends.

He early became interested in yachting and after serving a 'prentice season before the mast on several of the yachting fleet branched out as a full fledged skipper, having proved himself an apt pupil and past master at the sailing game, always above board and strictly honorable in his ideas and ethics of sportsmanship.

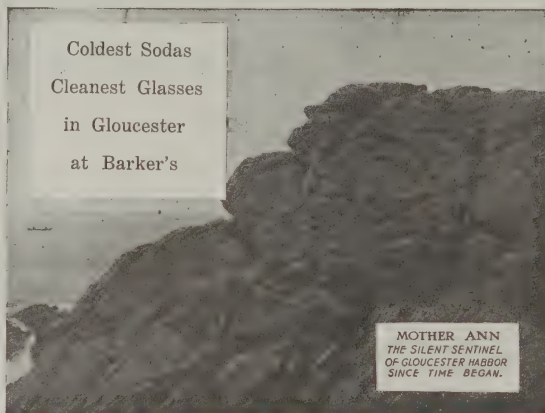

He first skippered the Katzenjammer in the Cat boat class, in which he won a season's championship and afterwards assumed command of the Bird boat Tern, in which he had another sterling cup to his championship win and locker. In all, he was about 10 seasons identified with 'Squam yachting.

During the World War he enlisted and served in the navy contracting a lung trouble from which he never fully recovered.

Resided in Hingham

After coming out of the service he took up his residence in the old Hooper home at Hingham and became actively identified with the Hingham Yacht Club, occasionally coming to the scene of his early activities at Annisquam and taking the helm during a race, always being cordially greeted by his old associates.

His marriage to Anna Hall of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, in the spring of 1929 was one of the social events of the after Easter season, after which he took up his residence at the Hooper home in

YACHTING SEASON OF 1930

The bells of July 4th ushered in one of the most successful yachting years on Cape Ann. The Eastern Point Club is installed in its new club house near the Gate Lodge and the start and finish line has been brought down the harbor to about the position of that of the old Rocky Neck Club, giving spectators in the harbor a fine view of both ends of the race.

Eastern Point will have a fleet of 44 boats with a new class of at least five R yachts, in addition to the 13 sonders, 10 old and three new triangle class boats and the dozen Cape Cod knockabouts sailed by the youngsters of the Eastern Point and Bass Rocks summer colonies. Racing will start at the Point on July 4. Annisquam will probably open the season at the same time, not yet made up.

The R class will have the Vengeance, owned by John Sheriff of Pittsburgh, the Taja, formerly the Ruweida V, purchased last fall by Charles Liffert, Jr.; the Bonny Kate, owned by James L. Stuart, the Rebel, Marquis Smith and the Bonny Lassie, which Commodore Harry Wiggin of the Annisquam Club purchased to defend the Manhasset Bay challenge cup, won last summer for the 'Squam Club in the races at Marblehead. It is believed that Commodore Wiggin will sail his R boat in the Eastern Point class.

The sonder class will be as strong with the Tid IV, Skeezix, Hevella, Buccaneer, Lady II, Tern, Bubbles, Vim, Tid III, Shamrock, Panther, Bandit, and Demon in the running. Some changes and improvements will be made in many of the boats before the first race. Shamrock, skippered by Isaac Patch, Jr., has had the bow rebuilt at the Colby yard, East Gloucester. Vim and Panther have been changed to the Marconi rig.

In the Triangle class are the Sprite, Panope, Flirt, Cursor, Triton, Trident, Wiki Wiki II, Kitmer II, Injun and Black Bess. New comers to the class will be Gerald O'Brien's Mavourneen, Epes W. Merchant's Quail and one for Connie Brewer of Bass Rocks.

New Triangles at 'Squam

Five new triangles will be in the water at Annisquam including boats for R. Russell Smith, Commodore Harry Wiggin, Henry Worcester, Quincy Bent and one other. They may sail at Eastern Point for the mid-week races on Wednesday afternoons.

The Cape Cod knockabout class comprises the same fleet as last season, Guerriere, Bemo, Old Ironsides, Sylph, Maryland, Fontano, Swan, Pompano, Arethusa, Naughty One, Mary Bess and Wiki Wiki.

page twenty-four as advertising and invite the scrutiny of automobilists to their provisions. It is the intention of the authorities to enforce these with discretion and with the least possible friction and to that end they ask the co-operation of all straightforward so-journers within the gates.

Among these yachts was the Kulinda, owned by George J. Marsh, a local banker, the name being taken from a poem concerning a Turkish lady which (the poem) was printed in the old Boston Advertiser and took Mr. Marsh's fancy. Capt. John Strum, an old Grand Banker, sailed her. Few as expert at the tiller.

The fame of the Black Cloud and others of the type spread. She had cleaned up practically everything in her class north of Cape Cod. However, on the southern end of the cape was a designer, Hanley, who turned out a fast keel boat whose reputation spread up the coast.

An Epic Contest—Tappan Cup

Herman Tappan, Gloucester born, a well known business man of New York, sent on a trophy which was called the Tappan cup to be sailed open to all on the coast of boats in the Black Cloud class. It was from Tiffany's, and a handsomer or better-designed trophy for its purpose the writer has never seen. Fashioned in the form of a Greek urn of hammered silver colored a mahogany brown, festooned with grapes and holding about two gallons. The writer has seen it adorning festive boards on equally festive occasions, but for the past fifteen has lost track of it. Does any one know its whereabouts?

The crack sailer of the Hanley class was the Atalanta owned and sailed by Arthur Thomas of Boston. Like all the Hanley boats she had little of beauty of line, high out of water, stern sawed off squarely with no overhang, mast set well forward almost to the stem with a small jib relying on a heavy swing of canvas in the mainsail.

The Atalanta was entered in the contest being in the same class as the Black Cloud, although in appearance and build the two were totally dissimilar.

The races were sailed on the regular course. Each won a leg—two out of three. On the day of the deciding race Thomas came down from Boston short one of his crew. He asked the writer to sail. At the start the wind blew stiffly from the southwest kicking up a stiff wind and sea, increasing as the race progressed. Outside the force reached half a gale with a heavy sea running. It was just the chance for the Atalanta and she soon got a lead which she bade fair to lengthen. Astern the Black Cloud with Aaron Brown at the helm appeared a little tender.

When rounding the whistler, the mark was purposely given a wide berth, but just as she had jibed round a squall took the boat on the crest of a wave and hurled her down on the buoy. All on board worked like Trojans to avert what they feared. Thomas was at the helm but do what they could their little cockle shell, the sport of the wind and seas, the tip of the main boom just ticked the buoy. All hands looked astern. There was the Black Cloud on the crest of a wave looking down on the scene.

Of course the accident was unavoidable but did not escape the Argus-eyed Brown who ran up a protest flag. Those aboard the Atalanta knew it was all off. The Cape Cod boat finished first and those on shore thought she had won the cup only to learn the facts later. Several years before the war while on Atlantic avenue, Boston, I saw the Atalanta tied up in T Wharf basin. I stopped some minutes and pondered over old times. Alas, many of the boys of yesteryear, blithe and joyous, have now passed on, let us hope to the Fortunate Isles and celestial racing grounds where all good yachtsmen foregather.

Eastern Point Club

Well, in the early 1900's, the Cape Ann Club finally dropped into inaction by the death of its prominent members, however, retaining its organization. However, some choice spirits over at East Gloucester, Jack Mehlman, Alex

McCurdy, Ben Colby and others got together and formed the East Gloucester Club, the successor of the Cape Ann, with a fleet of their own. They found a guide, philosopher, and stanch friend in Commodore John Greenough, who financed a fine club house and the club thrrove, having among its membership the young attaches of the Siamnese legation, good yachtsmen, William H. Harcourt, William G. Perry, Ad Stanwood, Conrad Hanson, White Wings, Mavis and other boats of the Cape Ann Club continuing up to the opening of the Great War when activities were suspended which were not resumed after the declaration of peace, the club house finally being sold for a residence. They originated the end of the season chowder race, now a fixture up and down the coast.

But the game was not allowed to die down. A new crop of yachtsmen were springing up in the Eastern Point summer colony and ten years ago with the Raymond boat house as headquarters, formed the Eastern Point Club which has grown and prospered until it has achieved prominence among the leading Corinthian organizations of the New England coast. Now in its new home the future looks bright for a continued advance.

Some time later this sketch may be amplified and elaborated with especial reference to the earlier period of the game on the cape and some of the worthies who were its outstanding exponents.

Addenda: In reading these notes it appears that the honor of being the oldest club on the cape that has continued racing goes to the Annisquam Club. They have raced a regular schedule annually without interruption for 45 years.

plant early in the morning. Neither can you take her with you to Nauss' lumber yard to help you select 'just the material' for that new porch of yours."

"But it's perfectly safe, Peggy," remonstrated the fat boy. "It's as safe as—why," with a sudden burst of inspiration, "why it's as safe as the Gloucester National Bank!"

"That's not the point, Chubby," Peggy ignored his triumphant attitude, "it's simply that Marcia has never been to Magnolia, Marcia wants to go to Magnolia, and," darkly, "Marcia is going to Magnolia." And Chubby, defeated and crestfallen, betook himself off, muttering something under his breath about no more chocolate frappés at Trowbridge's for a certain young lady.

The morrow dawned clear and bright with an invigorating ocean chill in the air.

"It's marvellous out of doors these cool mornings," Peggy told her guest, "but give me a Bulldog Furnace to fill my house with joy and comfort in the early hours."

Directly after breakfast the clan arrived, and the party set out for Lexington avenue.

In Gloucester, Joan found she had business at the Cape Ann National Bank, and Gay found very serious business when she looked into Armstrong's window. There, against a modernistic background in orange and black, was the loveliest collection of shoes she ever remembered seeing. White sport shoes, white dress shoes, black and white Deauvilles, green and white Deauvilles, red and white Deauvilles, Deauville sandals and Deauville oxfords, Deauvilles for men and Deauvilles for women. Before leaving the city, each of the girls had succumbed to the fatal lure of Deauville, to the extent of at least one pair.

Chubby, missing during the "business" episode, was finally discovered, resplendent in white flannels from Earl Phillips', in Ransellear Towle's dainty tea room, blissfully engaged in mastering one of their delicious fudge sandwiches. He refused to move until he had finished the last bit, and replied to their cajoleries and threats with an idle word to two about Wetherell's soda fountain.

"Well," said Gay, "I for one can make use of this enforced wait," glaring at Chubby. "Who'll come to the North Shore Furniture Company's store with me? They do have the most satisfactory porch furniture!"

Peggy bethought herself of her gas stove which she wanted badly to exchange for a newer model, and decided upon a visit to the Gloucester Gas Light Company.

Half an hour later found them on their way to Magnolia, with luncheon reservations, for Chubby's particular benefit, at Del Monte's.

To Marcia, the Lexington avenue shops were everything they had been promised. "You didn't exaggerate a single bit," she told her cousin and the others.

"We couldn't," replied Joan.

At Manahan's she squealed with delight over the extensive and attractive display of hats. She simply fell in love with a little velvet model, the hat worn by Norma Shearer in her newest picture, "The Divorcee." Then the little pique velvets for sports in all colors caught her eye. She bought one and was contemplating another, when her eye fell upon a darling pink beret fashioned entirely of narrow velvet ribbon bands.

She was just beginning to look at some real South American panamas when Peggy's excited voice was heard from across the shop.

"Marcia, darling, come here and see these adorable shorts! Just look at them! That little pleated skirt effect—isn't it sweet? And see these stripes with the jacket to match!"

Marcia, of course, wanted them all, but was finally persuaded to purchase only one suit at a time, and selected for her initial outfit one of white shantung which was found to be most becoming.

At the Grande Maison de Blanc, linens took their eye. Particularly the lace banquet and luncheon cloths in Point de Venice, Flemish lace and Binche. Joan thought a satin damask tablecloth in pure white with an inserted monogram in Point de Venice particularly desirable, while Gay displayed a keen interest in a luncheon cloth and napkin set of colored lace with antique fillets.

Nobody noticed that Marcia seemed to care little about the linens and when she deserted them entirely to look at the dresses on the other side of the shop, her departure was unnoticed. If anybody had been watching, however, they might have observed furtive glances cast now and again in the direction of the enthusiastic little group about the linens. At any rate, a solicitous attendant in the shop soon discovered a complete lack of interest in apparel.

At Ovington's they found pewter. It seemed as if everything desirable could be made of the material, and had been. Gay determined to have a complete pewter table service, "because," as she explained, "silver tarnishes so easily at the shore."

Peggy contented herself with a set of cream soup cups, while Joan ordered a pair of candlesticks for a wedding present.

At Richard Briggs' they met the boys, who had been spending the entire time there, and therefore had a pretty complete inventory of things at their fingertips. They were particularly interested in the brand new individual bed trays, which, they pointed out, were useful as well as ornamental. Made of wicker, stained in the pastel hues, with a secretary for magazines and letters at either side, they were indeed attractive. One type, with a reversible tray, could be transformed into an ideal writing desk.

Marcia hovered over a delicate pink tray, which bore a lovely breakfast set of English semi-porcelain. The dainty chintz design was early English, with colors reproduced from the natural flower tints.

Loath to leave this place of loveliness, they compromised with themselves and it upon an agreement to return the following week. And so was Marcia's introduction to Magnolia and the shops completed. We leave her with the clan, happy in the present, only wondering—if she should be happy.

Obituary

KENDALL K. SMITH

Professor Kendall Kerfoot Smith, head of the Greek and Latin classics department at Brown University, died at Providence, December 1, 1929, in his 48th year. A native of Fitchburg, he was graduated from Harvard in 1904, served as a Y. M. C. A. worker with the Greek army during the World War, attended the American school of classical studies at Athens in 1907-08 and served on the committee of that institution in 1924-25. His widow and three daughters and his parents survive.

Professor and Mrs. Smith first came to Gloucester with their family some 14 years ago, stopping at the Good Harbor Beach Inn at Brier Neck for several seasons. Later they occupied one of the cottages on Salt Island road for a number of seasons, after which they were at Bass Rocks.

Mr. Smith was well known to many of the permanent and summer residents of Brier Neck, also to many of the families who come to the Inn each season.

Under the direction of Miss Grace Dorothea Fisher of New York as general manager, and Mrs. Helen I. O. Griffith of New York, business manager, a summer series of farces and comedies, which will include one comedy drama and one old musical play, has been announced for North Shore theatre lovers. Miss Beatrix Demarest Lloyd, well known playwright, has written a play especially for Rockport production, and Miss Norma Mitchell, author of "The Cradle Snatchers," is at work on a special piece. Cape Ann has long been a favorite summer rendezvous for theatrical stars, among whom are Elsie Ferguson, Frederic Worlock, Fritz Schiff, Cecilia Loftus, Mrs. Louise Closser Hale, Charles Richman, and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Warner.

Some of this notable group will be at Rockport again this summer to participate in the initial season of the Cape Ann Theatre. Mr. Courtenay Guild is lending his influence in support of this newest theatrical venture, as also are other Bostonians, among whom are Mrs. Alpheus Hyatt, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Rogers. Others who are interested are Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry Lancashire of New York, who have a summer home at Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Parsons of Gloucester, Hon. and Mrs. Frederick Tarr of Rockport, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Pogue of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Stanley O. Sable of New York.

John Logan of Cliftondale and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Logan of Beach street, this town, was one of the class to graduate from Mt. Hermon at Northfield, Mass., recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bryant and family of Washington, D. C., have arrived for the season at their home on Shetland road.

She was instructor of art in the High School of Flatbush, N. Y., where she resided. It was her custom to come to Gloucester early in the summer and remain till September, occupying the "Green Door Studio" of D. Sherman Tarr, near Rocky Neck railways.

In 1928 she made a sojourn in Spain and Algiers.

Miss Locke was highly gifted, as the public who saw her work season after season at the North Shore Art Association gallery and the Gloucester Society of Artists' gallery will testify. Only three weeks before her death she held a "one-man" exhibition of her paintings at the Barnard Club in New York, a most creditable choosing of her best work.

She was a New Englander by birth and her remains were taken to the home of her mother in old Lexington, where the funeral was held and the body laid peacefully to rest—not so far from Gloucester, which laid so close to her heart always.

REV. WILLIAM BEACH OLMSTEAD

Rev. William Beach Olmstead, headmaster of the Pomfret Preparatory School, and summer resident at East Gloucester, died December 11, 1929, at his home at Pomfret, Conn. He had served as headmaster of the school for 32 years, going there in 1897.

Dr. Olmstead was ordained in the Episcopal Church, the ordination taking place in 1909 and being performed by his brother, Bishop Olmstead of Arizona.

He was born in New York City, February 26, 1864, and was graduated from Trinity College in 1887. In 1908 he received a master of arts degree from Yale. He married Miss Anne Nelson Starkweather of Cooperstown, N. Y., July 22, 1891. Besides his wife, Dr. Olmstead leaves a daughter and two sons.

Dr. Olmstead has been coming to East Gloucester each summer for some 30 years. He often preached at St. John's Episcopal Church and was well known about the city.

New Summer Homes

AT EASTERN POINT

The new home of Epes W. Merchant has been completed, on the Eastern Point boulevard, opposite Niles' Beach. The house is of antique brick veneer finish on the interior, and is exceptionally attractive. The roof is of slate. On the first floor is a living-room, dining-room, two closed porches, kitchen, and butler's pantry. All the floors on the first floor are tiled, and the interior

EAST GLOUCESTER

Over at Rocky Neck Mine Host William A. Publicover at the Rockaway has made many improvements which meet the approbation of his clientele of many years standing. Manager-Proprietor Carle T. Tucker of the Delphine, who learned the game under the tutelage of George A. Stacy, made his bow as managing-proprietor last year and made a hit right off the bat. He has made further improvements to that well known hostelry which make for further enjoyment of his guests, and his bookings assure the success of the season. Over at Bass Rocks at the Moorland, Proprietor Edward D. Parsons has also made ready for his patrons, the greater part of whom have for more than a decade considered the hotel their summer home.

GEORGE WAINWRIGHT HARNEY

The death in June of George Wainwright Harney removes one of the Gloucester born artists who achieved prominence in the world of art.

He early showed a talent for painting, receiving instruction from the best of American artists of his time which was supplemented by a prolonged course of study abroad, especially at the Hague where he studied under some of the foremost Dutch masters.

Returning, his works early attracted attention as they were exhibited in the leading art centers of the country, at the St. Botolph's Club, Boston, where he was a regular exhibitor; in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other centers. A number of his works hang in the Congressional Library at Washington and on the walls of art connoisseurs.

He was contemporary with William M. Chase, George Dureneek, Jerome Elwell, and others of that Cape Ann coterie of young men who have risen high in the artistic world. A man of fine grain he wrote a number of poems characterized by depth of feeling and lofty sentiment.

He was a member of the New York Water Color Association, the Gloucester Society of Artists, the North Shore Society, and others. He married Martha Rogers who survives him. For the past 20 years he made his home at his studio-cottage, River road, Annisquam.

finish is of English oak paneling. On the second floor are four master bedrooms, and three baths.

The house is heated with a hot water system, with gas as fuel. A two-car garage is attached to the house. The antique bricks used in the house exterior are of the red clay variety, hard baked, and irregular in shape. When laid, the finish is not the ordinary blank brick wall, but resembles that of a brick house of long ago. At one time, the brick manufacturers when these misshapen bricks were found, discarded them. Now they are considered to be the best for a fine finished job.

Phillips and Holloran were the architects.

DR. C. F. STUBE

Dr. C. F. Stube of New York has rebuilt his summer home on Phillips avenue, Pigeon Cove, that was completely destroyed by fire some time ago. The new home is entirely of Spanish design, and is quite attractive with its high pitched roof, arched doorways and arched piazza. The long, narrow windows that are associated with this type of architecture have been used in the upper story, and while the windows in the house are smaller than the old, the number in each room will allow ample air and light for the size of the room.

The location is up on a hill overlooking the bay, and it is exposed to the four winds. It has an exceptionally fine view of the sea and of the rocky shore.

FOR C. D. HOWE

A new summer home has been constructed in the rear of Turk's head Inn for C. D. Howe of Port Arthur, Ontario. The house is long and low with 14 rooms and three baths. The structure is 72 feet long and 32 feet in width. The living-room goes the full height of the house, extending to the eaves. The ceiling is of open beam construction, while a large open fireplace in the living-room will add warmth and cheer. The walls are finished in pine sheathing. Numerous windows, and three French doors on either side of the living-room open out of doors.

CAPE ANN THEATRE

Cape Ann besides being one of the artistic summer centers of the country now bids fair to be the leading summer theatrical resort of New England. The Little Theatre at Rocky Neck, which succeeded The Playhouse-on-the-Moors, initiated by Mr. Atwood, Mr. Leslie Buswell's Stillington Hall, is now joined by an enterprise at Land's End, initiated by Mr. D. P. Clark, proprietor of the Turk's Head Inn.

THE LITTLE THEATRE

with their skill and adaptability. Under the direction of Mrs. Florence Evans and Miss Florence Cunningham, directors of the school, some remarkable progress is made during the intensive summer course, and some remarkable plays are produced by the young artists.

This year the facilities of the theatre have been increased by a complete renovation of the building itself under Professor Charles W. Killam of Harvard University, and Miss Eleanor Raymond, a Boston architect. The stage has been made higher and deeper, the "hurricane deck" or gallery has been extended, and promenades and porches have been added to the exterior so that one may stretch one's legs and enjoy a cup of coffee and a harbor view between the acts.

In addition to the regular weekly performances on Friday and Saturday evenings, the School has added to its repertoire this season a marionette performance scheduled for Tuesday evenings and Saturday mornings. These performances will be given in the Crow's Nest, an adjacent building recently acquired by the Theatre.

With its new equipment and the enthusiastic anticipation of its public, the Little Theatre enters upon a new season of extensive study, training and accomplishment.

ADDITIONAL WATER SUPPLY

Prompt Action Taken to Ensure Against Any Shortage in the Future —Plan of Expert Engineers and State Health Authorities Adopted by Water Board and Municipal Council

An ample supply of pure water is a paramount consideration to the citizens of any community. Large numbers are annually attracted to New England by the superior purity and "softness," i. e., freedom from lime of its water. It is one of New England's greatest assets. No matter has as great a concern to the summer resident.

This city has been fortunate inasmuch as its three water basins at West Gloucester are absolutely secured from any sewage or other contamination. But it was evident some years ago that the demand had outgrown the supply. For several seasons nothing but luck alone prevented a serious shortage. The Shore for a number of seasons past has advocated that the city raise the dam at Wallace Pond and increase materially its supply. The water board has also in its annual reports called attention to this need but no heed was paid to its warnings.

At last, luck has no longer favored. The drought of the past two years has left this city in an alarming predicament, and we use the adjective deliberately. A crisis has been reached. Two of its three basins, even when at their maximum height barely sufficient to tide over for a summer's needs, are nearly empty.

This situation thrust home to the citizens brought them up all standing so to speak. The water board was obliged to prohibit the use of all outdoor hose and enjoin strict economy in the use of water for other purposes. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of shrubbery in estates and gardens seemed doomed. But so far luck has intervened in the form of heavy fogs and night showers and this situation to date has been saved.

The danger had been foreseen early in the spring by the water board and engineers had been brought in to prospect survey and recommend the best course of action. Driven wells promised the quickest relief but exhaustive tests demonstrated that nothing could be had from this course. The survey of the engineers reinforced by the recommendation of the State Board of Health recommended the Alewife brook proposition. This brook, on the southerly edge of Dogtown Commons, drains the territory composed of hard gravelly soil on which nothing larger than blueberry and barberry bushes grow. There are no habitations on it.

Immediately a chorus of "experts" began an anvil chorus and predicted all sorts of dire calamities if the Commons were taken for the purpose. The Municipal Council after due investigation voted a $400,000 twenty-year loan and the water board has awarded the contract to build the dam to one of the largest firms of the kind in the country for about $200,000. Work has already been commenced in building the dam and it is hoped to impound a supply of water to help out the shortage. The contract calls for the completion of the job by December 31 of this year; bonds having been given to ensure time performance of the contract.

At that this solution might not have been reached but for an occurrence which might be called almost providential.

While the outcry against the municipal authorities for proposing the taking of the Commons was at its height the "y" pipe which connected the two trunk mains on Western avenue which supplies the city, broke, about four o'clock in the morning, making it impossible to get at the shut off until the reservoir containing three million gallons on Bond's Hill had been drained dry, the city being left without a drop of water for any purpose for five hours. Then it was realized that the time for dilly-dallying was past and action followed.

The expert engineers figured that the proposed new shed will yield as much water as the three at West Gloucester combined. The basin itself will impound 250,000,000 gallons of water.

With this prospective large amount in storage summer residents and others as well will be assured as long as they come here of an ample supply under any adverse condition. Further, it is in-

THE NEWS

By Lucille Todd Elwell

Angus MacNeil lived, when ashore, with his little family in a tenement house on a Gloucester side-street. He was a Nova Scotian, tall, slender and young looking for his sixty years. Angus could neither read, write, nor swim; accomplishments sometimes lacking in men who sail on Gloucester fishing boats.

During the winter, and through the bad weather of early spring, Angus usually stayed ashore, mending nets and doing odd jobs about the wharves. He preferred to ship with the same captain year after year—a man of fine reputation among the fishermen, Captain Walen. He seldom departed until April, when he gathered his crew and went to the Banks for cod.

One fine February day Angus went home for his noon meal to be informed by his wife that he had had a telephone message. "Captain Walen, himself, it was," said Mrs. MacNeil. "There's a grand lot of halibut out on the shoals and he's for gittin' 'em. He says he wants you to go but I told him I didn't know as you was fixin' to go out yet awhile. Don't be goin' till after the winter storms, Angus. You said you wouldn't, and you don't need to. There's money enough in the bank until spring."

Angus looked about anxiously, for his daughter, Annie. She was his most cherished possession. Tall and slender, like her father, she had also his beautiful kind, blue eyes and slow, gentle speech.

"Annie, girl," he said, when she came into the kitchen, "Walen wants me to go out with him. I guess I'd better go. Can you make out here?"

Annie looked at her mother and hesitated.

Mrs. MacNeil was crippled with rheumatism. She sat in a chair all day, and was lifted back to bed at night. Her cruelly knotted fingers could perform a few simple tasks which Annie gently allotted to her.

"If Angus goes out for the fishin' there'll be the fires," the older woman reminded Annie, "and ashes. Yes, and

THE LITTLE THEATRE

The Little Theatre on Rocky Neck opened its doors to the public on Friday night last, with a presentation of Ibsen's "Little Eyolf." Although one of the great master's lesser known plays, it is typically Ibsen, treating as it does the dignity and worth of human nature. Having lost their child, little Eyolf, in the necessary process for development of dignity and worth in their own natures, Mr. and Mrs. Allmers, the parents, redeem themselves in the assumption of the responsibility of other maimed and tortured children.

Mr. and Mrs. Allmers, played by Anthony Alving and Sarah Ellen Glass, are the two characters about whom the entire action centers. Mr. Alving and Miss Glass are to be commended for their truly remarkable portrayal of such difficult characters. Peggy Leland, as little Eyolf, interpreted the part with skill and understanding.

May Sarton as Asta Allmers, half sister to Alfred, M. L. Stevens as Engineer Borgheim, and Mary Forbes as the Rat-Wife, all gave splendid performances.

Next week the students at the Theatre School will present three one-act plays. "Rose Windows," "Miracle of Saint Anthony," and "Portrait of a Gentleman in Slip-pers."

ground of deeper hues, make her painting particularly effective.

Decidedly worthy of note is F. L. King's, "A Bit of Old Rockport." The shadowing in this picture is well done, the contrast between light and dark being its most striking feature.

Among others of interest are W. H. S. Pearce's, "The Pond," "Trout Brook in Vermont," by H. Boylston Dummer, Henry Curtis Ahl's "On the Way to the Beach," and Anthony Thieme's "The Wave."

The exhibition of sculpture, though small in comparison, shows merit in that domain. Anna Coleman Ladd's figure of "The Dancer" in bronze is exquisite. Other exhibitors are Charlotte O. Coues, Gertrude C. Fosdick, Frederick H. Morton, and Karl F. Skoog.

In the field of etchings, George Wainwright Harvey is without peer. His group on display at the exhibition is a fine expression of the man who so nobly enriched the entire field of art with his splendid work. A group by Anthony Thieme, done in black and white, shows distinction as do two sea studies by John Cook.

Among the little pictures, the showing of which will continue until September 15, were noted more dunes by Henry Ahl, studies of Bass Rocks and Eastern Point by Antimo Benduce, two still lifes by William C. Carney, and a lovely harbor scene by Enneking. Amanda Hawks' pictures of Honolulu and Waikiki

GLOUCESTER SOCIETY OF ARTISTS

The twenty-second exhibition of the Gloucester Society of Artists opened on July 5.

The first showing has brought forth a rather remarkable collection of paintings. Margaret Fitzhugh Browne's "The Village Postman," shows especial merit in characterization, while J. Eliot Enneking's "Potter's Dock" is a splendid study in Mr. Enneking's own particular style.

An interesting study of still life is Eleanor Curtis Ahl's picture which she has named, "An Arrangement." The gorgeous colors in her flowers, the blue of the larkspur, the red of the rose, with back-

STIRRING DRAMA AT STAGE FORT ENACTED IN 1625

In 1625, five years before Boston was thought of and Salem was unknown, Gloucester was a thriving settlement, two years old, with 350 men population and six ocean-crossing fishing craft made the place a permanent base. It was the first and only metropolis in the Bay colony.

the same errand. For in those days codfish, used largely as a ration for armies continually at war, was gold. In 1624 Hewes sailed into Gloucester Harbor and set up his stage on the rocky hillock, a natural miniature Gibraltar as is apparent, and began the business of fishing.

The "Charity" anchored off Half Moon Beach, one of the fleet of three ships sent over in 1623 by the Dorchester Company to found a plantation at Cape Ann.
From a painting by Alexander G. Tupper.

In that year a stirring drama was being enacted in Fisherman's Field, now Stage Fort Park. The Dorchester colonists had come over in 1623, set up their house and stage and had shipped their catch to Bilboa and other ports. But they were not alone. A number of independent companies including one from the west of England under Captain Hewes or Hughes were bent on

The Pilgrims at Plymouth claimed the territory of Cape Ann under their patent and when Governor Bradford heard of Hewes' coming he sent Myles Standish in a ship over the bay with a company of armed men to drive the interloper out. When he sailed into the harbor Hewes had returned from a fishing voyage and surmising Standish' errand threw up defences of earthworks and fish hogsheads and determined to hold his ground.

Standish came on with his men and bade Hewes capitulate. But Hewes and his crowd were of the same half-piratical type, stern stuff, that feared no man on sea or land and they laughed Standish to scorn and bade him come on. Standish paused. To send on his men meant their slaughter. The Dorchester colonists were lined up looking on. At this juncture Roger Conant, Governor of the Dorchester colony, saved the situation by proposing a compromise which virtually left Hewes as he was, in possession of his stand, Standish returning to Plymouth to report to Bradford who relates the incident briefly.

This episode was made a central feature in the big tablet erected in the rock there in 1907. Here, then, is the first fortification ever built in Massachusetts. It has been manned in every war, colonial and United States, with the exception of the Great War of '14-'19. In 1743 it was repaired against the French. In 1775 it was manned when Captain Linzee sailed into the harbor. In 1812 it was manned by two companies and here many of the townspeople gathered and watched with bated breath and sorrowing hearts the historic battle between the Chesapeake and the Shannon and saw the former towed by Eastern Point to Halifax. In 1861 it was manned against the Confederate threat to wipe out seacoast New England—they destroyed about a dozen of our fishing vessels on Georges Banks only 145 miles away and in the Spanish War Cervera's fleet, reputed to be headed for the New England coast, caused a battalion to be stationed there. Surely it looked as if the town was due for action in all these cases. In the Great War the enemies' subs got quite near and destroyed a number of our fishing craft right off Chatham. But a short dash across the bay to Gloucester? the only nursery of fishermen for the American navy — five hundred naval volunteers, both in the Spanish and Great Wars.

Surely this ancient landmark in which more than three centuries of Gloucester men have pledged their lives to defend this ancient fishing town is worthy of preservation. To allow it to go to wrack and ruin would be to convict the town of lack of patriotism. Macaulay in treating of the deeds of fortitude surrounding an ancient fortress besieged alluding to its preservation with a cannon which did much execution on the enemy has this to say.

"It is impossible not to respect the sentiment which indicates itself by these tokens. It is a sentiment which belongs to the higher and purer part of human nature and which adds not a little to the strength of states. A people which takes no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by remote descendants."

And this is so. During the Spanish War the garrison filled the ancient embrasures. The conservation committee of Lucy Knox Chapter, D. A. R., of this city as its contribution to the State Tercentenary has undertaken to preserve and restore this most ancient fortification. To this end it has solicited funds and needs several hundred dollars more. Work will be commenced immediately and it is hoped to have it finished in time for dedication on Gloucester Day some time late in August. Mayor John E. Parker is enthusiastically forwarding the plan and the Park Commission is also co-operating.

Those in sympathy with the design are invited to make any contribution to Mrs. George E. MacDonald, treasurer of Lucy Knox Chapter, D. A. R., which will be acknowledged in the press.

Note—A cut of Stage Fort, from a rare photo taken in 1862, was to accompany this article, but through some misadventure in the mail did not reach the printing office in time for insertion. Perforce its publication must be deferred to a future issue.

GEORGE WAINWRIGHT HARVEY

The death in June of George Wainwright Harvey removes one of the Gloucester born artists who achieved prominence in the world of art.

He early showed a talent for painting, receiving instruction from the best of American artists of his time which was supplemented by a prolonged course of study abroad, especially at the Hague where he studied under some of the foremost Dutch masters.

Returning, his works early attracted attention as they were exhibited in the leading art centers of the country, at the St. Botolph's Club, Boston, where he was a regular exhibitor; in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other centers. A number of his works hang in the Congressional Library at Washington and on the walls of art connoisseurs.

He was contemporary with William M. Chase, George Dureneek, Jerome Elwell, and others of that Cape Ann coterie of young men who have risen in the artistic world. A man of fine grain he wrote a number of poems characterized by depth of feeling and lofty sentiment.

He was a member of the New York Water Color Association, the Gloucester Society of Artists, the North Shore Society, and others. He married Martha Rogers who survives him. For the past 20 years he made his home at his studio-cottage, River road, Annisquam.

MAGNOLIA

Green Gables, the popular dine and dance place of the North Shore, has opened its doors for another season under the management of Mr. D. J. Liddell of Boston. Mr. Liddell comes to Magnolia with a wealth of experience in his particular line, and Green Gables, under his management, promises a lively season.

BASS ROCKS

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rotan of Waco, Tex., parents of Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, have taken the Brumbach bungalow for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Gorham P. Sargent who opened their cottage recently for the season are entertaining Mrs. Julia Wallace and Miss Matilda Wallace of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fuller of Worcester have opened their Bass Rocks cottage, "Krossanes," for the season and have had as recent guests, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Fuller and daughter, Winnifred, also of Worcester.

Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Jr., entertained during the week Mr. and Mrs. George Siedler of Haverford, Penn.

BROWN, 3D, WINS TRIANGLE BERTH

The sail-off to dissolve the tie for third berth aboard the Triangle, which will represent the Eastern Point Club in the Junior North Shore championship races at Marblehead next week, proved the most interesting race of the contests this season.

For the first time the wind came off the land, with a good 12-knot strength and smoothing the bay.

The course was from Quarry Cove, turning the Breakwater into open water and a run to the southern mark, a dead beat up the bay to the western mark off Kettle Island with the wind over the quarter on the homing leg. Both got away on fairly even terms and squared for the southern mark with booms well off. Kitmer, sailed by William G. Brown, 3d, rounded the stake by about 30 seconds over Injun, with Henry D. Sleeper at the tiller and on the broad reach home made the goal three seconds to the good.

MAGNOLIA

MR. AND MRS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND motored from New York to Lookout Hill, Monday, and the National Ensign will fly from the tower of their home until late in the fall. Extensive additions and improvements have been added to the place since it was closed in November. The Sawyer homestead and grounds on the southwest side of the hill have been purchased and thrown into the crest of the hill occupied by the Hammond house and the entrance has been shifted to the bottom of the hill as used by the Sawyers. A massive stone wall some twelve feet high has been built near the roadside crest in order to deaden the sound of passing trucks.

John Hays Hammond, Jr., recently made a generous offer to throw open his museum in his recently constructed house at Norman's Woe Cove to the public under certain restrictions. He has accumulated a valuable collection of medieval and modern works of art of various kinds and the discriminating public will appreciate the privilege of inspecting these treasures.

Mrs. A. F. MacArthur of New York is again making the Winslow cottage in Hesperus avenue her seashore home.

Mrs. Charles Penhallow of Beverly has come for another season to Penhallow cottage, Magnolia avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmand Heard and Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Heard of Louisburg square, Boston, have opened their Norman's Woe road cottage for another season.

Courtenay Guild and sister, Miss Sara Louise Guild, have come to Red Gables cottage for the summer.

Dr. Mary D. Dakin of Boston has opened "Afterglow," her Fuller avenue summer home. With her is her daughter, Marjorie, of the National Red Cross staff. She will be joined in August by another daughter, Mrs. Lisle Burroughs of Washington.

Mrs. William Baxter Closson of Newton has come to her cottage in Field road for the summer.

George E. Schenck and family of 969 Park avenue, New York, have returned to their cottage in Hesperus avenue for the season.

Mrs. Pierpont E. Dutcher of Milwaukee will not occupy her Hesperus avenue cottage this season but will spend the season at Duxbury.

Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard of St. Louis passed away during the winter. She had been coming here for more than 35 years.

Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick of St. Louis has come to "Stonehurst," her Shore road summer home, for the season.

Walter Shields, Jr., and family of Ridgewood, N. J., are occupying "Normandy," their summer home in Norman's Woe road.

Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, Jr., of Philadelphia and family are again occupying "Wadsworth Cottage" in Oakes field.

Mrs. J. Harrington Walker of New York and family are at "Rockledge," Shore road, for the season.

Richard Halsey and family of Boston are among the cottagers here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ruby of Boston are this season's occupants of the Bal-lou bungalow in Lake road.

Daniel C. Muldowney and family of Boston who purchased the Curry estate near Norman's Woe two years ago, are occupying the house for the season. Mr. Muldowney is making extensive improvements to the pier near the town landing which went with the Curry property.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kitfield of Wallingford, Conn., who purchased the Bill cottage abutting Crescent Beach last season, took occupancy of the place last week.

At Hesperus Villa

Among the week's guests at Hesperus Villa in Magnolia were noted Mrs. Alice L. Tinkem, Miss M. E. Bradley and Mrs. S. R. Taylor of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Small of Brookline; Mrs. E. W. Goodrich and Miss Helen E. Goodrich of Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. L. E. Washburn of Philadelphia.

Miss Margaret S. Wilson of New York is a recent arrival at Hesperus Villa. Miss Wilson returned on the S. S. Corona from a European tour on June 29.

Mr. and Mrs. David B. Armstrong, cottagers at Magnolia, entertained a luncheon party of four at Hesperus Villa recently.

Mr. Carbone of Boston and Magnolia entertained a dinner party of six at Hesperus Villa during the past week.

Oceanside Hotel

Guests at the Oceanside, Magnolia, this season include Mr. John W. Belcher, Miss Edith Belcher Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Warner, Mrs. E. M. Binney and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Crocker of Boston; Mrs. W. P. Tams of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. David Loring of Waban; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Berliner and children of Larchmont, N. Y.; Miss Elizabeth Berg, Mrs. A. F. MacArthur and Mr. A. Raymond Brown of New York; Mrs. H. H. Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stead of Philadelphia; Miss Cecil Gordon of Louisville, and Miss Elizabeth Risser of Rome, Italy.

Miss Mary Nimmo Black, the noted bridge authority, whose name is well known to radio bridge fans, is listed among the week's arrivals at the Oceanside.

At the Oceanside: Miss Lucy Eaton, Miss Clara E. Fuller, Mrs. William H. Raymond and Miss Nellie Wygatt, Boston; Judge and Mrs. William C. Hungerford, New Britain; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hunnime, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Edwin Coombs, Short Hills, N. Y.; Professor and Mrs. Charles D. Hazen, New York City.

Notice to Water Takers

The use of hose and sprinklers is strictly forbidden. This applies to both meter and fixture takers. The use of water for commercial purposes is alone excepted.

The public is further urgently requested to stop all leaks and waste of water during this period of shortage in order that available supplies be conserved in every way possible.

The co-operation of all citizens is earnestly requested for the public good.

BOARD OF WATER COMMISSIONERS OF CITY OF GLOUCESTER.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dwelly of Boston have returned to the Oceanside for another season.

Miss Mary Landon Hopkins of New York City is spending the summer at the Oceanside. Miss Hopkins comes to Magnolia from Washington, having spent the greater part of the winter in Savannah.

Del Monte's has taken on its wonted atmosphere of life and social pleasure. Del Monte's, fronting the far-famed Norman's Woe in the most beautiful section of the North Shore Riviera, is one of the international institutions of its kind. Here one meets about everybody who is "anybody" in the social, commercial and diplomatic life of this section of New England.

Noticed entertaining there recently were:

Mr. R. W. McKay of Swampscott and party of 8.

Mr. B. K. Filer of Swampscott and party of 8.

Mr. Calvin Favorite of East Gloucester and party of 6.

Mr. A. T. Reyburn of East Gloucester and party of 20. Mr. Reyburn entertained his party during the evening with several exceptionally well rendered Russian folk songs.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Bigelow of Magnolia and party of 12.

Mr. John Amory of Beverly Farms and party of 6.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy of Manchester and party of 6.

Miss Kate Gray of Bass Rocks was hostess to party of 24.

Mr. George P. Erhard of Boston and party of 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvan T. Simonds and party of 8.

Mr. Henry F. Woolfe of Swampscott and party of 8.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kitfield of Wallingford, Ct., and party of 6.

July 19 is the day of the Rainbow Fete at Blynman Farm, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, for the benefit of the Boston Children's Friend Society of Boston. Mrs. Harold G. Cutler of Swampscott, is the chairman of the fete committee. Mrs. Walter M. Evatt of Swampscott is in charge of bridge. Mrs. Harry B. Duane of Manchester is chairman of the cake and candy table and Mrs. Harry B. Duane, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Jones and Mrs. Otis Weld Richardson will assist her. The various tables are in charge of the following:

A program for the summer months planned by the entertainment committee of the club includes beach sports on July 16; a field day on July 23; a tennis tournament on July 28; a tennis picnic on July 30; a clambake on August 7, more beach sports on August 14; games and a corn roast on August 20, and swimming races on the morning of August 30.

EAST GLOUCESTER

THE SEASON is away to a good start as is evidenced by an examination of hotel registers. Hotels that live build up a clientele that return year after year and bring their friends. Few ever transfer their loyalty. Summer sojourners may be divided into two classes, those who own their own homes at the shore and those who prefer to have the hotel management take over their housekeeping worries just as they do in winter in the big cities. The greater part of these latter who come to the North Shore appear to have gravitated to East Gloucester, the popularity of which steadily increases.

The Rockaway: Miss Elizabeth Muldoon, Arthur Hammond and Miss Marjorie Sellers, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Winch, Mrs. W. L. Mowll and son, Cambridge; Miss Margaret MacIver, John MacIver, Miss Francelia E. Holmes, Brookline; Raymond E. Hanson, Melrose; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. ### BASS ROCKS

THE CURTAIN RAISER here has been the dinner dance and fireworks following at the club house and the usual program was followed this season, sans the fireworks, on account of the excessive dry spell and the danger from fire. The function was under direction of the woman's committee and the occasion was highly enjoyable.

Friends almost of a lifetime who have been coming to East Gloucester and Bass Rocks for nearly forty years are, for the first time, absent from this section of the colony. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Loftus, the former for many years secretary to the Siamnese embassy at Washington and, for the past two years counsellor to the embassy, will not return this season. Mr. and Mrs. Loftus came when comparatively young to the Hawthorne Inn, taking a prominent part in the social life of the colony, later removing to the Bass Rocks section, always evincing a lively interest in matters social and of benefit to the colony. Mr. Loftus retires under the age limit of the diplomatic service. Eventually he plans to return to his native land, England, but this may not be before his two sons, Roderick and Reginald, complete courses in the universities in which they are now enrolled. Roderick was the recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Little at their Eastern Point summer home. He will stay at Cove Villa for the summer.

As long as Mr. and Mrs. Loftus were in summer residence, the Siamnese embassy made their home here in the heated term, and they have been likable, democratic fellows, the pick of their country's young men, the most of them being Oxford men. Among them were some young fellows who played as sharp a game of tennis as any in the colony and they were keen yachtsmen, and apt students of the game. The embassy will pass the summer at Lake George.

The Siamnese embassy will this season shift inland and will spend the season at Lake George. Prince Ajah Charabandu, 14-year-old nephew of the Queen of Siam, who was with the legation at Bass Rocks last year, has been in the Boston City Hospital where he has been under observation for a leg infection caused by a scratch. The wound has yielded to treatment and the latter part of the week the Prince will be on his way to a boy's camp in Maine where he is planning to spend the summer.

Mrs. Joel P. Glass and daughter Sarah Ellen, of Mt. Pleasant road, will sail next week for an extended tour of England and the continent, and plan to remain well into the spring before their return. Miss Glass, who will study dramatics abroad, was a graduate of the Gloucester High School in June. Mr. Glass will join them later, being detained in order to finish literary work.

The Moorland: Ida Macauley, A. R. Dorman, Miss M. S. Goepfer, Mrs. John S. Bussing, Miss H. G. Voorhees, Miss Elizabeth Jenkins, Mrs. Banyer Ludlow, Misses Sarah K. and K. D. Williams, New York City; Mrs. S. M. Kinney, Groton-on-Hudson; Mrs. Frederick Held, E. B. Held and Mr. Frank B. Held, Buffalo; Charles Burnham, Wilton, Conn.; Mrs. Bartow Van Ness, Baltimore; D. H. G. Barbour and family, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Grubb, Haverford, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. John L. Porter, Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Clyde A. Case, Miss Edith Case, Cleveland; Mrs. Frank Rogers, Mrs. Belvedere Brooks, Montreal.

Hotel Thorwald: Mrs. L. G. VanZandt, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. John Lynch, New Rochelle; Josephine Smith, Westfield; Mrs. Eva Heminway and daughter of Framingham; Mr. and Mrs. Blauvelt, Patterson; Mrs. G. F. Vreeland, Summit, N. J.; Commodore and Mrs. Stahr, Mrs. Thomas Casey, Mrs. C. D. Fowler, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Fleisher, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Berthold Lanfer, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cormie, Delmar, Cal.; Misses Mary and Margaret Patte, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Royal Cluxton, Mrs. John Lyman, Mrs. Prescott Robinson, Mrs. F. J. Tees, Miss J. R. Bonnel, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wood, Mrs. Lorne Webster and daughter, Westmount, Montreal.

The George P. Bagbys of Baltimore have leased the Howard Brown house on Page street for the season.

Mr. F. W. Hodges and family of Detroit have taken the Southgate cottage for another season.

EASTERN POINT

WE UNDERSTAND that an appeal has been taken by the petitioners who were denied what they asked in the matter of the estoppel of the camp builders at Farrington avenue so, for all practical purposes and until such time as the higher courts may review the case, the matter remains as is.

Bishop Philip Rhinelander of Pennsylvania, and family have come to their Eastern Point summer home "Dogbar" for the season.

Harry H. Walker and family of Boston have returned to "El Nido" cottage for another season.

Walter W. Duffett, Jr., and family of Brookline have the Reed cottage for another season.

Colburn Smith and family of Boston are occupying their cottage at Blueberry ledge.

John J. Pew with Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Parmenter have come to their summer home "Pennrhyn" for the season.

Frederick G. Hall of 260 Beacon street, Boston, are at "Stoneacre," fronting the harbor, at Eastern Point.

Mrs. W. A. Taft of Arlington and family have opened "Balmaha" cottage for another season's stay.

Pan C. Athas and family of Boston are occupying their cottage near Niles Beach purchased by them several seasons ago.

Henry D. Sleeper of Boston has opened "Beauport," his summer home fronting Gloucester Bay.

Mrs. Norman McLeod of Boston, who has occupied the Bemo cottage at Eastern Point for several seasons past, has leased the W. J. Atwood house on the moors for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Atwood were in Europe intending to make a stay well into the autumn when the ill health of Mrs. Atwood necessitated their return.

W. Jay Little and family are at their summer home near Bemo ledge. During the winter Mr. Little has built a

Mr. Little has just purchased the Reed & Gamage house, so-called, which he has had removed to a site on his Grapevine road holding which will be improved during the fall for summer occupancy.

The house near Mrs. Farrell's, formerly owned by the Rotans, has been purchased by Mrs. Farrell for occupancy by her daughter. A feature of this property is a well located swimming pool.

THE ROCKPORT SHORE

ROCKPORT is going to observe the Tercentenary year during the summer with various forms of observance. Today (Saturday), there will be open house in the museum of the Sandy Bay Historical Society from two to six o'clock with museum and refreshments. This museum is in the second floor of the old High School building and during its short period of existence a fine and really worthwhile collection of articles pertaining to the ancient annals of this part of the cape have been donated and assembled. There is no admission. Included in this collection is a valuable collection of historical works pertaining to the town and cape. The really big thing in this especial connection is the reproduction by Professor Marshall Saville of New York and Rockport of Rev. John White's "Planters Plea," written about 1630 and republished several times in this country. The copy from which the facsimile was produced was from one of the few complete specimens now in the possession of E. Archer Huntington of New York and San Francisco.

The principal celebration of the society will be on Thursday, August 16, both afternoon and evening, when there will be a dedication of historical tablets with a band and procession. Open house and a band concert will follow at the museum and in the evening there will be a grand rally with a business meeting, historical address, papers and an address by Professor Robert P. Rogers of M. I. T., whose topic will be the "Puritans."

An appreciated improvement is the recently constructed macadam roadbed in the Land's End section.

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Bass of Greenwich, Conn., have opened their summer home on the Headlands for July stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Thayer of Boston have taken an apartment in the Joseph W. Thibeault house, in Main street, for the season.

Rockport Lodge, conducted by the Massachusetts League of Girls' Clubs, opened its 26th season for girls and young women last week.

Headquarters of the league is at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, 264 Boylston street, Boston.

The lodge can accommodate 60 persons. It is in a spacious and shady

IT WILL be good news to the people of the Leonard street and the western part of Bay View to learn that the gas company is to extend its mains to that territory.

The work will not be begun until the end of the season; even if it were probably it would not be finished in time for gas to be available this season.

Mrs. Ardella Hyatt and daughter, Mrs. Harriet Hyatt Mayor and family of Princeton, N. J., came early in June to "Seven Acres" for the season.

The Edmund D. Cooks of Westover, Penn., arrived last week for the season at the "Millrace," the picturesque Hodgkins tide grist mill converted into a riverside dwelling.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Worcester of Winchester have returned for the season to their Norwood's Heights cottage.

Commodore and Mrs. Harry H. Wiggin of Brookline were among the June arrivals. Their summer home is on Norwood's Heights.

Samuel Usher and family whose cottage "Hillside," is in the Norwood's Heights section, have opened their house for the season.

Mrs. Washington B. Trull of Berkeley street, Boston, has opened her home in Leonard street for the season.

R. Russell Smith and family of Gloucester came early in June to their seashore home, "Sidelights," on Wigwam Point.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rice of New Haven are established in their cottage, Cambridge avenue.

Daniel Howard Woodbury and family of Littleton have opened their cottage in the Diamond Cove colony for the summer.

George C. Andrew and family of Marlborough street, Boston, have come to Willow cottage, Cambridge avenue, and will remain until late in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Hight of Brookline have returned to their place on Adams Hill. For several seasons past they have occupied their farmstead laid out in the English manner in the Dennison hill section.

Ralph T. Hale and family of Winchester are at the Jewett cottage, River road, for the season.

Miss Margaret Fitzhugh Browne of Beacon street, Boston, has returned to "Cove House" studio, River road.

Rufus C. Cushman, Jr., and family of Cambridge have, for another season,

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

A Trousseau—Anne and Marcia—Broken Engagement—And Another

"Did you ever see such marvelous linens?"

The speaker was Peggy. The girls had gathered at the home of Sylvia Dane, a bride-to-be of the near, near future, for luncheon and bridge. Luncheon had already taken place, but bridge, evidently, was to be indefinitely postponed. Linens took precedence over everything. And especially these particular linens from the trousseau house of America, the Grande Maison de Blanc. There were sheets and pillow cases with the most exquisite embroidery, and other sheets and pillow cases, equally lovely, made beautiful with lace in edging and medallion.

There were sheets and pillow cases in the delicate pastels, and others in pure white with applique in color. Most beautiful of all were those of the softest crepe de chine with embroidery and Flemish lace. And when there had come an end, finally, to the linens, there were the daintiest of lingerie pillows made of filet lace, Point de Venice, and old Normandy peasants' caps!

Small wonder that Peggy exclaimed in admiration. Sylvia flushed with pleasure at their so obvious delight in her lovely things.

"I must show you my newest gift," she told them. "It only came this morning, and I'm simply mad about it."

In an adjoining room where tables and stands were literally laden with beautiful gifts, she showed them her "newest gift," an old Wedgewood dinner set, white, with a patrician border, and scenic center in green. There seemed to be a different center for each dozen pieces, each one exquisite in line and color.

"Ovington's, I'll bet my hat," Peggy whispered to Joan, and Joan nodded in agreement.

One particular table bore a set of dinner plates in brilliant black glass, with sterling silver mountings, the borders embossed, hand pointed in gold. Then there was a dainty coffee set in the same black, the saucer being the solid color, while the crystal cup had only the handle and band at the top of gleaming black. To complete this picture, in the center of the table was an oval black glass center bowl with an exquisite rambler decoration of sterling silver. This was matched by a pair of graceful candlesticks. All were unmistakably Richard Briggs'.

"Where's the honeymoon to be, Sylvia?" asked Gay. "Or is it a secret?"

"Oh, no," laughed Sylvia, "it's no secret. I couldn't keep it if it were! We're going abroad for a year, and can you believe it! Dave made all arrangements for the trip right here in Gloucester!"

"How?" demanded Peggy. And, "Where?" chorused Joan and Gay.

"Through Bott Brothers, who are accredited representatives of all steamship lines—Raymond Whitcomb, Thomas Cook and Sons—"

"Joy!" exclaimed Marcia. "Then I shan't have to go into the city at all to make arrangements for my trip this fall!"

Peggy looked at her in astonishment.

"You hadn't told me you were going abroad this fall," she said, accusingly.

Marcia flushed. "Well—you see—" she faltered.

"Hello, in there," called a voice which was not at all difficult to identify as Chubby's. "Would anybody in there care for a chocolate frappe at Barker's?"

Peggy groaned. "That boy," she informed the group, "will be the death of me. Here I am trying to lose a pound or two, struggling valiantly as only a too plump lady can, and he breaks down all my defenses and good resolutions with his constant insistence on 'just a bite of lunch at Towle's' or 'just a cup of tea at Vera's', and I always, always succumb."

"Are you coming or not?" asked Chubby, who had appeared during Peggy's lamentation. "If not, there are other ladies just as fair and perhaps not as—not as—"

"Chubby Winton, don't you dare say it!" commanded Peggy. "I'll go with you, just this once—" and off they

Cottage Pewter

PEWTER belongs to the country cottage! Its quaint charm, its varied service, its immunity from constant care and cleaning are but three of its splendid virtues. To these Ovington's adds a fourth commendation . . . the attraction of modest prices.

went, still arguing about matters pertaining to appetite and figure.

Before the others took their departure, Sylvia invited them to a dinner party at Del Monte's the next evening, and the girls immediately engaged in a discussion of "what to wear."

"Marcia's the lucky one," announced Gay. "She's a brand new gown to wear. In fact, she has a choice of two. I saw her buying them at Manahan's this morning. Which will you wear, Marc?"

"The flowered chiffon, I think," said Marcia thoughtfully. "I adore its little matching jacket. But perhaps I'll wear my lace dress, after all."

"Oh, wear the chiffon," pleaded Gay. "It's the sweetest thing you ever saw," to the others. "And I'll wear chiffon, too. I've a cunning little turquoise thing I got at Manahan's yesterday. It'll just do."

Soon the group separated, Joan and Gay going off to meet Jimmie and Jack in Gloucester to do the day's shopping at Shepherd's and the First National Store, thence to proceed to the North Shore Theatre to see a particularly good picture that Jack had been raving about for weeks.

Marcia and Anne started back alone towards Peggy's cottage. "Perhaps we'll go for a swim later," suggested Marcia. "But first I've got to get in touch with the Cottage Service people. Aunt Esther's coming next week, and her cottage must be got in order right away."

"Isn't it marvellous to have such an organization right here in town?" Anne enthused. "It relieves one of so much responsibility, and makes arrival a pleasure instead of something to be looked forward to with dread."

"Yes, and more than that," agreed Marcia. "It seems that you can leave things as if you were going off for a day or so and have everything attended to for you."

At the cottage they found that work had been started on Peggy's new tennis court during their absence, and was proceeding smoothly under the expert direction of Swinson Brothers.

"Marcia," asked Anne suddenly, when they were seated on the porch at last, "why are you going off to Europe this fall? I thought you had other plans—"

"Darling, are you quite comfortable?" solicitously, from Marcia. "Come and take this chair by me. It's one of the National House Furnishing Company's best, and the most delightful piece of furniture I ever saw."

"Marcia—"

"And couldn't I tempt you with some of the most delicious orange sherbet you ever tasted? It's Chanticleer, you know, and that speaks for itself. Peggy has it every day. I think ice-cream is the most satisfactory dessert, don't you? It's so easy to serve, and so universally acceptable. And I really think that Chanticleer couldn't be better."

"Marcia, you're incorrigible. Tell me, now, why have you changed your plans?"

Marcia sobered. "It's no use running away from things, is it?" she said, almost to herself. "Here I've come away down here, just to get away from myself. And here I am. At Sylvia's this morning, on impulse, I decided to go to Europe, just to get away from myself. And there I'd be. What am I going to do, Anne? How am I going to get away—from me?"

"Why try?" was Anne's abrupt reply.

"Because I must," came the answer tensely.

"See here, Marcia," asked Anne, after a moment, "what's happened between you and Phil? Oh, don't think I haven't noticed. When I saw you in the spring you were bubbling over with wedding plans and trousseau ideas and travel catalogues. And since you've been here, there hasn't been a word about it all—you mope when you think you're unobserved, you affect an unnatural nonchalance—what foolishness have you two youngsters been up to, anyway?"

"It isn't foolish, Anne," said Marcia with dignity. "We've broken our engagement. That's all."

Season at Eastern Point and Annisquam Gets Underway—Triangles Make Appearance

The yachting season on Cape Ann was formally opened July 4, races at Annisquam and Eastern Point being sailed. The races on both ends of the Cape were sailed in a light breeze, ranging from southeast to east. Very fluky, although holding true throughout.

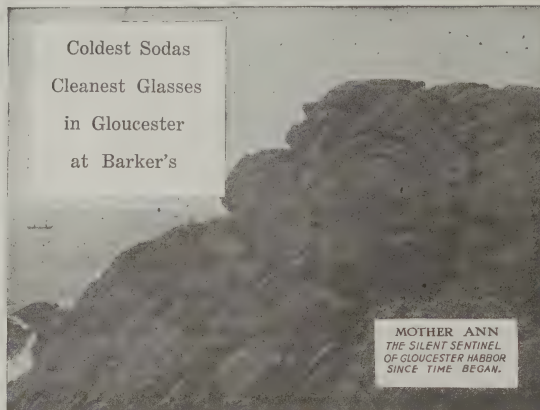

Five classes got away at Annisquam, a class of triangles being an added feature this year, four boats starting. The course for the larger classes included a run to the Essex mark, a close reach to the outer buoy and a close haul home although in the river the wind came dead ahead and headed the boats somewhat.

Russell Smith, sailing the triangle Goblin, had the honor of winning first the initial race of these boats.

Wind conditions were not such as to give much of a line on the new comers. With free sheet the quartette in this class sailed remarkably, even reaching the Essex mark practically at the same time. On the reach to the outer mark Goblin made an inch by inch gain on Scalene stretching it to 15 seconds on the beat to the finish line.

In the 15-footer class the contest was between Sherburne Wiggan in the Hoorah and Dan Woodbury in the Nisan. Hoorah slipped around the Essex mark with a half minute lead. Nisan kept off in the bay wind hunting on the haul to the outer mark, but with no luck, losing somewhat by the move. From that time on Hoorah gradually stretched out her margin.

In the fish class, Sailfish was in the van until the fleet got into open water, when Albert Hale in the Flying Fish drew up and passed the Hill boat just before

EASTERN POINT Y. C., JULY 4

Initial Race a Fizzle Owing to Lack of Wind — R Class New Comers

Twenty-two boats in five classes started at Eastern Point Independence Day, this being the opening of the season there, but only one of the classes, the Cape Cod knockabouts, succeeded in finishing. They had a short course inside the outer harbor.

The course for the big boats was to Kettle Cove, there to the Eastern mark and home. Taja of the new R class and Hevella, Vim, and Shamrock were the only boats to reach the buoy off the Eastern Shore and Hevella on the close haul across stretched it out to more than a mile. The rest were hopelessly becalmed outside the breakwater. The summary:

EASTERN POINT, JULY 5

A light southeasterly breeze hardly four knots in strength prevailed along the coastline July 5. An attempt was made to resail Friday's unfinished race Saturday morning at Eastern Point, but owing to lack of wind it was unsuccessful.

In the hope of making a race of it Saturday afternoon the course was shortened to about six miles, designed to be a beat and a run back, the weather mark being set about 2 3-4 miles due south of Eastern Point light.

In the R Class, Bonnie Kate was a little better berthed on the starting line, which was just inside the breakwater, but when outside Taja pulled up and away making off for the mark on a close haul to port. She held the lead all the way and beat Bonnie Kate almost two minutes.

In the Sonders, Shamrock had the best of the getaway, but just outside the breakwater in open water was overhauled by Tern and Hevella. Hevella stood off to starboard while Tern held to port. Hevella, striking a vein of wind which gave her a slight lead, turned the weather mark first, but the race was not settled until she crossed the line five seconds to the good.

In the Triangle Class, Wiki Wiki established a good lead, but the Black Bess showed her light weather qualities when outside the breakwater, finishing five minutes ahead of Sprite.

The knockabouts sailed the inside harbor course, Maryland winning. The summary:

JULY 5, ANNISQUAM Y. C.

A light wind from the southward, which strengthened at the finish, gave a little better sailing conditions at Annisquam Saturday than Friday.

Interest centered in the new triangle class and Harry Worcester in the Scalene reversed the verdict of Friday, winning out over the Goblin. The advantage at the start was with the Worcester boat, but on the run to Essex hardly three boat lengths separated the two yachts, this being the measure of advantage for the Scalene at the turn.

It was a beam reach to the outer mark, the Goblin gaining about a boat length, Scalene turning first. The homing leg was a close reach to the lighthouse and the Goblin succeeded in getting the weather gage of Scalene. At this juncture the breeze strengthened perceptibly, struck the Scalene first and lifted her out of channel. Thereafter, though pressed, she was not endangered.

In the 15-footers Commodore Wiggin and Dan Woodbury had a nip and tuck battle to the Essex mark, Nisan however, succeeding in slipping inside and getting the advantage of the turn. On the beam reach to the outer mark Nisan strung out a 60-foot lead on Tabasco. Hauling on the wind Nisan retained her early advantage, which she strengthened as the breeze strengthened. Hoorah went into second place in the middle of the bay on the windward leg.

Paul Woodbury on the Flamingo took an early lead and on the two first legs was held fairly well by Tern.

Hauled on the wind the shift in direction gave dead ahead work in which Flamingo made a gain, Oloof, Evelyn Woodbury at the helm, coming into second place.

The Fish and Cat Classes sailed the inside course to Plum Cove and return. The summary:

ANNISQUAM, JULY 6

Intermittent showers of the day let up Sunday afternoon for a sufficient time to allow the yacht races to be sailed to a finish. The wind conditions were the best thus far this season here, the force averaging about 15 knots with a lumpy sea outside. At Annisquam the direction was such as to give the only dead end on work so far this season.

tended to erect a standpipe on the Commons some two hundred feet high which will give an independent pressure head in the city proper so that the city will practically have a dual supply of water, one being in the central section of the cape. In addition, the water board is planning to thoroughly cleanse its present basins of the dead wood and stumps which were allowed to remain when they were constructed. This debris will be collected, burned, and the ashes carted away. In this manner the purity of the water will be more thoroughly assured. It is the plan of the commissioners to use this West Gloucester water in the warm months and as long as possible retaining the Dogtown Commons always in reserve.

The Shore commends the Water Board and the Municipal Council for their wise and prompt action in the face of a calculated clamor actuated in some instances by an attempt to trifle with a serious situation in the hope of making political capital. We believe their judgment and action based on the advice of the engineers well considered and that another season will see their conviction abundantly justified.

THE NEWS

movin' me, too, Annie and ye can't do that without your back hurting."

Still Annie hesitated. She knew that her answer would decide the matter. "Couldn't you wait and go out on his next trip? Come the last of March he'll start for cod. He won't be put out at you. He knows how we're fixed here."

"It's not that," said her father. "There's twelve men picked for this trip and twelve men will go out on the next. If I back down now I'll not be askin' any man to step out of his place for me when spring comes."

"You'd better go," said his daughter. "I can make out here."

So Angus MacNeil sailed out of Gloucester, on February twentieth, on the schooner "Hattie." For three weeks the little household which he left behind in the tenement of four rooms went on with their quiet lives without a word from the husband and father. Annie waited upon her mother, and sometimes with a neighbor's help, she lifted her into a big chair by the kitchen stove. At last there came a postal card from Halifax, written by another member of the crew, but signed with Angus' mark. All were well on board; they had put into Halifax for food and were going out again in a few days to the Grand Banks.

On March the fifteenth the "Priscilla S," Captain Speck, came into Gloucester Harbor at noon. Her crew spread some news about the wharves concerning the "Hattie." "We passed her fishin' at Latitude 44, Longitude 52," said one man, "and we counted her dories layin' out 'round her. One was missin'." That meant illness, death, or a man lost.

"Don't spread this among the women folks for G—s sake," warned the skipper. "There's trouble enough for the women without you fellows swarmin' all over the town with your 'if' and your 'maybes.'"

On March seventeenth the "Jane," Captain Mayhew, came in to port. Again the rumor started that the "Hattie" was one dory short. Sinister little thoughts ran through the heads of the men around the wharves but the news went no further.

March the twenty-second fell on a Sunday. It was a cold, dark, dreary day, with a noisy wind blustering about the houses. Annie MacNeil dressed early and attended early mass. Then she dressed her mother and moved her to the warm kitchen where breakfast was prepared.

"It is a bad day altogether," said Mrs. MacNeil. "Have you heard the people down stairs?" Angus' brother, James, the ship-chandler, lived on the lower floor of the house while Angus' family used the second floor.

"Yes," said Annie, "they were up early. I saw them when I came in from mass. Aunt Maria nodded at me out of the window, but she didn't speak."

The room was silent again but for the singing of the kettle on the hot stove, and the rattling of the rain on the window. At eleven o'clock Annie made her mother a cup of black tea and drank some herself. The girl looked tired and her eyes wore an anxious look.

Suddenly Mrs. MacNeil spoke, "It's queer, Annie, the way that telephone bell rings downstairs. It's been agoin' all day."

"Yes," said Annie.

"And it's queer too," added her mother, "the way none of the people downstairs have been up here today. Most Sundays they's in and out all day."

"Perhaps they have company, mother," said Annie. "I'll get the dinner now."

After dinner was over and the dishes were washed Annie read aloud from the "Saturday Trotter," and soon her mother was asleep, her knotted hands clasped to her chair arms.

Annie got up softly and looked out the parlor windows onto the street. Two men swung down the street and passed into the tenement below her. A man came quickly around the corner of the street on the left and entered the house opposite. The door of that house opened again and the first man came out, accompanied by two others. They all crossed the street and entered her uncle's abode below her. The rain came down more softly now but it was cold and dreary. Annie shivered.

She walked back into the kitchen where her mother still dozed, and, working softly, made a pan of fudge. She opened the back door and stepped out on the porch to place the pan where it would cool. As she lingered for an instant, she saw two women and a man hastening through the now gathering gloom. The women looked up, and saw her, but did not speak. The man waved his hand in a half-hearted fashion, and opening James MacNeil's door, he ushered the women within.

Annie's face grew white and her hands cold. People had been going and coming below her all day. The telephone bell of her uncle's tenement had been ringing at short intervals since early morning. Her own telephone bell had been silent. She had not had a word with her usually sociable relatives. The girl's face was rigid and her legs moved like sticks as she stepped back into the kitchen to face her mother's agonized gaze.

"Annie, girl," said her mother, "Annie, girl, this has been a terrible day! Would you think such a black, dismal Sunday could be?"

"Oh, now mother, don't talk so. I've made some fudge while you were sleeping and we'll have it with our supper. And some of the grand cake that I made yesterday. It's there in the tin. Maybe Aunt Maria and Uncle James and the boys will be up in a minute."

But Annie could comfort only her mother, not herself. A sick, cold wave of fear had gripped her. Why were those people skulking about downstairs? She knew the answer. No—she did not know. It was only her fear. She had nothing to fear—yes, she had. Something black and cold and sick was running all over her body.

Bing! The telephone bell! Annie stepped quickly into the dark parlor and shut the door behind her.

A man's voice said, "Is this Miss MacNeil?"

"Yes."

"Are you alone in the room?"

"Yes."

"This is Mr. Johns speaking," said

he. Annie knew him, a part owner of the "Hattie."

"Miss MacNeil, I am on my way to Boston on the next train or I would come around to see you."

"Yes."

"Your father was swept overboard on the Banks and they couldn't get him."

"Yes, Mr. Johns."

"I am very sorry, Miss MacNeil. I received the news early this morning and I notified James MacNeil. No one had the courage to come and tell you. They have come to ask me to let you know. Can I help you in any way, Miss MacNeil?"

"No, thank you."

Annie opened the door from the dark parlor and entered the bright kitchen. One more Gloucester woman had received the news.

Marcia shook her head. "It's nothing, Anne," she said. "It simply doesn't matter any more."

They sat silently until the whirl of Chubby's motor aroused them.

Peggy, returning, was enthusiastic about the Webber and Sawyer homesteads on Western Avenue, owned by the Pooles of Bond's Hill. These marvellous antique shoppes, according to Peggy, contained everything in furniture that even the most fastidious heart could desire.

"And see what we brought home with us," she hailed Larry Edwards as he appeared on the steps of the porch. "We found him browsing around among the antiques, lost in thought."

"And so would you have been if you'd had the morn'g I did," returned

Larry. "Absolutely everything's gone wrong. I'd a dozen things to do, and haven't done one. Even the bathing suit that I ordered at Earl Phillips' Smart Shop—completely forgotten; to say nothing of the Deauvilles I've planned to buy for weeks at Armstrong's—What a morning!"

"What's wrong, Larry, especially?" Chubby wanted to know.

"Well, you might as well know first as last, I suppose," was his morose reply. "Judith's broken our engagement."

EASTERN POINT

The Bemo Ledge cottage, recently occupied by Mrs. Norman McLeod, was sold by Mr. Little early in the winter to Robert S. Brookings of Washington. Extensive improvements have been made to the property. Mr. and Mrs. Brookings took occupancy this week.

Arthur Bradford Grover and family of New York are again in occupancy of their cottage "Beach End."

The picturesque French stone chateau near the harbor side is again occupied by its owner, Miss Edith Notman of New York.

Miss Myra Tutt of New York who two years ago purchased the Kay cottage at Eastern Point, arrived in June for the season.

Samuel Shriver and family of Baltimore are again occupying the Lewis cottage on the point.

Charles A. Layman and family of Washington have returned to "Barberry Ledge" cottage for the summer. "The Boulders" continues to be the summer home of Spencer Ervin and family of Bala, Penn.

Dean Melancthon W. Jacobus of Hartford and family came early in June to "Cragmoor," their Eastern Point summer home. He is dean of the faculty of Hartford Theological Seminary.

Many of the Eastern Point colony not so many years ago will remember the demure dark-haired little miss, Anne Kinsolving, who, the newspapers announce, is to marry John Nicholas Brown, not so many years ago acclaimed the richest baby in America. Bishop Kinsolving of Virginia and family for five seasons occupied a cottage at Eastern Point and was a familiar figure during the summer, frequently officiating at St. John's Episcopal Church.

When a distinguished Frenchman comes to Boston the chances are that he will enjoy the hospitality of Congressman A. Piatt Andrew at his Eastern Point summer home, Red Roof. Such was the case on the evening of July 3 when M. Jules Henry, charge d'affaires at the French embassy at Washington, an Independence Day orator at Boston, was the guest of honor at dinner at which twelve sat down, among these being Jean Flamand, French consul general at Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Breakenridge

Templeton of Hinsdale, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Constance Templeton, to Frederick William Rhinelander, 2d, son of Right Rev. and Mrs. Philip Mercer Rhinelander of Washington, and who have a summer home on Eastern Point.

It is with sincere regret that the colony along the North Shore heard of the passing of Mrs. Mary Josephine (Ashley) Leonard, wife of Arthur G. Leonard of "Druimteac," Eastern Point and Chicago. Mrs. Leonard was known as a woman of gracious and sympathetic character. An artist of no mean ability, she had a keen interest in and understanding of all that pertains to art. Especially was this shown in her substantial interest in the North Shore and Gloucester Society of Artists' Associations.

Mrs. S. A. Raymond is entertaining at the Ramparts, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Williams, the latter, her daughter and her granddaughter, Molly Williams of Cleveland. Miss Molly is one of the "Point's" prominent yachtsmen, her craft being the Buccaneer.

Miss Madeleine Williams has taken the "Mother Ann" cottage, near the lighthouse, for the season.

John Bowen and family of Boston have taken occupancy of their summer cottage in Nashua avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Breed of West Medford have come to their summer home for a season's sojourn.

Mrs. Charlotte Lawton and Miss Isabella Duguid of the Somerville teaching staff are spending the summer vacation in Lanesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bicknell of Needham have taken occupancy of "Bickledge," at Bay View, for the summer.

Carl Pearson and family of Belmont have come to their cottage in Hillside court for the summer months.

Miss Blanche Dodge of New Boston, N. H., has opened her cottage near Plum Cove for the season's stay.

Miss Alice Steer of Melrose Highlands arrived in June for the season, her cottage being in High street, Lanesville.

Professor and Mrs. Frank Duley of Northfield have come to their summer home, Washington street, Lanesville, and will remain into the middle of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael McEneaney of Lawrence are among the season's cottagers, their home being in High street, Lanesville.

Misses Edith and Helen Dennison of Melrose Highlands were among the June cottage arrivals, their cottage being in Hickory street.

Miss Laura Chard of Melrose has come to her summer residence in Sawyer avenue.

THE ROGERS LECTURES

The first of the course of fine lectures by Professor Robert E. Rogers on "The Puritans—The Legends and Facts," was given before a large and appreciative audience at the First Parish (Unitarian) House, Tuesday. The remaining four in the course will be given Tuesday mornings, at 10, as follows:

July 15—"The Puritans and Our Education."

July 22—"The Puritans and Our Religion."

July 29—"The Puritans and Our Literature."

August 5—"The Puritans and Our Civilization."

MISS ESSEX DANE

Miss Essex Dane who plays the part of Mrs. Jerome Jarvis in "The Dead Game Sport" at the Cape Ann Theatre, adjacent to Turk's Head Inn, Rockport, Mass., is a Sir Henry Irving Medalist for Shakespearean interpretations. She is an Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, London, England, for Diction and Production of the Speaking Voice.

She received her musical and dramatic training in London and Paris.

Her first starring role was "Zaza," in which the celebrated French actress, Madame Rejane, who originated the role, coached her. She married Arthur Lewis, then manager for Bernhardt and her honeymoon was spent at Mme. Bernhardt's own country place, Belle-Isle, on the coast of Brittany.

She has played leading parts with Beerbohm Tree, Henry Miller, George Arliss, and alternated with Edith Wynne Mathison in the original production of "The Servant in the House," Rann Kennedy's play. One of her most talked of successes was "Madame Sabattini," in "The Great Lover," playing opposite Leo Dittrichstein, for two years.

She has just concluded a season in "The Infinite Shoe Black" with Helen Mencken, and returns to New York after playing at Miss Fisher's Cape Ann Theatre, to reopen in "Topaze," at the Music Box Theatre.

The second week of the Cape Ann Theatre season Miss Dane will appear in three of her own plays—one of these, which she is extremely keen about is a dramatic episode of the French Revolution—another, a laughable comedy in the French manner, called "The Wooden Leg."

PATRONS FOR THE CAPE ANN THEATRE

Three classes started at Annisquam. At the start the wind was due south drawing right down the river. The Triangles got away first and in jockeying for advantage Scalene was held too close to the Squam side, the result being that just at the gunfire she grounded. Quick work floated her, but she was penalized about a minute before she got underway. In this class the Gleason brothers, who have graduated to the Triangles, scored a well-sailed win. This gives Goblin, Scalene, and Idol a first each in three starts.

The three leaders got away fairly bunched. Outside in the bay, spinnakers were broken out to port. Idol, making the best of the going, reached the Essex mark five lengths ahead of Bluehill, Goblin and Scalene trailing.

On the broad reach to the outer mark, all but Goblin held to spinnakers, a move of debatable value considering the weather conditions. However, Idol stretched her lead out to seven or eight lengths by the time the outer mark was reached.

The beat home was negotiated in a long hitch to port and a short stretch to starboard to the light-house. Shortly after passing the outer mark, Scalene made a bid for place and mowed down the Bluehill and Goblin, but the Gleason boys were not to be denied and maintained their advantage to the finish.

The Cat and Fish classes sailed the Plum Cove inner mark and return course. In the Cat class, Young Ben Smith, son of R. Russell Smith, again scored making two firsts and one third in three starts.

It was a run to Plum Cove, a reach to the inner mark and a beat home. On the run and reach, Wild Cat and Catspaw led in order. Hauled on the wind, the boats sailing tack and tack, Caterpillar showed superiority in footing and pointing, eating into first place, Kittiwake, in the meanwhile, making a serious threat for the lead.

In the Fish boats, Sailfish led the fleet to Plum Cove inner mark. All but Starfish tacked under the Bay View shore. Skipper Faxon in one of the stern boats took a chance, split tacks and went off to port alone to Essex, landing first money. The summary:

TALBOT TO SKIPPER EASTERN POINT CREW

A series of three races over a five-mile triangle to determine the crew to represent Eastern Point in the North Shore junior championship in the Triangle Class, to be sailed at Marblehead next week, was completed Monday.

In the first trial M. Talbot sailed Injun; W. S. Brown, 3d, the Kitmer; H. D. Sleeper, Cursor; Hastings Gamage, the Trident; and J. L. Stuart, Jr., Black Bess.

In the second heat Cursor was skippered by Talbot, Kitmer by Gamage, Black Bess by Brown, Injun by Stuart and Trident by Sleeper.

In the third Gamage sailed Black Bess, Sleeper the Kitmer, Brown the Injun; Talbot the Trident and Stewart the Cursor.

Two other heats had been previously sailed. As a result the crew was selected, with Talbot with 18 points as skipper, Gamage with 17 as first mate and Sleeper and Brown tied at 15 for third place. As a result there will be a sailoff to break this tie.

EASTERN POINT, JULY 6

Different from the fine breeze prevailing at Annisquam last Sunday afternoon, the conditions off Eastern Point on the southern side of the Cape, produced a light southwest breeze, inclined to soften, with a slight chop to the sea.

Bonnie Kate was the only yacht to show up in the R Class and sailed a solo race.

Five Sonders played for the start, Hevella and Skeezix mixing it for position, Hevella getting the advantage. Much of the race was sewed up right there. It was a broad reach to Kettle Island with Skeezix just astern and always threatening. Shamrock, in the meantime, had kept farther off shore, losing ground. On the broad reach home, Skeezix gained slowly, but Hevella managed to cross the line 10 seconds to the good.

In the Triangle class, Jack Mehlman at the helm of the Black Bess showed his old-time finesse when he grabbed off a win from the Cursor almost on the finish line. Cursor, Quail and Black Bess got the starting fun in order and this relative position was unchanged at the turn at Kettle Island, with Cursor 25 seconds to the good of Black Bess.

This was unchanged when the boats had turned the breakwater and headed for the short home stretch. Here Mehlman got in his work. Engaging Cursor in a luffing match, he succeeded in slipping inside and over the mark by a split second advantage. The Sprite which had trailed last made a final spurt and landed in fourth place. ### NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

$350,000 Appropriated and Site Selected for Custom House and Post Office —Location Meets General Approval

About everybody, be he permanent or summer stranger within the gates, has to do with the post office. Usually it is the first place the latter strikes if only to drop the inevitable postal with the moronic "Wish you were here," etc.

Well, this city is to have a new Federal building and, like the present Federal edifice, it will be custom house and post office combined. An appropriation of $350,000 has been allotted by the national government for the purpose of which $100,000 is for the site, the remainder for the building, so that it will be seen that the proposed building will be a structure of consequence in the local architectural scheme of things.

During the winter government experts have been here and after inspecting various sites have announced a choice. A number of eligible locations were considered all good in their way. Generally such a selection finds a considerable proportion of the populace all het up to a white lather in opposition and denunciation, but in the present instance the selection met with very generally commendation. So far so good.

The selected site is a block adjoining the City Hall, on the north, fronting Dale avenue, where three houses are taken having an aggregate street length of about 300 feet, thence running due east to old India square on the north and from the northern edge of City Hall grounds on the south toward Pleasant street. Thus it will be seen that the proposed structure will have ample ground and frame setting.

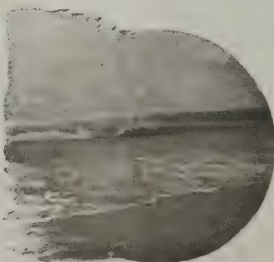

It stands right in the center of a community center of which the City Hall, the new High School, Sawyer Free Library, the Colonial Middle street with the church buildings on all sides as parts of this unit and ensemble. In addition, it is central to the business section, hardly a stone's throw from the present custom house and post office. From the government standpoint it is within short distance of the railroad station.

In conversation with one of the government officials, he stated that it was the aim of the treasury department to design these edifices in keeping with the architectural motif of the various sections so in all probability the new building will harmonize with its other component parts. The material will probably be Indiana limestone as Cape Ann granite is too expensive.

The title to one parcel of these properties is not exactly clear to the satisfaction of the government. An undischarged mortgage, drawn just a hundred years ago, for which no heirs can be found to satisfy, is bothering the government legal talent and to clarify the situation the case will be put into the Land Court. When this mill has ground its grist, construction will be commenced. Perhaps at this time next year construction may be under way.

The present Federal building was built in 1854 as a Custom House. The post office was given the lower floor but the office did not assume much importance until after the Civil War and more especially since letter carrier service was established in 1884. With the increased summer population, fish mail order houses, and parcel post, its business has developed by leaps and bounds. Up to twenty years ago the Custom House ranked seventh in the country in the amount of its foreign imports, and third in the amount of salt imported. It today is a highly remunerative branch of the service, cost of maintenance considered.

"In the life of a nation it is not tonnage but caliber that counts." Rt. Hon. Herbert A. L. Fisher, Oxford, at Tercentenary exercises at Boston, Tuesday.

THAT HARBOR AIRPORT

Suggested Plan for a Long Landing Pier in Gloucester Bay Meets with Objection from Maritime Interests

During the winter the subject of an airport was again under discussion and among the projects to be advanced for consideration was a pier a thousand or more feet long extending into Gloucester Bay from some point in the Fort district. From such a pier planes are to arrive and depart, presumably using the bay as a landing field and takeoff.

But it was immediately obvious that such a solution was out of the question. The entrance to the inner harbor from Ten Pound Island to the Fort is narrow. If one will draw a map of the harbor and throw out a line from the Fort in any direction, taking Ten Pound Island into consideration, it will at once be seen that a dangerous obstruction to navigation will be brought into existence. It is unlikely that state or national government would permit such construction, especially after spending nearly a million in times past in removing obstructions. Such was the reaction of practically the entire fishing interest.

Again the cost! Who is to assume it, estimated at approximately $300,000?

However, a landing port is desirable. Undoubtedly. Where? Now that Dogtown Commons has been taken over as a water shed, that desirable place is, perhaps, eliminated. Just two places are available, the marshland abutting Little Good Harbor Beach or the outer harbor itself. The roadstead the government insists must be kept clear for navigation. Between Ten Pound Island and the Eastern Point Shore is a very desirable stretch. Here a barge with large floats moored to both sides might be brought into requisition and there is a broad expanse of water hardly ever utilized by commercial shipping down to the Pancake shore. But would the Eastern Point colony stand for the noise at all hours of arriving and departing machines? We have our doubts. However, there is nothing to prevent any craft under power or sail, and we presume this applies to sea-planes, from using any waters as long as they observe the rules of the road.

OUR FISHERMEN OUTWARD BOUND

By Horace Melvin Smith

(A Grandson of the Late Capt. Sylvanus Smith)

We men on the land little realize
The dangers of those on the sea,
Nor know of the many great hardships
That fishermen fight for their fee.

For days on the storm tossed waters,
And nights on the billowy main,
They fight for the joy of living,
With hardly a thought of the gain.

Their tasks are as hard as the hardest
And their dangers as bad as the worst,
But their life is a life worth living,
Though their luck they have many times cursed.

When their ship sails out of the harbour,
And the shore fades dimly behind,
They think of their homes and their loved ones,
As they picture them all in their mind.

There may be a mother or sweetheart
Who has bid them a fond farewell,
Or maybe a wife and some kiddies,
Who prays that all will go well.

As the breeze fills the sails very gently,
And the ship towards the open sea glides,
The captain is watching and thinking,
As she rises and dips with the tides.

The men are busily working
With fish hooks and lines all around,
For everything there must be ready
By the time that they reach the "Ground."

Pocatello, Idaho,

GLOUCESTER SCHOOL OF THE LITTLE THEATRE

The splendid performance given by the students at the Little Theatre on Rocky Neck on Friday and Saturday evenings of last week testifies to the ability and adaptability of these young artists in the field of the drama. For many seasons now these young people under the co-direction of Miss Florence Cunningham and Mrs. Florence Evans, have been surprising Cape Ann with their productions, and more especially with their own clever interpretation of chosen vehicles.

Last week's plays were no exception. "Rose Windows," a comedy by Stark Young was ably presented, featuring particularly Charles Edgecombe, one of the school's most delightful actors. "The Miracle of St. Anthony" by Maurice Maeterlinck, always effective and appealing, was well done by the theatre group. Mr. Stevens did a splendid bit of acting in the title role, while Norris Houghton was especially pleasing in the leading part of Milne's "Portrait of a Gentleman in Slippers."

The leading characters in the plays were ably supported by well chosen casts.

CAPE ANN THEATRE

At the Cape Ann Theatre this week, Miss Grace Dothea Fisher is presenting three one-act plays, all by Miss Essex Dane, one of the artists connected with the theatre. The plays are "When the Whirlwind Blows," a powerfully emotional and gripping story, the scene of which is laid in Russia at the time of the Revolution. The parts of the three characters who comprise the cast of the play, are taken by Miss Dane herself, Miss Fisher and Miss Marjorie Moffett.

In the second play, called "The Red Sunset," Miss Dane, Miss Fisher and Mr. Lark Taylor play the roles, while Mr. Robert Williams and Miss Helen Claire play the two characters in the third, an amusing comedy called "The Wooden Leg." All the roles are particularly well taken, with the usual finished skill of this company of prominent artists.

Beginning Tuesday, July 22, Miss Fisher will present "Not Fit to Print," a new satirical comedy bordering on the farce, which is the initial venture into the world of the theatre by Beatrix Demerest Lloyd of Saturday Evening Post fame. In this play, Mr. Frank Ferguson, lecturer, playwright, and actor, will make his

"THE GOOD OLD TOWN OF ROCKPORT"

"The Good Old Town of Rockport," as its citizens delight to call it, has an appealing charm. It is one of the few seacoast towns in Massachusetts in which the native stock predominates. The English language is still heard in Rockport in this Tercentenary year of grace. Its people are self-respecting and hospitable, fine specimens of the old-time Yankees.

Its granite bulwarked shores were early peopled by fishermen, for all who live on Cape Ann must look to the sea for a livelihood. Richard Tarr was the first settler in what was known up to fore that the business of making mooring stones for the fishing boats had flourished. Since that time Cape Ann granite has built some of the finest buildings in the country, navy yards at New Orleans, Norfolk, Washington and New York public buildings, the old Post Office building at Boston, and others. Its paving is the standard of the world for wear. Some fifty years ago visions of a great metropolis fitted across the minds of a number who finally succeeded in impressing the government with the idea and the commencement of a great sea-wall to ena thousand men, mainly the heads of families. Almost overnight a year ago they were shut down and have remained shut and recently have gone under the hammer. The fear is generally expressed that this business also has departed. Let us hope that something may arise to bring a revival.

From the first the town has been noted for its patriotism and energy. It sent a company of men to Bunker Hill. It had forty soldiers and sailors in the Revolutionary War. It repulsed an attack of a landing party from a British blockading squadron in September,

Town of Rockport

1840 as Sandy Bay or the Fifth Parish of Gloucester. In that year the place went off on its own as a town. Ten years from this year it will have reached its hundredth anniversary of incorporation. So Rockporters take notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

Tarr first came to Marblehead and then to Sandy Bay, so-named from the character of its bed. The Tarrs have evidently never believed in race suicide. Quite a number of them are alive today. Ask any of the gentry who run the rum blockade.

Fishing and stone was what they had to turn their hand to. It was not until 1820 that the quarries were opened for commercial purposes although be-close 1,664 acres of water 35 feet deep into which the largest steamers in the world might sail right to the wharves and discharge their cargoes. But some 20 years ago the government gave up the job after it was a third completed and the dreams of a big seaport went aglimmering.

But the people as far back as 1847 built the granite cotton mills as the third string to their commercial bow. In 1884 it burned and that was the end of the town as a textile center. Now the economic causes which have inexorably turned the textile industry from New England has worked the same fate with the quarries. From 1820, to last year, the business increased and multiplied, employing all round more than 1814, which sought to land and burn the town. A mortar in the landing barge captured on that occasion stands in the Townhouse yard.

July 8, 1856 the women of the town turned out en masse with hatchets and demolished every groggery in the town and dumped the liquor into the gutters. Famous long after as the Hatchet Gang. Spartan stuff those Rockport mothers. It is stated that Captain Kidd hid his gold somewhere near Straitsmouth Gut and that one of the residents there discovered it. At any rate from a poor man he burgeoned out as an aristocrat with his coach and four. Since that time searching parties have dug the place all over at low twelve and on the dark of the moon, working silently—that's the formula in hunting for pirate gold—but with what luck has not been stated. There's only one pot of gold at the end of a rainbow. Down on Bearskin Neck, for 200 years the habitat of the shore fishermen, now taken over by artists and tea rooms, one Babson is said to have killed a bear, Cape Ann in 1623, and other points in Massachusetts.

Rockport people are proud of their town, its history and traditions. Its citizens face the future with undaunted optimism. Who knows but what the dream of those who sought to bring the artificial harbor into being may event-

TURK'S HEAD INN

On Monday, July 21, Mr. Frank Ferguson of New York will lecture at the Cape Ann Theatre on the subject of "Stage Illusion and the Press Agent." Mr. Ferguson is a very popular lecturer, whose talks are highly informative as well as extremely amusing. He is one of the authors of the play "Not Fit to Print" which is to be presented by Miss Fisher at the theatre next week, and will himself be numbered among the characters.

skinned him and hung his hide on the side of a fish shed to dry, hence the name. Whether this knife has been presented to the Sandy Bay Historical Society for its museum, deponent knoweth not.

Rockport intends to do its share in observing the State Tercentenary, for it is part and parcel of that event. Already several observances, historical addresses and others have been held and given. The big day will be Saturday, Aug. 16, when there will be a parade, sports, literary exercises in the Town Hall and kindred events. Its recently formed historical society has taken up headquarters in the Old High School building and has a collection of antique and colonial articles well worth inspection. From the historian's standpoint, Prof. Marshall H. Saville, the archeologist and antiquarian, who makes his summer home here, has had reprinted a rare copy—a photographic reproduction—of Rev. John White's "Planters' Plea," treating of the settlement of uate and the dream of these bold spirits may come true as some dreams sometimes have the habit of doing.

MAGNOLIA

NEWSPAPERS CONTINUE to discuss the probability of President and Mrs. Hoover making a stay on the North Shore now that they have been obliged to pass up their projected western vacation—more specifically to accept the invitation of John Hays Hammond to enjoy the hospitality of Lookout Hill. The two men are Californians, engineers, close friends of a lifetime, and if the President decides to come this way in all probability it will be as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hammond.

Rev. Charles R. Joy, vice-president of the American Unitarian Association, was the preacher last Sunday at the Union Chapel and Magnolia Congregational Church. The assignments for the rest of the season include, for the coming Sunday, Rev. John Matteon, rector of All Saints Church, Whitman; July 27, Rev. Payson Pierce, Congregational Church, Reading; August 3, Rev. Lyman V. Rutledge, First Church, Dedham; August 10, Episcopal service, minister to be announced; August 17, Rev. Dr. Robert MacDonald, Worcester; August 24, Rev. Dr. George F. Patterson, vice-president, American Unitarian Association; August 31, Rev. W. F. A. Stride, rector of Christ Church, Hamilton. The committee of the Union Chapel is Courtenay Guild, Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe and Frederick R. Dunbar, Eugene G. Foster, treasurer.

The Oceanside: Mrs. Joseph Goodspeed, Miss Lucy H. Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dwelly and Mrs. William H. Raymond, Boston; Mrs. C. I. Hood and Miss Wilder of Lowell; the Misses Pauline A. and L. and M. Hasselbach, New Haven; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Sturtevant and child, Bradford, Pa.; Mrs. J. C. Stewart, A. B. Manasek, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Roudin and family, Mrs. Houk Austin, Elsie S. Crane, Edith L. Allen, Vladimir Rosing and Edward Rice, New York City; Miss F. B. Jones, Atlantic City; Mrs. H. J. Hitchcock, Youngstown, Ohio; Miss Jeanie M. Adsit, Chicago; Mrs. Louis Gholstin and Mrs. Edwin F. Johnson, Atlanta; C. A. MacLellan, Mrs. H. J. Musselman and Miss A. Musselman, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moncet, Montreal.

Mr. W. R. Pruizwali and his orchestra are at the Oceanside this season.

TO MY LADY IN SEARCH OF THE DISTINCTIVE MAGNOLIA

Mrs. Robert Stead of Philadelphia entertained a party at dinner and bridge at the Oceanside recently.

North Shore Inn: Miss Olive Poole, Miss Helen Dole, Boston; Marguerite Waters, William Bradley, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benjamin, Winter Park, Fla.; Mrs. A. P. Stuart, Miss D. O. Stuart, Mrs. E. R. Ebbitt, Stuart Ebbitt of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond have as their guests Mrs. Lillian M. Sawyer and Miss Belle Turpin of Brookline, who, since the Hammonds coming here some thirty years ago have been their neighbors at Brookbank, on the southwesterly slope of Sawyer's Hill, the homesite of the Sawyer family. Last fall Mrs. Sawyer decided to remove to Brookline and the Sawyer holdings, adjoining the Hammond estate, were taken over and added to the Hammond place.

Mrs. Thompson Sampson and Mrs. Talbot Chase of Boston, were hostesses to some eighty-five at a dance at the Beach Club House on the evening of July 3. On July 4, a buffet supper and dance for all club members were held at the Club House. Fourth-of-July fireworks added to the attractions of a particularly enjoyable evening.

The tragic death of Augustus G. Wirbelauer who has been coming to Magnolia for the past five seasons is a matter of sincere regret to his many friends in this locality. A scholar of promise and an athlete of ability, he was a prominent figure in the annual Oceanside tennis tournaments.

Forty tables of bridge were in play at Green Gables on Tuesday afternoon. The event was a party given by the Ways and Means Committee of the Beverly Hospital Aid for the benefit of the hospital. The entire North Shore was represented, guests being present from Manchester, Magnolia, Gloucester, Bass Rocks, Salem and Swampscott.

Miss Frances O'Gorman has recently returned to Green Gables from Philadelphia, where she makes her home.

Major and Mrs. Jenks of Ontario have been guests at Green Gables during the past week.

Mrs. E. H. Haskell and daughter of Newton Centre are guests at Green Gables.

Among recent arrivals at Green Gables is Mrs. L. G. Cramer of N. Y. City.

Miss Louise Geary, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Geary, Jr., of Philadelphia, entertained some twelve of her young friends at her twelfth birthday party at the Beach Club on Friday evening.

The season is in full swing at Del Monte's. Society folk of the North Shore make this a mecca of activities, and luncheon, bridge and dinner parties are very popular. Tea dancing is a feature at this pleasure spot in Magnolia, and is enjoyed in the late afternoon by many of the young people of the shore.

Among those entertaining at Del Monte's during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Smith of Hamilton, who entertained a party of eight; Mr. Philip Brown of East Gloucester with a party of twenty; Mr. John Amory of Manchester and party of eight; Mr. John Morrill of Beverly Farms and party of twelve; Miss Kate Gray of Bass Rocks and party of twelve; Mr. Carney of East Gloucester and party of eight; Miss Margaret Brainerd of Magnolia with party of sixteen young folks; Mr. Philip Cuniff and party of six; Mr. E. Prescott Rowe of Magnolia and party of eight; Mr. George Brown of Salem and party of ten; Mr. Henry F. Woolfe of the New Ocean House, Swampscott and party of eight; R. W. McKay, also of the New Ocean House, and party of eight; Mrs. Sidney A. Eiseman of Clifton and party of eight.

The Green Gables Inn under the management of James A. Liddell continues to grow in popularity. More than 150 ladies of the North Shore Babies' Hospital Association of Beverly enjoyed a bridge and luncheon party, Tuesday.

Notice to Water Takers

The use of hose and sprinklers is strictly forbidden. This applies to both meter and fixture takers. The use of water for commercial purposes is alone excepted.

The public is further urgently requested to stop all leaks and waste of water during this period of shortage in order that available supplies be conserved in every way possible.

The co-operation of all citizens is earnestly requested for the public good.

EAST GLOUCESTER

PROBABLY no section on the North Shore shows more signs of summer life than East Gloucester. The two art associations, the well filled hotels and the newer touring groups which make this locality their objective, combine to make this a lively section of the North Shore.

The Rockaway: Annie G. Codman, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hinckley, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Carroll, Master Charles Carroll, S. W. Eager, Boston; Miss Carolyn J. Peck, Wellesley, the Misses Ruth I., Elizabeth A. and Anna F. Eager, North Grafton; Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Middlebrook, Miss Rose L. Butler, Hartford; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Keyes, Dudley James, New York City; Murray Sheehan, Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Carpenter, Miss Margaret R. Gest, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Dunn, Jr., East Orange, accompanied by their children, Ruth, Catharine and Edward, 3rd; Ruth W. Vest of High Point, S. C.; and Mrs. Arthur H. Wurtele of Hollywood, Calif.

The first of the Rockaway dances was held on Saturday night, July 5. These popular dances are held every Saturday night throughout the season for Rockaway guests. The music is excellent.

Sunday evening, an illustrated lecture on the Grand Canyon of the Colorado was given at the Rockaway by Colonel C. H. French. His talk was much enjoyed.

Merrill Hall: Mrs. Harriet Fearnay, Mrs. W. P. Morris, Jr., Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Killam, Cambridge; Paul E. Johnson, Concord; Miss Florence Stone, Worcester; Dexter Brigham, Agnes Miller, Mrs. Jane F. Dunkan and Julia McAllister, New York City; Mrs. A. J. Eccles, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. Daword, Winsted, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Chard, Miss Bernice Conroy, New Haven; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cook, Stamford; Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Lane, Summit, N. J.; Miss H. M. Stewart, Helen H. Averill, Miss M. M. Coes, Worcester; Mrs. W. S. Whitney, Lawrence; Mrs. H. T. Boody, Staten Island; Elizabeth Crandor, Newton Centre; Mrs. E. L. Shaw, Cambridge, J. A. Tower, Essex; Mrs. Kathleen Kline, Jaffrey, N. H.; Mrs. W. M. Storrs, Hartford; Ruth G. Winant, Miss E. de L. Cunningham, Mrs. E. W. Bonneau, Miss E. V. and J. A. Belzer, Mrs. Ralph Holt Howes, Master Ralph, Mrs. Josephine S. Pearce, Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt, Miss Helen Sahler, Mrs. Grace W. Marix, Mrs. J. A. Taber, New York City; Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Hamilton, Albany; Hon. Charles B. Wheeler, Buffalo; Mrs. E. F. Flindell and Miss Helen H. Cassidy, Summit, N. J.; W. A. Peters, Newark, N. J.; Margaret H. and Emily H. Bache, Dr. and Mrs. P. C. Cummins, Philadelphia; Mrs. Susan Hayes, Margaret and Mary Hayes, Mrs. H. Marcus Denison, Miss L. S. Thayer, Mrs. Paul H. Miller, Stephen G. Vickery of Baltimore; C. C. Magruder, Washington; William J. Carter, Towson, Md.

Sunday morning services are to be held at the Casino through July and August. Rev. Elmer N. Owens of Belmont will be the officiating clergyman.

The Delphine: Marie J. MacCorr, Boston; Mrs. E. S. Conner, Brookline; Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. James, Violet James, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Small, Brookline; Alice M. Bell, Lena M. Kelley, Andover; Mrs. W. S. Bacon, Springfield; Caroline P. Holden, Laura Tolman, Concord; Mrs. W. D. Ferris, New York City; Mrs. M. E. Rumney, Miss S. D. Williams, Philadelphia; Mrs. Prentiss Bassett, Arabella Bassett, Annapolis; Mrs. Loretta L. Collins, Arch J. Collins, Brooklyn; Mrs. Charles J. Blakeney, Betty Blakeney, Mrs. John Creswell, Denver; Mrs. W. B. Norris, St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. J. B. Kendall, Washington; Mabel S. Grant, Cleveland.

Commander G. B. Hoey of the U. S. S. Northampton was the guest over the week-end of Professor Fournon of Annapolis at the Hotel Delphine. Commander Hoey left Tuesday for Gibraltar and the Mediterranean.

Mr. H. P. Rankin of Boston gave a dinner party at the Delphine on Saturday to a party of friends.

Beachcroft: Margaret Montgomery; Miss M. A. Costello, Miss L. G. Irving, Boston; Emily S. Storer, Waltham; Mary E. Litchfield, Margaret B. Krebs, Vera White, Cambridge; Mrs. D. W. Winton, Framingham; Molly T. Sweeney, Jamaica Plain; Charles E. Dorrell and family, Southbridge; Mrs. H. A. Rout, Lee; Adele E. Meister, Dedham; Martha Robinson, Wollaston; Conrad A. Smith and family, Brookline; Nettie A. and Effie M. Starkey, Worcester; Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Cuthbert, Janet D. Cuthbert, Worcester; Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Friedman, Winthrop; Lydia Burkin, Washington; Miss K. B. Sturgis, Gloucester; John J. Fleming, Worcester; Eleanor G. Swan, Tarrytown; Mr. and Mrs. L. V. ## BASS ROCKS

THUS FAR the season has not got into its stride socially, but at the last of the month will brighten up perceptibly. All along the shore the usual activities have got off to a slow start. Some one has sent in an inquiry as to the origin of the name Little Good Harbor Beach. Here is the legend! In the early days of the settlement one of the pioneer navigators asked an Indian what kind of a harbor there was on what is now known as the Bass Rocks side. "Little Good Harbor," was the reply, meaning that it was of little value as a shelter in bad weather.

Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker of Pittsburgh who is occupying the Williamson cottage this season opened her residence Thursday and Friday for a fair in aid of the Woman's Industrial Exchange of Pittsburgh which was largely patronized. There is a large and representative number of Pittsburghers resident in this locality about all of whom were interested in and helped make the sale a success.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Fuller of Worcester are entertaining at their Bass Rocks summer home, "Kros-sanes," Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Edwards and the Junior, and Jimmie Larrabee, all of Worcester. Mr. Fuller, a confirmed sailor, has put overboard his motor launch, Sea Dog, in which he makes cruises up and down the coast.

The Norsemen have left two names at Bass Rocks—Thorwald and "Kros-sanes," the latter being what the doughty Norse navigator named what is now Gloucester. He visited the harbor in the year 1000.

The Moorland: Elford Caughey, Boston; Mrs. Alice M. Howell, Mrs. R. P. Alden and Miss Beatrice Alden, Mrs. W. H. Sanburn, Mr. and Mrs. David Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Bidwell, Mrs. J. F. Bidwell, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McElwain, Edward McElwain, Springfield; Alice E. O'Donnell, Elizabeth M. Dalton, Miss M. Gill, Holyoke; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Cutler, North Wilbraham; Mr. and Mrs.

F. S. Berry, Northbridge; Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Word, Pelham; Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. T. Owens, Baltimore; Mrs. T. H. Winston and Genevieve Winston, Haverford, Pa.; Dorothy M. Gill, Gertrude E. Lawrence, Germantown; Mrs. M. Lewis Clark, Mrs. A. B. Taylor, Washington; Gladys Bailey, Harriet Thompson, Elizabeth H. Lane, Brooklyn; Mrs. Zachary R. Lewis, Timonium, Md.; Mary L. Gray, Mrs. William R. S. Wilson, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Julian Meade, Danville, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Coursen, Winter Park, Fla.; Mrs. John D. Underwood, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. McKinney, Albany; Louise Allen, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Grubb, Jr., M. J. Spencer, St. Davids, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. F. Louis Barker, Toronto.

The Thorwald: Mr. and Mrs. James L. Quarts, Mary and Alice Quarts, West Newton; C. E. Fanning, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Haney, Mrs. Edith Van Zandt, Mrs. J. Billson, New York City; Miss Husted, Brooklyn; Miss Stacy Prentiss, Mr. and Mrs. Royal C. Kluxton, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Allen, Mrs. P. W. Robinson, Washington; H. C. Lewis, Alexandria, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. George Spear, New Jersey; Josephine Smith, Mrs. John Ackerson, Jr., Westfield, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Swain, East Orange; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beauvelt, Patterson; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Donovan, Jr., and two children, Toledo; Mrs. Sutherland, Ann Sutherland, Mrs. David Arlen, Cincinnati; Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Tees, Brenda Chilles, Lillian Lawrence, Mrs. George Lyman, Helen McLean, Mrs. Colin Webster, Stella Frost, George H. Jewell, Montreal.

The John K. Heys of Cincinnati, Ohio, have leased the Brightside cottage on Beach road for the summer.

Dr. W. S. Parker and his family of Boston will occupy the Wentworth cottage on Bass avenue.

Among the beautiful rose gardens along the Back Shore that of Mrs. Jacob L. Loose at her Bass Rocks summer home, Sea Rocks, attracts universal admiration.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, is a great admirer of this old fishing port and is a frequent visitor here. During the week he called on Mayor John C. Parker at City Hall and a pleasant conversational period followed.

The Bass Rocker, a spicy and interesting little sheet, devoted to the interests of that section, has appeared at intervals during the spring. Roland R. Darling is the editor.

EASTERN POINT

GLOUCESTER BAY never looked more picturesque and beautiful than during the past two weeks. Residents of this locality looking from their windows especially in the morning have seen an unrivalled marine panorama. Anchored in the roadstead was the white hulled brigantine yacht Illyria, nearby the dark painted, red waterlined and yellow stacked cargo steamer Baron Murray, from a Spanish port, and beyond, was moored a long lined coal barge, the whole making an ensemble that artists rave about and paint. A word picture would fail. Coming and going against this foreground was the white winged fishing fleet. There's but one Gloucester; there's no duplicate.

Col. and Mrs. John Wing Prentiss celebrated the Independence Day with ample hospitality, some one hundred of their neighbors and friends being bidden to "Blighty" as guests of the day. Various kinds of diversion were provided and at night came the conclusion, a fine display of fireworks.

Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose of Eastern Point, entertained as guests this week William E. Horton and Major Reginald Foster, both of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Washburn of Providence, and Professor George E. Bates of Harvard University.

The host of friends on the North Shore of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan (Jack) Raymond of Eastern Point are congratulating them on the coming of a daughter, which occurred this week in Boston. This is the fifth child. Mrs. Raymond, one of the best known yachtswomen in New England, was Pauline Pollard.

Mr. David Barber of New York is a house guest at the Ramparts.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Williams and daughter who have been on a brief visit to friends at Tyringham, have returned to The Ramparts.

MANCHESTER AND THE COUNTY

Miss Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., second ranking woman tennis player of the nation, has definitely entered the annual women's invitation tournament which opens at the Essex County Club in Manchester on Monday, July 21. "Princess Helen" will be favored to win the tournament if Mrs. Helen Wills Moody does not play for the title, won last year by another Californian, Miss Edith Cross, over Miss Mary Greef, young Kansas City star.

It is hoped that Mrs. Moody will play, but as yet she has not entered the tournament. It is understood that California will be represented by its usual

THE ROCKPORT SHORE

ID-JULY finds the season in full swing. More and more the artist colony monopolizes the leadership in the active social life of this section with its art shows, dances and entertainments.

The Edward: Mrs. F. M. Wigmore, Washington; Mrs. Olive A. White, Chicago; Miss Bunty Witten, Mrs. Clara Tillinghast and Mrs. Obrig, New York City.

Miss Ella T. Maguire of Pittsburgh is at the Edward for the season. Miss Maguire recently made a trip to her home in Pittsburgh, returning in the company of her niece, Miss Katherine Chisholm, who will spend the summer at the hotel. Miss Chisholm is a recent graduate of Mt. Ida School.

The Rockmere: Mrs. John Duff, May Duff, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Myrick, Newton; Mrs. and Mrs. G. L. Myrick, Cambridge; Mrs. J. P. Metcalf, Medford; Isabel C. Robinson, Jessie A. Murphy, Miss Helen A. Carmalt, Philadelphia; Mrs. M. L. Cann, Watertown; Mrs. I. J. Jackson, Rapid City, S. D.; Mrs. R. C. Doty, Miss J. S. Doty, Evanston, Ill.

THE ANNISQUAM REGION

N EXAMINATION OF the cottage roster in this locality shows a "not so bad" season, all things being taken into consideration. The removal of the two hotels perhaps makes some difference, but the loss, if any there be, is not perceptible.

Dr. Edwin P. Lahman of the University of Virginia Hospital, has taken Stone Patch Cottage at the foot of Adams Hill road for August and early September.

Miss Annie Lane and sister of Newton Highlands have come to the Ricker cottage on Leonard street this summer.

Raymond E. Huntington of Wellesley will have the Andrews house on Leonard street during August.

J. B. Stevens, Jr., of Plainfield, N. J., is at the Stone house on the Ames estate this season.

Walker Mason of West Hartford will be at Ivedi-Avedi cottage during August.

Frank C. White of Melrose is at Stone Patch cottage for July.

Luther Ely Smith of St. Louis is at Lower Orchard cottage on Adams Hill road for the warm months.

Delmar Leighton of Cambridge is at Bakehouse cottage on Leonard street this summer.

C. Brooks Stevens, Jr., of Lowell will occupy the Adams homestead during August.

Samuel W. Murray of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., has arrived at Villa Rosa Bonheur on Leonard street for the summer months.

Franklin M. Johnson and family of New Haven have taken occupancy of the recently completed Ricker house on Leonard street for the season.

Ames Stevens of Lowell is at the Brothers' cottage on the Ames estate for the summer months.

Walter C. Coleman of Cambridge has taken Munster cottage at Diamond Cove this season.

Mrs. George B. Farnum of New Haven has taken the Shippen cottage on Arlington street for the season.

Miss Ellen Cannon Buckelew of Wilmington, Del., is at the Moore cottage, Arlington street, for the summer months.

Mrs. Albert N. Cleaver of Bethlehem, Penn., is at Cypress cottage on Cambridge avenue for the summer.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

Who is Judith—Chubby Goes Shopping —Bridge—Marcia Disappears

After Larry's rather nonchalant announcement of the disruption of his engagement to Judith, every one was silent. It was rather difficult to know exactly what to say, since none of us had ever met Judith, and the whole affair had been such a whirlwind event, anyway. Larry had gone to Maine to visit a pair of staid maiden aunts for a fortnight and had come back absolutely, hopelessly in love with Judith. Judith, it was rumored, was a dancer of note; a European, whose father had been an American from the state of Maine, and who had given up her career to settle down in the tiny village which bore her father's name.

Nobody knew exactly where she had come from, or why. The townsfolk among whom she lived remembered her father, recalled vividly his marriage to a "foreigner," his subsequent departure from their midst, and accepted Judith for what she claimed to be. Larry didn't care. To him she had been divine, a child of the gods.

Knowing this, and sensing the so obvious hurt which he so valiantly strove to hide, we were all simply tongue tied. Marcia broke the spell.

"I'm sorry, Larry," she told him softly. "Perhaps she'll change?"

Larry shook his head. "It doesn't matter," he said, "it's nothing."

Anne started, remembering that she had heard those very same words, not an hour before, from Marcia.

But Marcia herself seemed not to have heard. She was gazing off across the ocean to the place where the sky meets sea.

"Well, well," from Chubby in a far corner. The far corner, moreover, which contained the most comfortable and luxurious of all comfortable and luxurious porch chairs; a soft, cushioney wicker thing which Peggy had got at the very beginning of the season at Patillo's. ("I anticipate Chubby," Peggy had said as she ordered it.) "Well, well. It's too bad, old man. Come with me to Barker's, won't you, and drown your sorrows in an ice-cold, exquisitely flavored coffee frappe? Best thing in the world for the blues; drives away the little cares and worries—"

A glance from Peggy silenced him. "You know perfectly well," she told him, "that we've a bridge engagement at Vera's Tea House in an hour. And, looking at her tiny watch, 'it's time we were getting ready to go.'"

"I'm not going," Chubby told her. "I told Sylvia last night that I loathe and despise the game, and begged her to let me off. I'm going to Gloucester."

"To Nauss', I suppose," sarcastically, from Peggy. "When you get through adding bits to your house, do let me know, will you? It'll be interesting to see, like one of those old farm houses with dozens of little ells."

"I am going to Nauss', as it happens," she was told, with great dignity, "because I am going to have a bath house built at the beach. Not an ordinary bath house, you understand, but a bath house in which my friends will be glad to have a cup of tea or a game of bridge—if I'll let them."

Instantly he was plied with questions, to all of which he replied most unsatisfactorily. "Wait and see," was all that even persuasive Anne could get out of him.

"While you're in town," asked Marcia, "would you mind going to the bank for me? The Gloucester National, I mean. I've a check here I must have cashed before I'm absolutely flat. I spent my last dollar, almost, at Richard Briggs' this morning. The place simply fascinates me. I go over there and buy and buy until I've nothing left to buy with."

"But plenty more to buy," added Gay. "What was it this morning, Marc?"

"Cocktail services," was the reply. "I couldn't resist them. Mine are black and crystal, but they had them in all shades, almost. Amber and orchid, and green, and rose; I had an awful time deciding. And I bought a pewter shaker, too. Something new, I think. It comes apart so that you can wash it very thoroughly, and so, of course, it's awfully sanitary, and it has a lovely top. I got it for Dad."

"Now that we've finished with Briggs'," remarked Chubby, patiently,

Cottage Pewter

PEWTER belongs to the country cottage! Its quaint charm, its varied service, its immunity from constant care and cleaning are but three of its splendid virtues. To these Ovington's adds a fourth commendation . . . the attraction of modest prices.

Never were pewter table sets lovelier than here at Ovington's and never were they more reasonably priced!

"may I have the check? Banks have a habit of wanting to see them, you know, before they'll make payment. I could tell them what an exceptional youngster you are, of course—"

Again Peggy silenced him. "Bring me a sirloin roast from Shepherd's," she ordered. "And don't spend all afternoon there. Last week," she told the others, "they had to put him out at closing time."

"Well," argued Chubby, "can you think of a nicer place to spend an afternoon?"

"Or to be put out of," suggested Jack.

"After Shepherd's, Chubby," Peggy was saying, "you will proceed to the North Shore Furniture company, and order those four hickory chairs we were looking at this morning. Then you may call at the Gloucester Electric Company and see if those new fixtures have arrived. Then—"

"Then," put in Chubby, "it'll be time for refreshments at Towle's. And by the way, did you people know that their ice-cream is packed with dry ice, and will keep four to five hours without ice or salt?"

Nobody had known about it, it seemed, and the subject of dry ice was discussed at length. And then the conversation changed abruptly to clothes. Gay was speaking.

"You know," she said, "I've discovered the most wonderful men's store in Gloucester this year. Do any of you boys know Earl O. Phillips?"

"At the corner of Hancock and Main?" asked Jack. "Of course we do. These," he announced, displaying his extremely good looking golf hose, "are his."

"And this," announced Chubby, calling attention to his sport sweater. "It's a store that's rightly named, 'Smart Shop for Men.'"

"Are you going to Gloucester, Chubby," asked Peggy, "or aren't you? Because it's time we were getting ready for the bridge—really time, now."

Chubby departed, charged with additional commissions, and the girls left to dress.

Half an hour later they reappeared, as different from the group of gypsies who had been so entirely at their ease on Peggy's porch as can be imagined.

Peggy herself wore canton crepe, white, with hand rolled white organdie trimmings. Joan wore a lovely model in canary yellow crepe, while Marcia's golden beauty was enhanced by a sleeveless eggshell crepe with a circular skirt. Anne and Gay wore liberty prints, Anne's with long sleeves, and Gay's sleeveless with a coat. All were from Manahan's. The girls always shopped at Manahan's, and they always shopped together, so that anything which seemed like duplication in color or line might be avoided.

With their dainty gowns, the girls all wore Deauville sandals in corresponding colors. Of course, from Armstrong's.

At the tea house, their hostess, Sylvia Dane, whose wedding was to be an event of the summer, greeted them with enthusiasm.

"You're the first ones to arrive," she told them, "and I'm glad. I want you to tell me about blankets. I saw some beauties at the Grande Maison de Blanc this morning. They were in whites with colored borders, and there were the plain colors, in pastels. And there were comforters, in matching colors, to say nothing of blanket covers in colored dimity, the most fetching patterns, and the most exquisite silk covers with lace inserts. I was simply bewildered by so many perfectly lovely things!"

"Get all of them," advised Anne, the practical. "You can't have too many."

"And the couch covers," sighed Sylvia. "Taffeta, in the pastels, with cream lace, and one gorgeous thing, all lace."

"Have them all, by all means," agreed Peggy.

Then the others came and the play started.

Gay and Joan were exceptionally good at bridge, Anne played a fairly

Miss Eleanor Goodridge of Cambridge, another artist who has made Rockport her summer home for several seasons, is at her studio in Gott street.

Alderman Arthur G. Pearson and family of Somerville have arrived at the Young cottage, North road. Their daughter, Miss Marguerite Pearson, an artist, has made Rockport her summer headquarters for several seasons.

Myron Ellis Witham, the well known Dartmouth football star of yesteryear, and family, have arrived from the Pacific slope for a summer stay at Pigeon Cove.

Mrs. F. E. Cutter and family of Concord have come to their summer home, Phillips avenue, Pigeon Cove, for the season.

An engagement of note in the North Shore art circles is that recently announced of Dorothy Stevenson Dummer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Boylston Dummer, to Reginald Wentworth Tarr, son of Mrs. G. A. Dunshee of Washington. Mr. Tarr is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hobbs of the Marmion Way colony. He is a graduate of M. I. T. No date has been set for the wedding. At the tea given by Miss Dummer's parents announcing the engagement, Mr. and Mrs. Dummer were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs and Mrs. Dunshee, Miss Elizabeth Withington, Mrs. Galen Perrett and Mrs. Arthur J. Hammond, Miss Dorothy Bealey of Lowell, assisting in serving.

Miss Kate Cotherin of Boston has returned to the studio, Atlantic avenue, which she has occupied for several seasons. She was in Europe last summer on a sketching tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Barnes and family of Philadelphia are at their cottage on Eden road for the season.

Prof. Edmund Edmunds of Philadelphia has arrived at the Eric Hudson house, Mt. Pleasant street, for a stay until Labor Day. Mrs. Edmunds will join Mr. Edmunds a little later in the month.

Prof. J. P. Weller of Nebraska University has arrived at Pigeon Cove for the summer.

Miss Catherine Lewis of Washington has leased Saltaire cottage, Bearskin Neck, for August.

Mrs. E. R. Beckler of Evanston, Ill., has taken the Clarkson cottage, Marmion Way, for the season.

Chester W. Tudbury and family of Newton Highlands are occupying their new bungalow at Land's End.

good game, Marcia tried hard, but Peggy simply couldn't put her mind on it.

"Have any of you ever visited the old Webber house on Western avenue?" she asked once during a very difficult hand. Receiving no answer, she went on. "If you haven't you should. And the Sawyer house, too, across the street. They're Poole's now, you know, and simply loaded with the most marvellous antiques!"

Her partner frowned, but Peggy went blissfully on. "I've bought some marvellous reproductions, myself," she told them, "at the Furniture Store of the Gloucester Coal and Lumber Company. They're unfinished, of course, but it's such fun to do them yourself! And really, you can have so many more pieces that way. I'm crazy about the idea."

Her partner muttered something uncomplimentary, and nervously dropped a card. This was a cue for Peggy.

"Have you seen the new round cards?" she asked. "In Bott's, I mean. They must be fun to use."

"We played yesterday afternoon at Del Monte's," Peggy's partner told one of her opponents. "It was a splendid party. Nobody thought of anything but the game."

"At Del Monte's?" asked Peggy. "On that marvelous porch? How could any one sit there and do anything but enjoy that glorious view!"

Her partner gave her up as hopeless.

Later in the afternoon, Peggy was invited to another party the next week at Green Gables.

"I'd adore to come," she accepted. "I do love bridge, you know." And her former partner, overhearing, almost fainted.

When the scores were totaled, it was found that Gay had won first prize, which was a lovely jewel box in black and gold hand tooled leather with Cinabar lacquer, which could have come from nowhere in the world but Ovington's.

Joan won second prize, which was a two pound box of those delicious chocolates of Mary Ellen Golden's, and Peggy became the proud possessor of the consolation prize, which was a particularly nice book holder in Italian hand tooled leather. Also Ovington's.

Refreshments consisted of tea, dainty cakes and a delicious, creamy ice, which Peggy declared couldn't be anything but Chanticleer. "I know Chanticleer," she told the group, "and it's the finest on the Shore."

Gay insisted on taking a drive around the shore before going home. The surf was beautiful on this clear summer day, and the girls stopped for a moment or two enjoying it.

"Let's get out," suggested Gay. "I love to be on the rocks when it beats against them."

Only Marcia remained in the car. "To see that it doesn't run away," she told them laughingly.

The others stayed longer than they intended to, and returning, found the car, but no Marcia.

"Did she come down on the rocks?" asked Anne. Nobody had seen her. And nobody had seen her leave the car.

"We'll find her at the house," said Peggy, easily. She must have got tired of waiting and walked home across the moors."

Every one agreed to the plausibility of this theory, but there was a troubled look in Anne's eyes as they left for home.

EASTERN POINT, JULY 12

A morning and afternoon race was sailed off last Saturday at Eastern Point. The morning event was a resail from July 4, the course being a run to the southerly mark and a beat home, distance 6 miles.

In the Sonders, Shamrock and Tern were alternately in the lead but first place at the leeward mark went to Skeezix, which making off to the eastward caught a shaft of wind, which placed her one minute and 55 seconds to the good at the turn ahead of Shamrock. The fleet rounded the Breakwater with hardly 10 seconds between first and last, Tern soaking over the line five seconds ahead of Panther which had come up from sixth place.

Barker's Soda Fountain has such a wide reputation for the richness and quality of its Ice-Cream Sodas, Frozen Whipped Cream, College Ices and Specialties, that people come for miles around to get sodas at this fountain.

In the Triangles Sprite was overhauled first before the leeward mark was reached, by Wiki Wiki which held her advantage to the finish.

In the R Class, Bonnie Prince negotiated the beat to the mark by a slight margin but Taja overhauled and passed her on the run home with 50 seconds to the good.

In the afternoon wind conditions had not improved, a very light breeze rippling the water from east, northeast. Taja, best berthed at the start, was never headed, in the R class duel.

Nine Sonders came down for the line almost bow and bow, Buccaneer appearing for the first time this season. Tern was leading to the leeward mark until a fog bank coming down from the Bay of Fundy mused up the visibility confusing Captain Cox so that he was unable to locate the buoy.

In the meantime Hevella came up and headed direct for the spot turning first with Skeezix a close second. There was no change in relative positions of the leaders on the run home, Hevella stretching her advantage steadily.

In the Triangles, Sprite led to the southern mark with Wiki Wiki runner up. The latter was fortunate in getting a streak of wind off shore which gave her a good lift along to a win.

In the Knockabout class, Maryland led from gunfire to gunfire.

ANNISQUAM, JULY 12

The racing of the Annisquam Yacht Club Saturday afternoon was in a very light northeast breeze which toward the close hauled a little to the eastward and died out so much that the bird boats were unable to finish being becalmed at the lighthouse and towed in.

In the Triangle class, Harry Worcester in the Scalene scored a second win. At the start, the Scalene got the lead. It was a close haul out of the river. Spinners were broken out on the broad reach to Essex with Scalene making the best of the light weather rounding four lengths ahead of Blue Bill.

On the dead beat to the outer mark, all worked a middle course except Blue Bill which stood off to starboard in the bay wind hunting and lost, Scalene rounding the outer mark two minutes ahead of Goblin which had come into second place. Spinners were again set on the homing leg. Scalene continuing to gain although bothered by a fleet of finishing boats at the lighthouse.

In the 15-footers the Nisan played in luck throughout getting a good sendoff and the best of wind hunting. On the run to Essex, Tabasco, Jr., was second boat about four lengths astern at the turn. Tabasco held her own to the outer mark but on the broad reach home Nisan stood further to the eastward and caught a breeze which brought her home more than 11 minutes ahead of her becalmed rivals.

In the Cats, Wildcat and Katchup fought it out to the finish. In the Fish boats the scrap between Perch and Skipjack was even more exciting. Both came up the river bow and bow. Perch getting the gun by about a half second. The summary:

EASTERN POINT, JULY 13

Eastern Point yachtsmen are whistling for a real blow, something that will force scuppers under. Thus far this season light airs, five to six knots, have been the rule, and Sunday was no exception. What air was stirring came from southeast, perhaps six knots strong. Again the judges thought best to indicate a shortened course of six miles, a close reach to the southern mark and a run home.

In the "R" class Allen Jones was helmsman on the Taja. Three boats strung out Indian file. Taja with a long lead, Bonnie Prince and Tabasco from Squam was the story all the way. Vim got what advantage there was in the Sonder start, the wind flattening at the outset.

The fleet rounded the breakwater lazily, luck being with Hevella, which was overtaken by a streak of wind which pushed her out in front, which position she consistently maintained through being 49 seconds ahead of Tern at outer mark.

On the run home Tern cut down her lead perceptibly, but couldn't muster sufficient punch to displace Hevella.

In the Triangles Wiki Wiki lost no time in getting away and in the lead. Once outside the breakwater the fleet ran into a calm and lay dead. Sprite was the first to pick up a catspaw of air and so established a lead on the way out, beating Black Bess to the mark by four boat lengths. On the run in, Black Bess overhauled and passed the Farrell boat, getting home ahead by a margin of 45 seconds. Quail and Injun had quite a luffing setto on the home stretch inside the breakwater, Quail coping third place as a result. The summary:

In the year nineteen hundred and thirty.
An ordinance regulating parking.

SUMMER TRAFFIC RULES

During the months of May, June, July, August and September, the following traffic regulations shall be effective:

No parking at any time on the westerly side of Bass avenue extending from the corner near the trestle, so-called, to Beach road, and on the westerly side of Nautilus road between Beach road and the southerly end of the bath house.

Washington street at Plum Cove Beach—Cars parked parallel with the roadway on the beach side, and limited to two and one-half hours on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays between June 15 and September 15.

Bass avenue and Nautilus road—Parking limited to two and one-half hours on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays during June 15 to September 15.

Bass avenue—Cars may be parked on the right side only, from the car barn to 100 yards west of Thacher road. Cars to be parked parallel to the road.

Bass avenue from Thacher road to Nautilus road, one way parking on right side only.

Nautilus road one way and from June 15 to September 15 in the area between the two bridges, cars shall be parked parallel to the road and on the remainder of the road to a point slightly beyond the bath house, cars shall be parked at right angles to the road. No cars shall be parked later than 10 P. M. in the evening.

Atlantic road—Two way; no parking on either side between Nautilus road and Farrington avenue on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays.

Brier Neck-Witham street—Parking permitted on the westerly side from Thacher road to a point 50 feet north of the northerly boundary of Salt Island road at the junction of Salt Island road and Witham street. Parking limited to two and one-half hours on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays.

Salt Island road—No parking shall be permitted on either side except from the northerly side from the ledge to a point 25 feet from the corner of Witham street; and no parking allowed on the easterly side of Witham street except at or near the service entrance of Little Good Harbor Beach Inn for a distance of 25 feet to be particularly designated by traffic markings.

ALLEN F. GRANT, City Clerk

In Municipal Council, June 6, 1930.

Passed to be ordained.

mont are occupying the Strangman cottage at Bay View this summer.

J. Ellison Morse of Danvers has the Kenney cottage on Rowley Shore, Lanesville, for the summer months.

Mrs. Harold G. Thompson of Montclair, N. J., is occupying the Boulder cottage at Diamond Cove this year.

Miss Jessie A. Atkinson of Roslindale has the Webber bungalow at Diamond Cove.

Mrs. Hugh McK. Jones of Clayton, Mo., is occupying Edgewise cottage on Squam Rock road this summer.

Mrs. Danford Barney of Scarsdale, N. Y., has the Borden cottage on the Ames estate this summer.

General Adelbert Ames, ninety-four, only surviving ranking officer of the Civil War and the oldest living graduate of West Point, underwent his second operation in seven weeks at the Phillips House of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Tuesday, it became known here recently. The venerable soldier exhibited remarkable energy after the operation. General Ames is perhaps the oldest summer resident in years and number of years in residence on Cape Ann.

Harland K. Simonds of Fitchburg has the Bent homestead this summer.

Richard H. Wright of Cambridge is occupying ROC cottage at Diamond Cove during the month of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenfield Sluder of St. Louis are at the "Pines" this summer.

* John C. Meachem of Lake Forest, Ill., has taken occupancy of Upper Orchard cottage this year.

The LeBaron Turners of Geneva, Ill., are at the Parker cottage for the summer months.

Mrs. Humphrey Birge of Norwood's Heights will give a tea at the Yacht Club House next Wednesday afternoon to her friends in the summer colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Atherton O. Shepard of Brookline are occupying their cottage at Norwood's Heights during July.

Francis J. O'Brien of Boston, of Harvard football fame, has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. R. Russell Smith, at her summer home at Wigwam Point.

Brantz Mayor has been the guest during the week of his mother and grandmother at Seven Acres. He is now connected with the Time Corporation in its advertising department. The engagement of Miss Evelyn Griswold of Connecticut and New York City and Mr. Mayor was recently announced.

Among the valuable gifts recently presented the Gloucester Historical Society is a collection of paintings of old houses at Annisquam done some years ago by Mrs. Alpheus Hyatt, of Seven Acres, widow of the noted biologist. Professor Hyatt and family came to Annisquam more than fifty years ago, and the family is probably one of the longest, if not the longest, in point of time, as summer residents of any in this locality, the Ames family on the Bay View Heights, perhaps, coming within the same category. More and more public attention is being aroused as to the preservation of these time honored New England homesteads and Madame Hyatt's collection and gift is especially opportune.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Moore (Pauline Smith) of Forest Hills, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Everett T. Brown (Priscilla Smith) of West Upton, are the guests of their mother, Mrs. Benjamin A. Smith, at her summer home, Wigwam Point.

first appearance at the Cape Ann Theatre. Miss Fisher herself will have an amusing part, while Miss Marjorie Moffatt, who was seen for such a short time in the "Dead Game Sport," will have an opportunity to show her comedy powers in a brilliant role.

Mr. Robert Williams plays the part of a clever, cynical poet, while Miss Helen Claire will play the ingenue role. Miss Ellen Larned, Mr. Winston Hibler and Mr. Lark Taylor will also appear in the play.

NAEGELE AT STILLINGTON HALL

North Shore music lovers had the privilege of hearing a delightful program at Stillington Hall on Thursday evening by Charles Naegele, celebrated pianist, assisted by Rafaelo Diaz, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Naegele, an American of outstanding musical ability, delighted his audience with his dramatic color and his great emotional depth. He possesses that rare combination of ability and personality, which has earned for him an enviable reputation.

Mr. Diaz, who was made famous in Rimsky-Korsakov's "Le Coq d'Or," needed no introduction to his audience. He has a voice of splendid range, as well as beautiful clarity, and thrilled his listeners at Stillington Hall with his compositions. The program was as follows:

NORTH SHORE ARTS ASSOCIATION

On Saturday, July 19, the North Shore Arts Association offers its first in a series of three chamber concerts under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pops Concerts, assisted by Jesus Maria SanRoma, who is the official pianist of Symphony Orchestra. This first concert will consist of a program by a string quartet, members of Symphony, with Mr. Fiedler and Mr. SanRoma.

Neither Mr. Fiedler nor Mr. SanRoma need any introduction to music lovers of the North Shore, and are both favorites of patrons of the Arts Association's concerts.

The second concert to be given on Saturday, August 2, will feature a trio, violin, 'cello and piano, assisted by Miss Mary Silveira, soprano; while the third, on August 16th, will be given by the famous Boston Sinfonietta.

These concerts are under the patronage of Col. A. Piatt Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays

Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Kennard, Mrs. Louise A. Kinney, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Epes W. Merchant, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Montague, Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Nauss, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Patch, Mr. and

NORTH SHORE ARTS ASSOCIATION

This year's exhibition by members of the North Shore Arts Association at the galleries in East Gloucester Square is decidedly well worth seeing. John Cook's watercolors seem to be attracting much deserved attention, as does Polly Nordell's "Cosmos and Phlox."

There are some extremely well done canvases by Anthony Thieme, and two exquisite still lifes by Jeannette G. Lyon. A painting by Hal Ross Perrigard called "In Harbor," is a beautifully done study of ships at dock, while close beside it, "Lowestoft and Flowers," by Ruth Anderson claims the eye.

Two paintings by W. Lester Stevens, "At Fresole" and "Winter in Gstadt," are fine examples of his talent, and H. Boylston Dummer's "Springtime Brook," is interesting.

"The Inscription of the Testament," by Jacob Binder, portraying an old scribe writing on parchment in appropriate surroundings, is a splendid thing, showing the artist's ability to grasp his subject as a whole, without losing sight of essential detail. The painting won the Boston Arts Association prize this past winter.

George Hering's "The Supper at Emmaus" is remarkable for its portrayal of character in the faces of three men sitting quietly at table. Marian Sloane is showing another exquisite study of her beloved Vermont, and Galen Perrett has on exhibition a new painting of Pigeon Hill.

A still life by Eleanor Curtis Ahl, showing a nude figure against a gorgeous tapestry background is worthy of attention, as is a marine in blacks called "Romance of the Seas," by Alexander Tupper.

Not forgetting Margaret Fitzhugh Browne, whose portrait of Henry A. Wise Wood and his grandson is a fine example of her art in portraiture, we would call attention to "The Lavender Dress," by Ruth Anderson, another well done portrait-study.

Other splendid paintings, too numerous to mention, by artists well known on Cape Ann, hang in the galleries and demand appreciation. The group of etchings in the lower North Gallery are worthy of extensive study, while the small oils on the opposite wall are for the most part highly pleasing.

STILLINGTON HALL

The North Shore anticipates the premiere of "The Stars in His Heaven," an English comedy in three acts by Durward Grinstead and Leslie Buswell, to be presented by Mr. Buswell at Stillington Hall during the week of July 28. The cast of characters includes such artists as Miss Effie Shannon, who has done such marvelous work in the theatre under the direction of David Belasco, Winthrop Ames and others. Mr. Langdon Bruce, Miss Margaret Barker who comes to the hall from the Civic Theatre in Detroit, Mrs. Frank D. Stranahan, Mr. Charles Gazam, and Mr. Buswell himself.

Tickets for the opening night are in great demand, and several New York producers, among them Winthrop Ames, Lee Shubert and Johnson Briscoe, have signified their intention of being on hand for the occasion.

ART EXHIBITION OPENED

The Rockport Art Association opened its 10th annual exhibition at its new gallery, Main street, Sunday afternoon with a tea and reception, between 3 and 6 o'clock. The hostesses were Mrs. Charles Knapp, Mrs. John Buckley, Mrs. George P. Sloane and Mrs. Hal Ross Perrigard.

Goblin and Henry Worcester in the Scalene.

In the Birds, Aloof, sailed by Evelyn Woodbury, rounded the first and second turning buoys to the good, with Tern in close pursuit. On the close reach home it looked for a time as if Norman Olson in the Avis had a good fighting chance for the race. He alone stood to port over toward Coffin's Beach and got a heavy gust of wind coming off Essex Hills, and when the boats converged at Bar Rocks was ahead and to windward. But his luck was short-lived. The wind backed to southwest and headed him at the time when his prospects looked good, setting Aloof up to windward and in the lead to the finish by nearly five minutes.

In the Cats, Sidney Gleason succeeded in maintaining a lead he established at the sendoff, rounding all marks first, but Eunice Huntsman in the Purrr was within striking distance all the way. Charles Hill in Sailfish won out in the Fish boats. The summary:

PRESERVE PUBLIC LANDINGS

Modern Instances of How These Valuable Properties Have Lapsed Into Private Possession

From time to time The Shore has advocated greater care on the part of public officials regarding the preservation of public landings and roads. The record shows all too plainly that too many of these have slipped from public grasp through the indifference or complaisance of those whose duty it was to protect the public interest.

About twenty years ago Alderman Simonds, then City Solicitor, by direction of the Municipal Council compiled a comprehensive list of the landings remaining in the city's possession and this is on file at the City Clerk's office. The contention of The Shore always has been that eventually these landings would be an absolute public necessity.

The process of attrition by which these landings have gone into private hands was illustrated this week when the Municipal Council received a petition from the citizens of Magnolia that the public landing at Lobster lane, Kettle Cove, was being encroached again. The city engineer, upon investigating, reported back to the Council that such had been the case and that they had ordered the encroachment stopped and their request had been complied with. An order was subsequently passed by the council calling for a conference between representatives of the city and the parties in question.

Now the facts in this case are illuminating. Some thirty years ago a building was built on the landing but at the instance of some of the citizens, the matter was taken into the courts in behalf of the city and the city's title to the land was confirmed. But the city officials from that time on neglected to have the building removed. Twenty years elapsed and by the law of prescription the subsequent owners of the property claim title.

The building in question it was decided infringed forty feet on the landing—quite a sizable amount. The present owner recently tore down the old shed and attempted to build but the city has stepped in and asserts that when the old building was demolished title in the entire holding reverted to the city. It will be interesting to await the ultimate disposition of the case.

Here is a case which demands action apart from its historic associations. The landing should be adequately preserved by plainly defined indestructible metes and bounds.

This is the oldest landing place in the Massachusetts Bay colony. In the fall of 1626 when the Dorchester fishermen gave up their first choice of a base at what is now Stage Fort Park, as being too exposed to the weather and unsuitable for shelter for their boats, they removed to Kettle Cove, now Magnolia. Being purely a fishing settlement they set aside a landing place for fishermen forever. This landing place, the present Town Landing, was practically intact up to fifty years ago. Since that time it has shrunk. Here was the home of William Jeffery, an outstanding master fishing mariner, and of William Norman, and other toilers of the sea—members of the original Dorchester colony. William Jeffery was the discoverer of Jeffery's fishing bank.

Another case: During the winter the courts decided that there was no public landing at Goose Cove although the public had used it as such for more than 250 years. Here the fishermen, early settlers, from the northern part of the cape, including Sandy Bay, now Rockport, moored their craft for shelter. In 1732, according to public record, the people of Sandy Bay and Annisquam jointly laid out a road through the woods to Lobster and Goose Cove, the parting paths to which are still being used.

A grist and saw mill was erected at the head of Goose Cove—the foundation of which is still discernible. There the people came to have their timber sawed and their corn ground. It was in operation up to seventy-five years ago, Master Baker being the last owner. One side was a grist mill, the other converted logs into timber. A good sized brawling stream from Dogtown Commons turned two undershot wheels which furnished the motive power. By common consent there was a landing place but it was not thought worthwhile to make official note of it. It was taken for granted and so the landing

TWIN LIGHTS DOOMED

After 159 Years Famous Dual Beacons on Thacher's to be Reduced to One—Economy the Reason

During the winter the Lighthouse Bureau gave out that it intended to dispense with one of the lights of Thacher's Island, the mono-light to be of much more candlepower than the present lamps. But the threat, if threat it may be called, was not then carried into effect. Evidently the board preferred to wait until the storm of protest died away. This week, however, the board announced that its edict will be carried into effect.

The asserted reason is economy from a government which spends money lavishly and without stint in other directions but economizes to the quick when dealing with its fishermen or sailors.

Thacher's Twin Lights are among the famous lights of the world, ranking with Eddystone, the Highland, Barne-gat, Hatteras, and others. It has been the theme of story and romance from the very first when it received its name in a most tragic shipwreck of Rev. Anthony Thacher and family en route in 1635 from Ipswich to Marblehead. Its great value is that it is distinctive. It is the first seen by approaching shipping from Europe. There is no mistaking the twin beacons for any other. This one fact alone, humanity, should stay the hand of the Lighthouse officials from its intent. In thick weather, one big light is any big light anywhere along the coast. The twins leave the mariner in no doubt concerning his location.

In 1771 the Colonial government purchased the island, which contains about 80 acres, much of it good arable ground, for £500 and erected two lighthouses thereon which were first lighted December 21 (Forefather's Day), 1771. So you see that they have been twin lights since their beginning nearly 159 years ago. The present stone lighthouses were built in 1861 and were first lighted in October of that year. Recently a radio compass station has been established on the island.

In the War for Independence it played

THE GOLDEN GATE

By Lelia Norwood Adams

'Tis oft locked, calm, forbidding, grey
Within blue-hilled embrasure of the bay.
Mysterious, deep, inscrutable, it folds
Its fog-woven curtain.
All the great sea it holds;
It hides the Pacific
Nor can one pierce the subtle thickness through.

Yet, from the mountain-top
At eve, I saw
The gods take arms
And set about to war Upon the fog-bank that had lain for days
From blue to blue across the waterways.

With flashing intermingling lance on lance
A Golden Pennant flushed the skies; perchance
To herald Victory.
With setting sun
The mists disclosed the sea
Flowing from lip to lip
Of the jade hills,
Violet hued.

Art and Dramatic

THE LITTLE THEATRE

Having had a fling at Ibsen, and with three excellently produced and well acted one act plays to their credit already this season, the versatile young artists at the Little Theatre last week tried their hand at comedy, with what success those who had the pleasure of witnessing the presentation of Kane Campbell's "The Enchanted April" are well aware. These students of the drama who make their own costumes, build their own settings and assume the entire responsibility of actual production at the Theatre School on Rocky Neck, have added much to the charm and popularity of this section of Cape Ann. On Friday and Saturday nights the Neck is a Mecca for theatre lovers of the North Shore, whose delight it is to see their favorite dramas charmingly presented.

The honors for Saturday night's production go to Miss May Sarton, whose interpretation of the character of Mrs. Lotty Wilkins was a revelation to her audience, and Mr. Charles Edgecomb, always a favorite, whose portrayal of Thomas Briggs was both skillful and effective.

NORTH SHORE THEATRE

Moran and Mack, better known in the world of entertainment as the Two Black Crows, now make their second starring appearance on the talking screen in the riotous comedy, "Anybody's War," coming to the North Shore Theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In this new Paramount picture, they play through-out in blackface, in a brand-new, laugh-provoking story that reveals these entertainers with a new set of funny sayings. As two lazy, drawling darkies who have their own ideas on how to make the world safe for democracy, Moran and Mack reach new heights in the realm of comedy antics, getting more hearty laughs than they ever did when they were the stars of Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

In "Anybody's War," Charley Mack is a dog-catcher in a small Southern village. He succeeds in catching stray dogs but somehow or other, he hasn't the heart to kill them. Instead, he and the oddest collection of mongrel pups ever assembled, keep "house" in a tumbled down shack where Mack spends most of his time sleeping.

But the war fever catches up the Two Black Crows. They enlist,

DOGTOWN COMMONS—THE NEW WATERSHED

Just now a great deal has been heard of Dogtown Commons in connection with the acquisition of the area as a water shed for a storage basin, work on which is now in progress.

Perhaps no other place on the Cape has been so much written about—the “Deserted Village,” as it has been termed with its mournful history and its “heroes (and heroines) in obscurity.”

rates that infested the shore and made forays on the settlements when the men were away on the fishing grounds. Again a very present and real danger was the threatened coming of a French fleet to ravish, kill and destroy and take over the country for French domination, for had not Champlain mapped out the harbor as French in 1606?

The people were in a ferment of anxiety. The Belgians had less reason to very purpose. News of this intention traveled swiftly to the hamlets along the coast line. It was a war of extermination. Either this continent was to be Gallic or Anglo-Saxon. Fortunately dissension among the French leaders and a great gale springing up dispersed this formidable armada which never reached its destination. Then the colonists determined to get the jump on the French and under Sir William Pep-Cellar of House on Dogtown Commons Built and Occupied by William Pearce, Prominent Merchant.

People wonder why this bleak and out of the way moorland in the central section of the Cape, bare and uninviting, was selected for a residence, and various fantastic reasons have been assigned therefor.

The truth is that the most of these settlers were of very humble means, squatters, so to speak. In the years 1688 and 1723 the freeholders of the town apportioned out to every able-bodied man of twenty-one certain wood lots to be held in common, then being covered with a thick growth of virgin timber.

The northern part of the cape was peopled almost wholly by fishermen. At first there was the peril from the pi-fear the Germans than the colonists, the French, who with their Indian allies gave no quarter to the Anglairs.

One day two fishermen came into port and breathlessly informed the populace that a French flotilla was right off the cape becalmed in a fog. Ensued the wildest scene in the town's history. The rich commandeered every available vehicle, horse, ox or drawn by man-power on which they hastily packed their valuables and over the road to Essex and Ipswich a steady stream of fugitives, men, women and children poured and urged on their beasts, fleeing from the wrath to come.

In 1746 two fleets set out from the French base at Nova Scotia for this peril sent out a fleet which by sea and land took Louisburg twice, and forever wiped out the French on this North American continent with the exception of that latter day oasis, St. Pierre et Miquelon. Gloucester had two land and two ship companies among those present on these occasions.

So to avoid these anticipated evils the humble fishermen of the north side of the cape built little log cabins on the commons and took their families there to live. In the summer they fished, the women helping to cure the catch. In the winter they cut wood and hauled it to Goose Cove for shipment in the fall to Boston, their market for firewood. Also cargoes of sand for sanding floors.

Included among these abodes of people of humble station was a larger house erected for the principal magnate of the town, William Pearce, who had it in readiness for a safety first get-away, as he naturally would be the first sought out by the enemy.

After the French menace had been removed, comparative peace prevailed. The prosperous from Up-in-Town moved to the harbor leaving the little place more isolated. The Revolution tied up the fishing fleet completely. Then the men went into privateering, financed by Pearce. But ill luck eventually befell them. More than one hundred women were widowed by capture of privateers, and non-return of vessels, whose fate was never known.

Shortly after the Revolution a number of the fishing fleet went down in a gale almost wiping out the able-bodied men of the hamlet. Soon it was inhabited only by women and their families. By 1840 the last house had fallen down or been removed, the last inhabitant being a negro, Old Black Neil, who had to be removed by force to the Town Poorhouse and for about a hundred years the place has been abandoned as a habitation, the rows of stone cellars and cow enclosures marking almost imperishably its location. It's an axiom that the poorer the people the larger the dog population. The widows no doubt needed these animals for protection. Abandoned they relapsed into half-savagery and snapped and snarled at all visitors to the locality. Dog hill in the eastern part of the town was similarly nomenclatured.

Well, the place has been written up and its odd characters, Judy Rhines, Easter Carter, Tammy Younger, and others, who were reported to be witches and who demanded toll of passing fishermen, who, if they failed to come across, had a spell put on their cattle, etc., told fortunes and otherwise supported themselves precariously.

What amazes the visitor to the place is the large number of boulders, liberally besprinkled over the place. Geologists say they mark the passage of the great white serpent, the glaciers born in the North Pole, winding slowly but inexorably down through the New England country, the sun melting them and letting the boulders down to tell the future aeons of what had gone before. So that the place has a double interest to the geologist and historian.

Thus a visit to the place just now is doubly opportune. One may see whence the water is to be derived. A gravelly terrain on which vegetation grows sparsely, denuded of all trees more than a hundred years ago and unoccupied by humans since. A dam 2,000 feet long and 60 feet deep will impound the snows of winter and the rains of spring and fall, pure and undefiled, as the city has taken over the entire tract. A stand-pipe on a neighboring hillock will furnish a duplicate reservoir supply on tap at any time. And there is no suspicion of graft in connection with the transaction.

TO MY LADY IN SEARCH OF THE DISTINCTIVE MAGNOLIA

MAGNOLIA

JUST NOW life hereabouts is quiet, but August is just around the corner and things will soon liven up. Magnolia needs some one with the old-time pep, like the group of yesteryear that staged the beach show in July and the horse show in August. Those were the days when matters social hummed hereabouts and Magnolia was much on the map.

Now it is said that if President Hoover comes to the North Shore at all, it will not be before the first week in October when the Legion convention is on. Just the same there is no more beautiful period in the year than Essex County in October. But that's too late to boost the summer season.

Wednesday Mrs. Scott Frazer of Beverly entertained some eighteen guests at luncheon and bridge at Green Gables.

Mr. Norris of Newton Centre entertained a party of eighteen at dinner at Green Gables recently.

Guests at the North Shore Inn this week are Mrs. C. A. Foley, Arlington; Mrs. Irving Holstead, New York; Miss Lucile James, Petersburg, Va.; Mrs. S. E. Mezes, Austin, Tex.

At the Oceanside are A. Rex Flynn of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Louis K. Hyde of Plainfield; Mrs. Hettie H. Low, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Miller, Cincinnati.

At the Oceanside Tuesday bridge, prize winners were Mrs. E. M. Binney, Boston; Mr. Robert Stead, Philadelphia; Mrs. Edith Pratt, Boston; A. W. Kennard, Boston; Mrs. A. L. Fitzpatrick, New York; Miss E. S. Crane and Mrs. F. E. Warner of Boston.

Monday nights a concert or play is being presented at the Oceanside under the direction of Vladimir Rosing and Mr. E. Rice. This week's program includes a one-act play, "Afternoon," by Philip Johnson, with Ismar Black, Susan Wigglesworth, and Edison Rice, and "The Twelve Pound Look," another one-act play by Barrie, with Doris Rich, Mata Roudin, and E. Fleming Watson.

The Rainbow Fete on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. William Coolidge, "Blynman Farm," on Saturday afternoon, was attended by a large and fashionable gathering of North Shore society folk. The fete was given as a benefit for the Boston Children's Friend Society.

The names of attendants at the various booths were as published in a previous issue.

Miss Alice Laughlin of Pittsburgh and New York is the guest of Mrs. John Hays Hammond at Lookout Hill.

Miss Natalie Hays Hammond has joined her parents at Lookout Hill for the rest of the season. Miss Elizabeth Hammond, who has been in Paris during the spring and summer, will sail for home August 6. Richard Pindell Hammond, who is pursuing his musical studies in Paris, will remain there for a season.

As the season progresses, Del Monte's continues to be a center of attraction for pleasure seekers of the North Shore.

Among those entertaining at the Casino last week were Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kaufman of Washington and Bass Rocks, with a party of twenty-four; Mr. A. N. Winslow of Bass Rocks, who entertained a party of twenty-five; Mr. J. J. Chickering of Andover, and party of twelve; Mr. John Flint of Manchester, party of four; Mr. Richard Boardman of Marblehead, with a party of eighteen; Mr. Hugh Ward of Beverly Farms, and party of twenty; Mrs. Donald Shields of Magnolia, party of fourteen; Mr. James J. Phelan of Smith's Point and party of twelve; Mr. Joseph O'Connell of Magnolia and party of ten; Mr. William Harmon of Bass Rocks with a party of ten; Miss Emily Stewart of Bass Rocks, party of twenty; Mr. R. M. Spaulding of Manchester, and party of twelve; Miss Alicia Kennedy and party of twenty-four; Mr. Dan Donahue of Salem, and party of eighteen; Mr. and Mrs. George Vaughan, Jr., of Hamilton and party of eight.

FRESHWATER COVE

Gustave A. Quiring and sisters, Misses Joanna L. and Julia C., who purchased the Dillaway cottage in Hesperus lane several years ago for a summer home, have arrived for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Warren Kimball of Brookline have come to their fine seashore home, Mussel Point, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones of Arlington with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCann and family have come to the Mussel Point cottage which they have occupied for a long term of years.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Woodworth and daughters, Lucia and Linda, of Arlington, have returned to their cottage in Mussel Point road for the season.

Hon. John Thomas and Mrs. Annie Webster Thomas are at "Pen-Y-Craig," Freshwater Cove ridge. They have with them as guests Mrs. D. R. Webster and daughter, Marguerite, of Nashua, N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. Bertram D. Perkins of Warren. Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner has been their recent guest.

Miss Florence Snelling of Boston, who makes her summer home in the historic Master Moore homestead in Hesperus lane, has arrived for the season.

Treselier, Jane and Blanche O. Humpton, Baltimore.

Mrs. C. W. Blow and son, Thomas R. Blow of St. Louis, who have been guests at the Rockaway Hotel for many years, have returned here for another season.

Dr. E. A. Codman of Boston was a recent visitor at the Rockaway. Dr.

Prizes at the regular Tuesday evening bridge at the Rockaway, were won last week by Miss Julia Recker, Oakville, Conn., and Mrs. Sidney Reeve of New York City.

At the Rockaway: Mrs. A. C. Kendall, Mrs. E. F. Robinson, Brookline; Leslie C. Powers, Miss Helen L. Powers, Madame H. Sevarly, Dr. John W. Shedd, New York City; Mrs. J. J. Corner, Baltimore; Mrs. Dorothy B. Schmidt, Robert W. and Jane Schmidt, George F. Morton, Cincinnati; Paul Carpenter, Chicago.

C. S. W. Bissell of Philadelphia has joined his family, who are spending the summer at the Rockaway.

At the Delphine: Mrs. George Clements Newell, Boston; Miss G. S. Oliver, Somerville; Mrs. Charles H. Pugh, Winchester; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Corell, with Miss Louise Corell, New York City; Mrs. Harriet W. Learned, Mrs. Charles F. Bridges, Albany; Mrs. Milton Fleming, Ruth Barrett, Rosalie Bicker, Baltimore.

Mrs. O. McG. Howard of Chicago entertained at tea on Sunday afternoon at the Delphine in honor of Miss Ruth Hallock. Miss Hallock, who is an artist, makes her home on Rocky Neck. The tea was given on the spacious veranda overlooking the harbor with its Sunday afternoon activity. Guests were Miss Ruth Hallock, Miss Jean Nutting Oliver of Boston; Mrs. E. Wakefield of Dedham; Miss Kathleen Klein of Jaffrey, N. H.; Miss Mary Ferris of New York; Miss Mabel Grant of Chicago; Miss Helen Seymour of Washington, and Miss Ruth Hallock's sister.

At the Pilgrim House: Mrs. C. W. Hasildin, Boston; Mrs. Mark A. Richardson, Robert J. Cram, Jr., Newton Centre; Fannie L. Stowell, Mrs. George B. McNammon, Newtonville; William A. Finney, Brookline; Rev. Ernest M. Paddock, Miss Dorothea Paddock, Cambridge; Mrs. K. B. Bloomer, Mrs. J. B. Berwick, Northampton; Hazel H. Chapin, Springfield; William C. Wallace, Ann E. ## BASS ROCKS

SANDS IN THE JULY hour-glass are about run out. August is less than a week away and the season is shortening up. More and more the disposition seems to make the seashore stay more restful, eliminating splurge and show. The golf links are not as animated as usual. A caddie of several seasons attributed this to "prohibition," which is perhaps as good an alibi as any. The men folk are perforce tied close to the counting room and just can't get away.

Thursday the Cape Ann Garden Club held an exhibition at the home of Mrs. James L. Stuart, "Swan Rock," Atlantic avenue. Mrs. Stuart for several seasons has opened her house for these exhibitions which are of great interest to those of the summer colony as well as the permanent residents.

Colonel and Mrs. Ernest Johnson of Coral Gables, Fla., are the guests of Mrs. Alexander Bowler at Twin Light manor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Norris of Haverford, Penn., are guests for the week of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Jr., at Bass Rocks.

Mrs. George F. Leavitt of Worcester is the house guest of Mrs. George F. Fuller at "Krossanes."

The annual invitation tournament of the ladies' section of the Bass Rocks Golf Club will be held next Tuesday. The committee in charge is Mrs. Frederick Boyce, Jr., chairman; Mrs. Belvedere Brooks, Mrs. E. Tucker Sayward and Miss Letitia Scott.

GOOD HARBOR BEACH INN

The Saturday evening dancing parties at the Inn are very popular and most successful. Music is furnished by Mac En Ernie's orchestra. Late arrivals include:

Melva A. Doyle, Lexington; Minnie K. Alexander, Frances Eisner, Mrs. William Jones, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Colburn, Margaret M. Mitchell, Elinor Marshall, Worcester; Hilma E. THE YOUNG YACHTSMEN representing the Point at Marblehead acquitted themselves creditably and gave their opponents a run for the money all the way. The series was quite closely sailed and the margin of difference between the leading crews negligible.

Mr. and Mrs. James Murray Kay and Mr. and Mrs. James Murray Kay, Jr., of Berwin, Penn., are the guests of Colonel and Mrs. John Wing Prentiss at Blighty.

Miss May Murray Kay, who has spent the winter in Paris, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Prentiss, at Blighty.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones of Kansas City, parents of Mr. Frank E. Jones, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jones for the season at their summer home, "Green Gables."

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund S. Raymond of Cleveland are the guests for the season of Mrs. S. A. Raymond at the Ramparts.

Miss Bertha Stockwell of New York, a guest at the Ramparts for several seasons, is making a stay there during July.

SNOW

Of all the lovely things that fall,
Snow is the loveliest of all.
It covers up the ugly tracks,
It paints in white the peddlars' packs;
And every tree-top in the night
Seems to carry a sacred light.

The path that winds around the hill
Curls a ribbon, white and still,
Tying together every bush
Against which little wild things push,
Leaving their footprints in the snow,
Lace-like patterns that come and go.

THE ROCKPORT SHORE

NEW AND WELCOME note this week was the revival of yachting. Years ago Rockport had a lively yacht club which held races weekly throughout the season. It seems as if there ought to be interest in this maritime town to support such an institution as an asset and attraction to the place. We understand that the management contemplates to make these invitation races an annual event. Good idea.

Mrs. James Adams has taken a cottage on Norwood avenue for the summer months. Mrs. Adams makes her winter home in Brookline.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Worcester of Waltham have returned to "Rockend," Land's End, for the season.

Dr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Howard of Brookline have come again to "Briar-mere," Land's End, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Lyons of Lexington have arrived at their cottage on Briarstone road for the season.

Miss Lidia M. Serven is at "The Ark" on Bearskin Neck for the season. Miss Serven comes to Rockport from Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. Warren D. Ruston of Boston are at their Marmion Way cottage for another season.

Mr. Yarnall Abbott of Philadelphia has returned to Rockport for the current summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Worcester of Waltham are at "Rockend" for the warm months.

Mrs. Frederick A. Rugen is at "Rochelle Cottage" this season. Mrs. Rugen's residence is in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Anderson of Malden are at their Briarstone Road cottage.

Mr. Charles F. Arey of Salem is spending the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Arey at Land's End.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bigelow of Natick are at their Marmion Way home for the season.

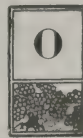

Mr. and Mrs. John T. G. Nichols of Cambridge are at their Land's End cottage.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward J. O'Brien, Jr., of Newton are expected to arrive at "Warren Cottage" in the near future.

Professor and Mrs. Marshall H. Saville of New York City are spending the summer at their Shetland road cottage.

ANNISQUAM

N ALL SIDES satisfaction is expressed over the acquisition of the Triangle class and interest in yachting hereabouts has been correspondingly heightened by this injection of new blood, so to speak. Boats and sailors are evenly matched. A little more strength to the breeze than has prevailed would make these tests more satisfactory, but no doubt this will come as the fall draws closer.

Mrs. Lester C. Feener and Mrs. Doris Story gave a luncheon with bridge to a number of their friends in the colony at the yacht club house Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Harry G. Pew gave a card party at her summer home, "Riverview," Wednesday afternoon in aid of the Addison Gilbert Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. James Guiler of Westboro have arrived for the season at their summer home, Norman Heights.

Master Stephen Carveth, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Carveth, whose summer home is at Norwood Heights, gave a party to about twenty-five of his little friends at the home of his parents Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Disler, daughter of Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, gave an informal tea to a number of her friends in the summer colony at "Sheepocks," Thursday.

Hyatt Mayor, Princeton and Oxford, who has been staying with his family at "Sevenacres," left this week for Woodstock, N. Y., where he is to give three lectures on art.

The scarcity of water has caused serious inconvenience to many who have extensive gardens. Mr. Henry A. Wise Wood has solved the problem by making a connection with an adjacent pond using an electric motor for his power pump. The Wood place never looked lovelier than at the present.

WHEELER'S POINT

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burnham and family of Gloucester are at their Wheeler's Point home for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Delaney of Somerville, with their children, Mary Elizabeth and Charles, are at Wheeler's Point for another summer.

Mr. John P. Foley and family of Melrose have returned to Wheeler's Point for the summer months.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

In Magnolia—Lunch at Del Monte's—
Gay's Suspicions—At the Shore

The scene is Magnolia, the time, a cool morning in midsummer, the actors, most of the Clan. They are at Richard Briggs', and engaged in a particular study of the most adorable place card holders imaginable. Anne is holding up a charming spray of wild roses, in Dresden, for their approval. Before them is an assortment of tiny geranium pots, sweet forget-me-nots, black-eyed Susans, all in Dresden china, with the cunningest little arrangement at the back for holding the card in place. Then there were perpetual place cards, also of Dresden, with the plain center (which can be used again and again) surrounded by a gold frame, and hand decorated with tiny bouquets of flowers.

"Just the thing for Christmas gifts!" exclaimed Peggy. "Wouldn't you love them yourself?"

"I can't think of anything more attractive!" Anne replied.

And so among them, they took all there were on display, and wanted more. Anne was somewhat skeptical about being able to procure others, but she was assured that there was another shipment on the way, which would arrive in a day or two.

And so they left that fascinating shop, for a tour of inspection of midsummer fashions. After revelling for half an hour or so in the shop window displays, which seem even more charming than ever this summer, they found themselves standing in front of Manahan's at the very end of the Colonnade.

"Have you heard," Peggy was asking, "about that marvellous sunburn cream that people are getting at Manahan's? It seems that if you rub it on before going out bathing or anything, it keeps you from burning, and assures a smooth, even tan."

"Prevents burning, promotes tan. Is that the idea?" asked Joan, laughingly. (Joan was dark, and tanned beautifully). "Let's go in and see about it."

So in they went, and discovered that the popular and powerful cream was Dorothy Gray's Sunburn Cream, and that it actually did all that was claimed for it. Peggy hailed it with delight.

"No more sunburns for little Peggy!" she exclaimed. "And no more freckles!"

They also discovered more Dorothy Gray preparations, to their very great pleasure. Such things as are always luxurious necessities were among the display. Texture lotion, Eau de cologne, cleansing cream, soaps and bath powders.

Before they left Anne discovered something new in French silk underwear, and Gay was delighted with the very daintiest of dainty linen handkerchiefs.

Across the street at the Grande Maison de Blanc where they had drifted some time later, they were enchanted with the stunning three-piece flannel sports suits on display there. The suits were in pink, blue, and aquamarine, coat and pleated skirt of the finest of flannel, with white sweater striped in matching colors completing the costume.

There were some adorable little beach suits for children there, too, with long trousers and short jacket. They were of jersey, in red, green and navy blue. Almost any youngster, the girls thought, would have a better time at the beach in a suit like that than he would in his ordinary clothes.

At Ovington's, which was next on the morning's shopping list, they concentrated on flower containers.

"They're so awfully useful," commented Peggy, "and so absolutely decorative. Why, it almost seems that if you put a bowl or vase of flowers in an almost empty room, it becomes immediately cozy and homelike. I'd like to have dozens and dozens of them."

"Well, there are dozens and dozens of them here," Anne told her. "All yours for the buying."

And so there were. Lovely, graceful ones, called lalique, which suited so perfectly; vases of Belgian glasses, with bands and designs of cobalt blue encased; vases in the French style, with gilt cupids holding up a crystal container; bowls and vases of Venetian glass, in the softer colorings. Loveliest of all were those marked Galle, which bore an exquisite raised design. These were made in France, and each piece signed.

PEWTER belongs to the country cottage! Its quaint charm, its varied service, its immunity from constant care and cleaning are but three of its splendid virtues. To these Ovington's adds a fourth commendation . . . the attraction of modest prices.

Being surfeited with flower containers, though not actually the possessor of the desired "dozens and dozens," Peggy suggested that they visit Schmidt's and see the new room which has been added at the rear especially for glorious old furniture and silver.

Anne was a fervent admirer of old Sheffield plates, and old Spode. Schmidt's was always attractive to her, and she always left, as today, with reluctance. The atmosphere of the shop with its sides simply banked with lovely old pieces of silver, was one she reveled and exulted in. So old world, it seemed to her, so aristocratic.

"It's getting late," suggested Joan. "How about lunch at Del Monte's?"

"Fine," agreed Peggy. "I've promised to meet Chubby at the North Shore Theatre in time for the first performance. We'll get back in time, don't you think?"

"We've all got to get back, I guess," said Gay. "Jimmie and I are going to Gorton Pew's again this afternoon. Isn't it wonderful," she added, "to be able to see just how your food is put up, and under what conditions?"

"I know," Peggy told her. "Gorton Pew's and Nauss' are Chubby's two favorite hangouts."

"Haven't you forgotten Wetherell's?" suggested Gay.

"Chubby does think they have a marvellous soda fountain," admitted Peggy. "But then, you see, he simply visits them periodically, two or three times a day perhaps; while he almost lives at these other places."

"It used to be the Gloucester Coal and Lumber Company with Chubby, didn't it?" Gay wanted to know. "It seems to me when Jimmie and I were first married Chubby was always wanting to take us there to 'look around,' as he put it."

"Their uptown store claims his attention now," Peggy said.

"And small wonder," put in Anne. "That store is fascinating enough to claim the attention of any of us. Those gorgeous old reproductions! Made exactly to original measurements, and perfect copies. And all the fun of choosing your own finish, too. I think it's a wonderful scheme, and I envy Chubby every minute he spends there."

"By the way, girls, what do you think about Larry?" Gay asked suddenly.

"Nothing unusual," replied Anne. "Why?"

"I saw him in Botts' this morning, buying a trunk."

"What kind of a trunk?" Peggy wanted to know.

"One of those Hartmann wardrobe trunks, with the solid brass trimmings," Gay told her. "But what difference does that make?"

"None," confessed Peggy. "I'm going to buy one myself soon, and that's the first thing that popped into my mind."

Arriving at Del Monte's they were seated at a table overlooking the ocean, and their wants speedily attended to by an immaculate, uniformed waiter.

"About Larry and his trunk," pursued Anne when their lunch had arrived. "What do you suspect?"

"Nothing in particular," replied Gay. "I suppose that a person may buy a trunk whenever he pleases, without suspicion or criticism. But I happen to know that Larry received a telegram this morning which made him very, very excited, and that he immediately dashed for town and purchased the trunk."

"Did you follow him?" Peggy wanted to know.

"Of course not," from Gay, indignantly. "Jimmie was there when the telegram came, and I saw him in town half an hour later at Botts'. Jimmie and I compared notes, and there it is."

"Bravo!" exclaimed Peggy. "Holmes and Watson themselves couldn't have done better!"

"Seriously, though," said Gay. "I wonder what's up?"

"Perhaps his maiden aunts have died and left him a million dollars," suggested Joan.

"More likely Judith's called, and Larry's responded," remarked Anne. "I was afraid it would happen."

"Afraid?" questioned Gay.

"Perhaps I shouldn't have said just that," replied Anne. "But Judith is somewhat doubtful, don't you think? I mean we don't know much about her, and she's acted so queerly toward Larry and all."

"But we don't know much about Larry, either," pointed out Gay. "How do we know that he has a pair of maiden aunts in Maine whom he visits occasionally? How do we know where he goes when he leaves on these Maine expeditions? Is there really a Judith, I wonder?"

"Why, Larry's all right, of course," protested Peggy. "He's told us—"

"That's just it," broke in Gay. "'He's told us.' But what do we know definitely? Does anybody know anybody who knows him?"

All were silent, realizing that Gay was right. Larry had come to the shore unheralded and unknown. By sheer personality he had made his way into their innermost circle, and had been accepted by the Clan as one of themselves, without question. Not a shadow of doubt had been cast upon him in all the weeks they'd known him, until now.

Gay was speaking again.

"Do you remember how strangely he acted the night Marcia disappeared? I think," she paused dramatically, "I think that young man knows more than he tells."

"Do you—do you actually suppose he knows where Marcia is?" asked Peggy, breathlessly.

"I didn't say anything of the sort," returned Gay. "But I do say this. I'm suspicious of Larry."

"Supposing we tell the boys about your suspicions, which I think are shared by most of us now, and let them talk to Larry," suggested Anne. "Perhaps they can get some information without seeming suspicious. That is, if Larry has any information."

"What I suggest," remarked Joan, "is that we go straight back to the shore now, and see whether Larry is at his house."

"Good idea," approved Anne. "You and I will go back directly. Peggy and Gay have engagements, but perhaps they'll meet the boys and postpone them. Bring them right back to the shore with you, girls, and we'll settle this Larry business right away."

All agreeing, Anne and Joan started off in Joan's little roadster, leaving the others in Peggy's sedan.

There was time for a little shopping before meeting the boys, so Gay and Peggy went directly to Brown's where they found some especially good looking underwear. It was Van Raalte, and was guaranteed not to drop stitch. This feature appealed to both girls, and as the dainty little garments in lovely soft shades appealed to their sense of beauty as well as their idea of practicality, they left the store possessed, each of them, with a more or less complete stock of lingerie.

At the North Shore Furniture Company, Peggy ordered another comfy porch chair to match the one Chubby had so deftly appropriated. At Shepherd's they spent more time than was necessary to make their purchases, enjoying the cool cleanliness of that unusual meat market.

Proceeding to the Gloucester National Bank (Gay, as usual, found it absolutely necessary to cash a check), they talked of Marcia's disappearance, Larry's "queerness," Gay's suspicions, and a host of other things connected with the summer's adventure at the shore.

Chubby's tennis court, Peggy said, was growing daily more attractive under the Swinson Brothers' direction, while the Maytag washing machine which she herself had bought at L. E. Smith's was proving itself a delightful addition to her summer establishment.

Gay was seriously considering installing a Bulldog furnace in her cottage, because of the chill mornings and evenings. She'd heard them highly recommended by other members of the Clan, and was most anxious to see for herself.

"We've just time," said Peggy, "to dash up to Mary Ellen Golden's for a few pounds of her delicious chocolates. I try never to be without them at the shore."

"Between chocolates and Chanticleer ice cream," groaned Gay, "you'll soon be a proper match for Chubby."

Leaving Mary Ellen Golden's, and coming back toward Main street to keep their different engagements, they were surprised to find both boys at Earl O. Phillips purchasing bathing suits. Spaulding suits they were buying, the kind with four-inch elastic stretch. Since they were in all colors, it was more or less difficult to choose, but Jimmie had finally compromised on a dull green, while Chubby had wisely selected a slenderizing black.

"We're to go straight back to the shore," Peggy informed them breathlessly. "Get into the car, Chubby, and I'll tell you about it on the way."

Arriving at the shore they found the others gathered on Anne's porch. Joan came to meet them. They knew immediately, by the look on her face, that something was amiss.

She came close enough to speak.

"Larry's gone," she said. "There isn't even a note."

EASTERN POINT, JULY 19

While the Squam boats were bowling along Saturday afternoon in Ipswich Bay under a strong westerly breeze, the Eastern Point yachtsmen had to be contented with a light, fluky wind from the southwest. Four classes started and in each the outcome was virtually decided when the first side of the triangle had been sailed. It was a beat to Kettle Island, a free reach to the southern mark and a run home.

In the R class the Taja berthed up to windward of the line, got the jump, and from that time on increased her advantage, being three minutes to the good at the weather mark.

Shamrock got what advantage there was in the Sonder get off. Six of this fleet held off shore to starboard while Lady took a chance inshore under Norman's Woe, but lost heavily. Tern and Skeezix, in the offshore division, drew out in the lead and had a battle royal for first place, the Magnolia boat nosing inside Skeezix and grabbing off the honors at the turning mark. Thereafter on the free legs Tern held her own and a little more. Skeezix and Hevella finished second and third.

It was Injun file from the start in the Triangles, Sprite making a bid for first position at the gun fire. Injun led a detail comprising Black Bess, Trident, Dart and Cursor, off shore wind hunting, while the others stood inshore under the land, luck being with the first division. The Redskin made the weather mark in the van with Wiki Wiki runner up. Flirt was third best. On the broad reach across, Injun stretched her margin to three minutes and held it on the spinnaker run home.

The Cape Cod Knockabouts sailed the regulation inside course,

ANNISQUAM, JULY 19

A fine sailing breeze from the westward, although inclined to be puffy, held true throughout and afforded fine yachting conditions at Annisquam.

Four classes sailed, the 15s not making the race. In the Triangles Francis Gleason brought the Idol home a winner, making it two even thus far for the Idol, Goblin and Scalene. The advantage went to the Idol at the start, she being berthed on the West Parish side, while the other three hugged the Squam bank, Idol avoiding the incoming tide and reaching Bar Rocks ahead. All hands set spinners on the run to Plum Cove, Idol making it 50 seconds ahead of Goblin.

There was very little windward work, it being a close haul from the Cove to Essex, the race resolving itself into a duel between Idol and Goblin, the former holding her own, and a bit more. On the broad reach home spinners again were broken out and taken in at the river mouth. There was no change to the finish.

In the Bird Boats, Flamingo took the lead, but was disposed of by Avis and Oloof on the run to Plum Cove. On the close haul to Essex, Oloof and Flamingo split, the result being that Flamingo reached the Essex mark first, Oloof 20 seconds astern.

From that time on, the race resolved itself into a battle between the two, the others being hopelessly left on the close-hauled work.

There was no change in the run in, Flamingo stretching out its lead at the Stone beacon and retaining it to the line.

In the Fish class, Skipjack was leading boat until out of the river, when Harry Griffin overhauled and passed her to hold the lead throughout the race.

In the Cat class, on the beat to Essex, John White in the Kittiwake, Sidney Gleason in the Scratch and Ben Smith in the Caterpillar, were the leaders in that order. The first two retained their advantage on the beat home to the finish, Caterpillar being displaced at the lighthouse by Eunice Huntsman in the Purr and Ray Huntsman in Wild Cat. The summary:

EASTERN POINT, JULY 20

Three classes started out Sunday afternoon at Eastern Point in a 15-knot northwest breeze, but before the finish line was reached the wind softened. There were two starters in the "R" class, which was a walkaway for Taja.

In the Sonders Tern had things very much her own way. With Tern several minutes on her way on the windward post, Shamrock and Hevella turned to leeward practically with honors even. On the beat they were in a luffing match, Hevella having the advantage, adding to it on the broad reach home.

In the Triangles Black Bess showed the way to the southern mark. Kitmer, second boat, losing her place and falling astern when she carried away her spinnaker pole, Sprite moving up into second place, and Flirt third. On the thrash to windward Black Bess and Sprite parted company, Sprite continuing offshore. When they converged the Sprite was five lengths to the good. An additional setback came to Black Bess when her spinnaker went ballooning skyward. Injun, which had followed Sprite's example in standing offshore, got third place.

As an added attraction to the yachting show a three days' series to be sailed July 28, 29 and 30 for a trophy offered by Commodore John Greenough of the Eastern Point Yacht Club will be sailed in the Triangle class between 12 boats, four each from Marblehead, Eastern Point and Annisquam, to be sailed on the Eastern Point course. Charles Liffler, Jr., has also offered a trophy for the season's winner in the "R" class.

ANNISQUAM, JULY 20

A lively breeze from the northwest favored the Annisquam boats this Sunday afternoon. In the Triangles Russell Smith piloted the Goblin to a third victory. The course in this class was four miles dead ahead to Ipswich buoy and a run home, windward and leeward. At the weather end of the journey Blue Bill was a minute astern of Goblin, the latter on the run home adding to her margin.

In the Bird section Flamingo established a lead in the first 10 minutes that eventually won. She was being challenged by Oloof on the windward work, but a haliard parted, a stay gave away and the craft was worked back to her moorings.

Francis Gleason was at the tiller of the Scratch in the Cats and reached the stake first. Harry Griffin scored again in the Perch.

ORTH SHORE A. A. CONCERT

iedler, Sannoma, Droeghmans, eiral Surely names to conjure tal pictures of beautiful mu- by artists! These will be the ers three and and the young rano soloist to appear on the ert platform for the second in series of three chamber ons, to be given at the gallery the North Shore Arts Associa- at East Gloucester square on rday evening, August 2, at o'clock.

he musical trio will present ups as the first and third dings of the program with wood sic for parts two and four. For program, Arthur Fiedler, ductor of the Boston Symphony s concerts, leader of the pop- r Esplanade concerts in Boston director of the North Shore s Association chamber ons, will play the violin. Hippo- Droeghmans, cellist, will be ther representative of the Bos- Symphony orchestra to be rd in this concert while Jesus ria Sannoma, official pianist of Boston Symphony orchestra, a favorite with Shore musical diences, will be the pianist.

The guest artist will be Mary eira (Mrs. Philip Thomas- pl) of New York City, young uccister who is making a e for herself in the world of sic. Possessed of a lyric voice, eira's range is wide and notes are true, even in the far- est reaches of her compositions. ly bird-like in quality is her voice, backed by a staunch ten- uer while an unswerving loyal- ty to the best that is hers to give marks Miss Silveira's singing and makes her an artist to be honor to the distinguished instrumentalists in whose concert she will assist.

Miss Silveira, who has been heard in her native city only too seldom, will find an eager audience for her coming program. It is especially interesting at this time to note that she was the prima donna for an outdoor presentation of opera in Atlantic City, N. J., on Sunday, singing the role of Marguerite in "Faust." She comes on to Gloucester this week for the concert of August 2.

The program for the concert, the second in the North Shore Arts series, has been arranged as follows:

I

Trio
No. IV in C major (Kochel, No. 548) ..... Mozart:

Allegro
Andante cantabile
Allegro

II

Song of Barberini ..... Goossens
Snowflakes ..... Gretchaninoff
(This was part of from "Barber of Seville" ..... Rossini)

III

Trio
No. II, Op. 100 in E flat major Schubert

Allegro
Andante con moto

Scherzo (Allegro moderato)
Allegro moderato

IV

EXHIBITION OF PHOTOGRAPHY

An unusual and decidedly striking exhibition of photographic studies may be viewed this summer at Nunes' Branch Store on Rocky Neck. The exhibition is under the direction of Herbert Bryant Turner, himself a photographer-artist of some distinction. Photography is an art which is becoming more and more popular, and remarkable progress is being made in the field. Various studies of harbor scenes, boats, old wharves and surf are to be found in this exhibition, as well as unusual portrait work, and still lifes.

Among the artists exhibiting at the Nunes' Gallery are Herbert Bryant Turner, former president of the Union Camera Club of Boston, Frank Roy Frapsie, editor of the American Photographic Magazine, Antoinette Perret, whose illustrations are familiar to readers of "House Beautiful," John McC. Ross, C. B. Seifert, Harold King, Leonard Craske, Edward P. McMurry and Nicholas Haz.

Mr. Turner's pictures are indicative of his interest in discovering exquisite out-of-the-way corners of the world. He has many lovely studies of ships in harbor, ships at dock, ships in full sail, graceful nudes, as well as lovely woodland compositions.

"A Dream of Empire, Fleeting as the Clouds," is the appropriate title of an effective silhouette study by Frank Roy Frapsie, while the beautifully simple doorway of a New England church with a huge New England elm in the foreground, seems to be the outstanding work of John McC. Ross.

Antoinette Perret's still lifes and interiors are worthy of considerable study, as are the compositions of Leonard Craske. Photography seems to be the medium through which this great artist finds relaxation from the more strenuous art of sculpture.

Foreign motives prevail in the work of Edward P. McMurry, who has been awarded a medal by the Japanese for the beauty of his creations. A particularly effective study of ships in harbor is showing now in Italy.

The "Fressons" of C. B. Seifert, who is also the possessor of a medal from Japan, is a charming group of studies in like motive. Mr. Seifert's compositions show both his appreciation of beauty and his ability in interpretation.

Action seems to be the keynote of Nicholas Haz' work. His pictures on exhibition are all of charming figures in graceful pose. His nudes are particularly pleas-

THE LITTLE THEATRE

Miss Roswell Hawley, who will be remembered for her splendid acting in "Yellow Sands" last season, gave an excellent performance in the role of Mrs. William Fisher. Francesca, the maid, was cleverly done by Miss Felice Leeds whose musical Italian was a feature of the part.

In the supporting cast were Judith Chase, Margaret Brown, Mary Forbes, J. Ralph Geddis and John Mann, all of whom gave creditable performances.

On Friday and Saturday of this week, the Little Theatre will present "Dr. Knock," a satirical comedy by Jules Romain.

NORTH SHORE THEATRE

not particularly for patriotic reasons, but because the recruiting sergeant has promised them good food, plenty of spare time and a soft bed. Then the fun begins, for on the battlefields of France they are without doubt as hilarious as anything yet seen on the talking screen.

Woven into these rollicking adventures is a romance which features Neil Hamilton and Joan Peers. Moran and Mack sponsor this romance and subsequent developments that take place because of this "sponsoring" bring to the talking screen diverting and highly amusing sidelights.

Another successful picture is "The Bad One," Dolores Del Rio's first all-talking picture, with Edmund Lowe, shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The picture locale is in Marseilles, France, where Miss Del Rio is seen as a waterfront cafe dancer and singer. Lowe portrays the character of a sea-going Don Juan.

CAPE ANN THEATRE

At the Cape Ann Theatre last week, one was taken into the very spirit, it seemed, of Russia. Bolshevik Russia, with its grimness and tragedy. Miss Essex Dane's play, "When the Whirlwind Blows," is a powerful, gripping portrayal of a scene in a remote village during the Bolshevik upheavals. Miss Dane herself, in the role of Madame Androya, is powerful and gripping. It is her favorite of all her plays, it is rumored, and she has played the character many, many times. Miss Marjorie Moffett, as Anna, late maid to Madame Androya, was skillful and convincing in portrayal, while Grace Dothea Fisher as Josefa, the third character in the play, gave evidence of her unusual ability.

In "Red Sunset," a drama of the French Revolution, both Miss Fisher and Miss Dane scored again, Robert Bunce Williams playing the third part, that of a prison guard, effectively. "Red Sunset" is written in verse, a delightful thing to hear. It happens to be Miss Dane's most recent play, and was presented at the Theatre for the first time.

Miss Helen Claire did a splendid piece of work, ably assisted by Robert Bunce Williams, in "A Wooden Leg," a tale of the adventure of a young American millionaire at a hotel on the Riviera. Mr. Williams will be remembered as Captain Rasmussen in "The Dead Game Sport."

Next week Miss Fisher will present "The Watcher," a drama in three acts by Cora Maynard. The play will have its premiere on Tuesday evening, July 29, continuing for one week, with matinee on Thursday afternoon.

STILLINGTON HALL

Monday evening will witness the premier of "The Stars in His Heaven," at Stillington Hall. This event has been eagerly anticipated by the North Shore colony throughout the season, and is of particular interest in that Mr. Leslie Buswell himself is a co-author. Actors and actresses whose names are familiar to every theatre lover have been secured for the production of the play, and rehearsals under the direction of Vladimir Rosing have progressed marvellously.

Miss Effie Shannon, who has a leading role, has appeared in many and varied roles on Broadway under the direction of famous producers. Her most recent efforts have been in "Close Quarters" and "Trelawney of the Wells," as will be remembered by her admirers.

Langdon Bruce, another Broadway favorite, Margaret Barker and John Griggs, both of whom have attained positions of distinction through their work at the Detroit Civic Theatre, also bring their talents to Stillington Hall for the new production.

Mrs. Frank D. Stranahan, Scott Low, 2nd, and Mr. Buswell himself complete the cast of this brilliant English comedy.

Tickets can be obtained from Miss Edith L. Atwater, secretary, Stillington Hall, and also at the Brainard Lemon Silver Collection Shop, Magnolia.

CHAMBER CONCERT

Music lovers of Cape Ann and the North Shore were afforded particular pleasure in the concert by a string quartette of Boston Symphony players at the Gallery of the North Shore Arts Association on Saturday evening. The concert, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pops Concerts, is the first of a series of three to be given during the season under the auspices of the Arts Association.

The first composition, Gabriel Faure's Op. 15 in C Minor, was a thing of loveliness, beautifully done. The second movement particularly, the Scherzo, was appealing in its lightness and vivacious intricacy. The graceful Adagio held the audience spellbound, while the Allegro, the last movement, brought the composition to an end in brisk and lively spirit. Mr. Jesus Maria Sanroma at the piano performed a splendid piece of work in this quartette.

The second presentation, rendered sans piano, was especially effective. This was a composition by Mozart, No. 6, in C Major. The soft, sweet tones of violins, the richer viola and the mellow violoncello produced a harmony to delight the eager listener.

The third number on the program, a quintette for piano, two violins, viola and violoncello, was perhaps the best done of the evening. The composition was Schumann's Op. 44, in E flat major. In the rendition of this were charm and poetry. From the gay Allegro to the almost funeral second movement, through the clever Scherzo and on to the final Allegro, the quintette sent forth a stream of delightful melody, and the audience responded with enthusiasm.

Much credit is due the North Shore Arts Association in bringing these unusual and delightful programs to Cape Ann.

F. J. MULHAUPT'S PAINTINGS

Mr. Frederick J. Mulhaupt has opened his studio in the Bradford Building to the public with an exhibition of his recent paintings. The subjects of his pictures range from harbor and shipping to landscape and coastwise motives of Cape Ann and New England. This exhibition affords an excellent opportunity for the summer visitor to see what Cape Ann has to offer in the beauty of its landscape during the different seasons of the year.

Mr. Mulhaupt has exhibited his work in numerous major exhibitions, such as that of the Museum of Fine Arts, the Chicago Art Institute, High Museum of Art, and the National Arts Club.

The exhibition will be open each afternoon until September 6.

DRAPER OR BUTLER?

Real Issue in Present Campaign How to Preserve Industries of the State—Which is Best Qualified?

A popular diversion this summer is garden party politics, meaning thereby that the Republican senatorial canvass is engrossing the attention of the summer resort districts and therefore comes within the editorial purview of such publications as The Shore.

The choice of the Republicans has firmed down to Col. Eben S. Draper and Hon. William S. Butler. Last year The Shore opined that in Draper the Republicans had their best senatorial bet. It still thinks so.

Both are admittedly fit. Draper comes from a line prominent in the textile and political life of the state. He is a veteran of the World War and a young man. That latter's going to be a big help.

Mr. Butler has all the qualifications of Draper but admittedly lacks one great essential that Draper has aplenty, that is magnetism and personality, and the successful candidate next November must possess all of these in full measure if he is to win in the senatorial fight. Witness Draper's almost amazing run in the senatorial primary entering at the eleventh hour and finishing almost at the throatlatch of the winner. On form alone, past performance being considered, the book favors Draper.

Mr. Draper is a wet, says he believes in modification but also that all laws including that in relation to Prohibition should be enforced. That seems perfectly logical and proper. What's wrong with it? Mr. Butler is a dry. But in the opinion of the Shore, Prohibition thus has nothing to do with the case. Prohibition is a dead issue anyway. Whether Draper or Butler or some one else is elected it will not make the slightest difference.

While the big cities of the country—and Massachusetts has the largest number of the big cities of any state in the Union—incline to the wet side, it is true, as Senator Brookhart told a Boston audience some months ago, that 39 states of the Union are irrevocably cably bound to Prohibition as written into the law.

That being so discussion of the rum question is more than academic, it is futile. The real issue before the voters of Massachusetts is to send a man to the Senate best equipped to stop the debacle of the textile factories to the South and also to save the shoe industry from the same calamity. While the man for his job must know his book, he must also be a good mixer and a diplomat who can "fit" with his colleagues, for it is well known that these matters of legislation are arranged more frequently at friendly gatherings on golf courses, at club meetings where good fellows foregather and there are no party lines, no north, no south, than in open council chamber. Did we not have open demonstration of this on one occasion some years ago when a prom-

SAVE THE TWIN LIGHTS!!

The following communication is self-explanatory.

July 26, 1930.

"Editor Cape Ann Shore"

Cape Ann Publishing Company.

Dear Sir:—Cape Ann and "Old Mother Ann" will never be the same to me if our government removes the "Twin Lights" from Thacher's Island.

This is an old landmark of a very famous Lighthouse and after all these years should not be removed for any such foolish and picayunish reason as a saving of expense on a single light. That is simply absurd.

I owned a home for six years on Bass Rocks, next door to Mrs. Jacob Loose's and always enjoyed seeing the two lights twinkle out every night.

A much more serious objection to this silly and unreasonable change is the great loss to navigation.

These two lights are the first on the horizon, on the approach to Boston from Europe.

But, some one may say—it is the government that does this thing, what can we do about it?

You can do a great deal about it—put in a strong objection and protest in your paper, also in all the Gloucester papers and send the printed objections and protest to all the leading Boston papers. Try it any way and see.

Furthermore, the government is not doing this foolish thing; but simply a foolish and picayunish committee or small body of men.

Don't submit to it, raise a howl, it is too foolish and simple to be considered seriously. Brace up and object.

Yours, earnestly,

W. A. COURSEN.

NOISE!!

Protests Made Against Bombardments in Fireworks Display—Early Morning Foghorn Signals—Unmuffled Exhausts

The editorial columns of leading papers throughout the country have recently emphasized the desirability from a health and living standpoint of the suppression or minimizing of nerve-racking noises. Of course, especially in the large cities there must be more or less noise in connection with manufacture and construction, but reference is made to unnecessary noises and entirely unnecessary blowing of whistles, shrieking of automobile horns, etc.

We are going to confine our observations to this city. Our attention was called to a specific matter a few days ago by a summer resident who has, during the past two years manifested his public spirit in a most substantial manner. At present a lessee he likes the place and contemplates becoming a property owner with his summer home permanently here. And in his attitude he represents a large number both of his own kind and but permanent populace as well.

What he objects specifically to is the tremendous noise which resulted during the display of fireworks on the night before at Stage Fort Park, not to the fireworks themselves but to the noise bombs which sought to reproduce with entire success a bombardment on the front during the Great War. It was tremendous and harrowing and the earth fully shook with the repercussion. What he wanted the editor of The Shore to do was to go with him to the Municipal Council and protest against such a feature in the future.

Have the fireworks, but cut out the noise bombs! They are a relic of barbarism and serve no patriotic purpose. People come here to escape these noises and their reasonable wishes—and they are entirely within reason—should be considered. The Shore trusts that when the municipal authorities are making up these displays in the future the percussion part—a recent introduction

THE "WATCHER" ROCK AT EAST GLOUCESTER "OLD MOTHER ANN"

BY JENNIE VAN

NOTE: The following verses are taken from the Cape Ann Breeze, a local daily which flourished some 40 years ago. Capt. William H. Thomas of Salem first noted this phenomenon—the woman's face in the rock—and these verses appeared shortly after.

Oh! grim old "Watcher" by the sea,
What are the centuries to thee?
Ere to this coast sailed Viking bold
Or by it, buccaneer of old;
Or Pilgrim fathers, knelt in praise
To Him who led them o'er the waves,
Vigil has kept—we know not why,
With stony face upturned to sky.

Oh! Watcher shall we fable thee
A lover waiting by the sea
For mermaid coming from the brine
In snowy foam, to clasp as thine,
Or in the spell of siren foe,
Never release again to know,
Though winters wax and summers wane
Over yon restless troubled main.

When morning dawns, at evening hour,
In peaceful calm—when storm clouds lower,
In sacred hush of star-lit night,
Or silvered by the moon's pale light,

When thundering surges dash on shore,
And fiercely doth the storm wind roar,
Little doth heed the angry deep,
Thy stony secret still will keep.

Hast seen the wreck of many a bark,
And heard the death cry in the dark,
Of gallant sailor nearing home,
Only to meet an awful doom,
Though "Thacher Lights," their beacon ray
Send warning o'er the pathless way,
Faithful through all the murky night,
To guide the mariner aright.

Whence comest thou stern Watcher bold?
Hast been since glacier age so old?
When icy fies with grinding edge,
Hewed out thy face on rocky ledge.
In vain we question—not a sign
To prying eyes, wilt thou incline,
Nor word to curious stranger tell—
So grim old Watcher—fare thee well.

Art and Dramatic

THE LITTLE THEATRE

Players at the Gloucester School of the Little Theatre proved their ability in the field of the comic drama on Friday and Saturday evenings, with the presentation of "Doctor Knock," a satirical comedy by Jules Romaine. The Little Theatre on Rocky Neck seems to be growing in popularity year by year, a fact which is due to the character and quality of their productions, as well as to the enthusiasm and versatility of directors and students alike.

Last week's production was a play to test the powers of experienced artists, but veterans of the stage could have handled it with no greater amount of skill and understanding than the Little Theatre players. Doctor Knock, a devotee of medical science who is bent on instilling an awareness of disease into the minds of an hitherto healthy people, was admirably done by C. Norris Houghton. Mr. Houghton's professional air quite captivated his audience.

J. Ralph Geddis as Dr. Parpalaid, showed skill in portrayal of his character, that of an honest, simple physician of the "old school," while M. E. Stevens as Norma Shearer's newest starring picture, "Let Us Be Gay," the audible screen's delightful adaptation of the successful New York stage comedy of the same name, will be presented at the North Shore Theatre in Gloucester Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Heading the distinguished cast of supporting players are Rod La Rocque and that incomparable and hilarious comedienne, Marie Dressler.

"Let Us Be Gay," as the title so aptly infers, is one of the most carefree and amusing pictures to come to the screen in some time. Its situations are clever and expertly handled, its dialogue bright and gay. And to top it off, Miss Shearer herself has never seemed so charming and delightful. For as the dowdy and devoted wife who divorces her wayward husband in Paris and then emerges as a stunning and sophisticated woman of the world, Norma Shearer creates a role that for sheer entertainment takes its place with the best portrayals this popular star has ever given to the screen.

Marie Dressler is excellent as a gay old dowager who has her own ideas on what's wrong with the younger generation. As a matter of fact, it is around Miss

GLOUCESTER IN THREE CENTURIES

Who Was Who!—Dominant Families Who Shaped Town's Destinies Not Represented Today

More than three centuries ago the first settlers to Cape Ann came from Dorchester, Eng. They were a different group and stuff from the semi-Pacifist Pilgrims, a two-fisted set of sea-farers of Devon, descendants of the Norsemen of old. Those that followed were mainly of the same strain.

A third were at Louisburg with Pepperell and at Quebec with Wolfe. In the struggle for Independence theirs is a notable record. On sea and land, at the forefront at Crown Point, Bunker Hill, Valley Forge. They fitted out fleets of privateers and contributed largely to the sea victories, which by racy of the mark meeting of their Teutonic-Angles ancestry—perpetuated in the New England town meeting of today. Their religion, the Hebraic.

For the first hundred years we find them essentially on the same social and financial level. In 1700 the place had about three hundred inhabitants and Stage Head Fort as it was in 1862 when Occupied by Troops, From a Daguerreotype by Elwell, Furnished by Mr. Lester W. Phalen. This Fort, the Oldest in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, is now Being Restored by Lucy Knox Chapter, D. A. R., with the Co-operation of Mayor (and Colonel) John E. Parker, Spanish American and A. E. F. World War Veteran, and the Park Commissioners—First Defences Erected There in 1625—Occupied in Every War Since 1917-1919.

Contemplating the achievement of these men and their descendants one finds much to admire; in fact there are few communities in which the qualities of courage and persistency which have always characterized the Anglo-Saxon and made him the dominant race, have been so striking exemplified as here in Gloucester.

With the Cromwellian iron in their veins, they were in the forefront on sea and land in every struggle, that which at the first threw out the French from dominancy in the New World and after achieved Independence from the Mother country.

This record begins from the first. One-seventh of the able-bodied men were in King Philip's War. More than its process of attrition on the enemy commerce eventually won victory. The record persists in the War of 1812 and in 1861. In that latter war, population of ten thousand, almost as many men went forward as in the World War with a population twice and a half as large.

Ethnically these men were of the best stock of England. Of the breed of empire builders. Scanning the list of the very first settlers we find them mainly of those of the middle class not overstocked with the world's goods but eager to advance themselves and with the ability to do it. A few Norman names such as the Bruens—here for a short time only—appear.

Their government was the democthese owned about eight boats of any pretension. Occasionally a thrifty citizen drew somewhat ahead of his neighbors in accumulating this world's goods, a fact noted in will inventories, a nucleus for son and grandson to enlarge.

After 1700 and to 1750 the town advanced in wealth rather slowly. The dread of the French was a constant drawback to fisheries and commerce. However, the fishermen are finding a market for their catch and New England produce as far south as North Carolina. Cruising down the coast in their boats in the fall they exchange their fish and produce for molasses, tobacco, corn, etc., with an occasional piece of eight and doubloon in hard money. Dried fish formed a staple food for white and bondman alike. A strain of Virginian blood was thus injected into that of the cape, several families from Westmoreland County finding a residence here, taking passage north on the fishing boats.

After 1750 came the big chance. With the menace of the French wiped out came the freedom of the seas. This was the opportunity for the men of Gloucester endowed with enterprise, courage and judgment to forge ahead. In the quarter of a century from 1750 to 1775, Gloucester thrived as never before or since. The large number of colonial mansions erected in that period attest that. Gloucester ranked among the foremost ports in foreign commerce.

With the acquisition of wealth we note a sharply defined line of social demarcation. Now come the Ellerys, Sargents, Saunders, Pearces, and others burgeoning from small fishing vessel owners into merchant princes whose argosies scour every sea for the wealth of the Indies and Africa — wool and ivory included. One voyage frequently made a man independently rich.

They dominated the community and assumed the same position and arrogance as the aristocracy of England in the old country. To what extent Gloucester was concerned in slaving the writer does not undertake to say. At the time of the Revolution one-tenth the population of the town were blacks — slaves. Col. Peter Coffin carried on his manorial estate at West Gloucester almost exclusively with these people. The Ellerys and others had them in plenty. There are old slave pens or sleeping quarters of the blacks shown in some of the old houses today. Rarely is this subject alluded to by historical writers but it was there, just the same.

These men cut loose from the fisheries entirely as something beneath them and engaged in commerce of all kinds in square rigged ships. They sent their sons to Harvard and their daughters were privately educated. They attended the royal governors' receptions at Boston, they joined an exclusive caste which held aloof from the commonalty, called later from its same origin the New England Brahmins.

Search for the dominating strain in a family that has bred on and writers who follow up this line of investigation tell you that you will find it in a woman. Cherchez la femme. So in a number of families which proved their superiority in the long run over the others of the early settlers. There is a pretty story of the elopement of the high born daughter of a Bristol merchant with a personable young mechanic of the place, of a stealing away in the night and an embarkment in a ship bound for the new world, eventually landing in Gloucester. The maiden name of that woman is perpetuated to this day by descendants and others as a tribute to her qualities transmitted down the line of prominent descendants. Discussing this phase of the matter with a genealogist of the family he agreed with this conclusion. One other incident of the kind, the coming of Sarah Vincent of good Norman strain has not apparently been so perceptible in its subsequent results.

Strange as the statement may appear, fishing in the center of the town was practically abandoned in 1800, there were but a half dozen fishing boats owned here. The aristocracy disdained it. It was taboo as beneath them.

The War for Independence had given this class a big jolt but after independence the Napoleonic wars gave them renewed chance to achieve fortunes more rapidly than before. The War of 1812 and the Embargo Act which preceded it, however, was a set back.

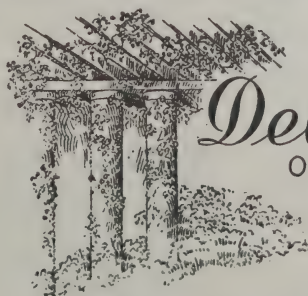

So from 1800 to 1850, the latter date marking the decline and fall of the foreign commerce, was the golden age of this aristocracy holding sway in the second and third generation of its financial ascendancy. About 1820 we note a sharp decline in its fortunes. Slave running had begun to get unpopular and foreign commerce was gravitating to Boston and New York. It is to be said, however, that Gloucester, longer than Salem or any other outports, held to a part of this business in the traffic to Dutch Guiana "Surinam"—which it developed and held into the Civil War era.

By 1830 the greater part of these dominant families had gone down financially. About that time we find a private bank of one of these commercial houses in financial difficulties and many of the poorer classes and those in moderate circumstances who considered the house as good as the Bank of England found themselves comparatively penniless. From that time the old aristocratic dynasty literally fades from the picture.

The people of the northern side of the cape and Sandy Bay who continued to pursue the fisheries in a small way began to gravitate to the harbor and use the docks for the fisheries which became the sole support of the town, many of the crews of the square riggers shifting over into the fisheries although it was rare that a man whose position was on the quarter deck or who had any responsible position on the ship cared to lower himself and embark in the fisheries. He maintained his dignity with some sort of a small place holding position ashore.

The great wonder is that they lasted as long as they did. No community had been called upon to make such appalling human sacrifices. The tremendous drain of life and property in the wars and on sea worked the inevitable. The severest blow this town ever got commercially was not in the British Wars, but in the short but undeclared war of France on American commerce. French frigates and privateers swooped down on American commerce and destroyed them in fleets. Gloucester was a great sufferer. Pearce, the foreign

MAGNOLIA

AUGUST IS HERE, always the big month of the summer year. Years ago just at that time all was hustle and change. Hotel sojourners aimed to spend July at the seashore and August at the mountains or vice versa. The going away and incoming groups with their cavalcade of baggage made things lively for hotel clerks, baggage men and others. Then the house count of the Magnolia hotels was more than 1,200.

At the Oceanside: Mrs. P. N. Curtis and John W. Curtis, Worcester; M. S. Bering, Brookline; Mrs. Helene Necarsulmer, Miss Deffner, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Otheman, T. J. McHugh, New York City; the Misses Logan, Brooklyn; Frank Hyde, Plainfield; Mrs. William B. Leonard, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Allman, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McNamara, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brubaker, Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. William N. Dunn, Montreal.

At the regular Thursday night bridge at the Oceanside this week, the first prize was awarded to Mrs. Courtenay Guild of Magnolia. Other prizes were won by Mrs. Irene Dunn, Mrs. Joseph H. Goodspeed, Mrs. A. Rex Flynn, Mrs. F. E. Warner, Mrs. E. H. Brainard, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, Mrs. Mary Nimmo Black, Mrs. J. W. Belcher.

Mrs. H. T. Whitin of Northbridge entertained at a luncheon and bridge at the Oceanside on Tuesday.

Mrs. George E. Carter of Boston was hostess to a party of eight at dinner at the Oceanside on Thursday evening. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bulard of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Warner of Boston, Mrs. Rex Flynn and Mrs. Clarkson of Pittsburgh.

At the North Shore Inn are Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Werner, Boston; Bertha Pearce and Ruth Tourtellotta, Springfield; Mr. J. J. Lyons, New York City; Mrs. N. C. Stuart, Montreal.

At Hesperus Villa: Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Edington, Wellesley; Mrs. F. W. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Banks, Brookline; Mrs. A. A. Curl, Jamaica Plain; Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Smith, Newton Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Georges His and family of Chestnut Hill are expected at Hesperus Villa early in the week.

Mrs. Scott Frazer of Beverly entertained a party of sixteen at luncheon and bridge at Green Gables on Wednesday.

Mr. Norris of Newton Center was host to a party of six at dinner at Green Gables on Wednesday evening.

Rev. M. J. Glennon of Summit, N. J., and Rev. P. A. Maher of Plainville, are registered at Green Gables.

Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Pitzer and son of Pomona, Calif., were recent guests at Green Gables.

Mrs. J. Austin Liddell of London and Newton, is stopping at Green Gables for a time.

Beach luncheons are the popular entertainment at the Beach Club this summer. At lunch time every day, the beach presents a most attractive appearance with its gay groups under gay beach umbrellas.

The Misses Katherine and Anne Richardson of Boston recently entertained a party of eight at luncheon on the beach.

Mrs. B. E. Cole of Andover was hostess this week to a party of nine girls at a beach luncheon.

An enthusiastic beach hostess this summer is Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr., of Manchester, who entertains frequently at these very popular luncheons.

The Beach Club's annual tennis tournament started Monday, and will conclude on Saturday of this week.

The Beach Club swimming pool is a delightful place for children during the warm weather. All sorts of events take place there each week. A recent event was a contest between the boys and girls of the club in which the girls came out the victors.

Recent cottage leasings at Magnolia include that of Daniel Loring of New York City, who has taken Marigold cottage, off Norman avenue, and Frederick N. Wier of Bass Rocks and Lowell, who has leased the Wilkins cottage in Oakes avenue for the rest of the season. The Wiers have been coming to Bass Rocks for several seasons.

DAVIS HILL AND KENT'S LANDING

This section, so named because an ancestor of the famed jurist, Chancellor Kent, was originally granted the property.

Judge and Mrs. Frederick W. Fossdick of West Medford are at their summer home in Kent road for the season.

Several changes in property ownership in this section developed at the first of the season. John Nagle of Brookline has purchased of Charles Gould of Chelsea the latter's summer home in Kent road, and with his family have taken occupancy for the season.

William S. Davis and family of Melrose have come to their summer home at Davis Hill.

Capt. Lemuel R. Firth and family of Gloucester are occupying the summer home on Davis Hill.

The Misses Mary and Helen Brick of Dorchester have arrived at their cottage in the Davis Hill locality.

William B. Dennison and family of Winchester are occupying the cottage in Kent road recently purchased of Herbert F. Sawyer of Malden.

George H. Buckminster and family of Malden come to their cottage in Kent road for week-end occupancy.

Miss Fillebrown of Boston has come to Grey Craigs, the cottage formerly occupied by Rev. Mr. Ayres and family.

Notice to Water Takers

The use of hose and sprinklers is strictly forbidden. This applies to both meter and fixture takers. The use of water for commercial purposes is alone excepted.

The public is further urgently requested to stop all leaks and waste of water during this period of shortage in order that available supplies be conserved in every way possible.

The co-operation of all citizens is earnestly requested for the public good.

EAST GLOUCESTER

FROM NOW to Labor Day is the busy season in these parts. August never fails to bring in its influx of vacationers who crowd hotel and cottage to the limit. More and more summer hoteldom is concentrating in this locality.

At the Rockaway: Mrs. Mabel I. Baldwin, Arthur Hammond, Boston; Miss H. G. Anderson, West Somerville; Miss Constance Lane, Winchester; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winder, Brookline; Raymond E. Hanson, Melrose; Mrs. Margaret V. Wiley, Miss Hedwig Wiley, Mr. John Umsted and Miss Ruth B. Umsted, Philadelphia; Mrs. Mabel E. Pond, Grace I. Dickinson, Worcester; Paul Diserens, Brooklyn; Mrs. Harvey Hickman, Ruth and Hazel Hickman, Buffalo; Edward Hake Phillips, Cincinnati; Lois Poole, Chicago.

Mrs. Harriet D. Tomita, Kojira and Shumihoro Tomita of Boston have been recent guests of Mr. Dudley James at the Rockaway.

Prizes for Tuesday night's bridge at the Rockaway were won by Mrs. Max Schmidt of Cincinnati, Mrs. C. J. Carroll of Boston, Mr. Thatcher of Look-out Mountain, Tenn., and Miss Anne Eager of North Grafton, Mass.

Mr. Leslie C. Powers of Boston was host to a party of lieutenants at the "Biddle" at dinner at the Rockaway on Sunday. Sunday afternoon a number of guests from the hotel made a tour of inspection of the "Biddle."

Saturday night dances at the Rockaway this season are well attended by guests at the hotel.

At Cove Villa: Mrs. Agnes E. Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Hisp, Boston; Linnie Brunzell, Dorchester; Mrs. E. S. Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Volney D. Hurd, C. R. Miller, New York City; Mrs. Marguerite O. C. Sellin, Luba Goucharova, Brooklyn; J. P. Freeman, East Orange; William W. Arnett, Long Island.

Mrs. Frances W. Hoopes of Philadelphia is a guest at the Pilgrim House, East Gloucester.

At Merrill Hall: Minnie M. Putnam, Harold Norton, Florence Stone, Worcester; Mrs. and Miss Moody, Arlington; Rev. W. T. Hogan, Hadley; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Manley, Doris E. and Evelyn V. Manley, Edith M.

As the date for the Moorland-Hawthorne Inn Tennis Tournament draws nearer, Mr. J. H. Looby of Boston and Mr. James Bancroft of Haverhill may be seen almost any time on the Moorland courts.

The Jitney Players will perform at the Moorland Casino on August 15 this year.

The College Women's Club of Gloucester held its July meeting at the home of Mrs. George Woodbury on Eastern Point road. The meeting was open to summer guests, and well attended, about one hundred people being present. A delightful supper was served in the garden of the Woodbury estate, followed by an extremely interesting talk by Miss Johanna Peterson on "A Ten-Year Old Republic." Miss Peterson, formerly a teacher in the Gloucester High School, is head of the English Department at the University of Finland.

After the meeting guests were invited into the Woodbury home, and those

BASS ROCKS

SOCIAL LIFE at the Bass Rocks Club has turned somewhat during the week into luncheons and bridge. Among those entertaining at the club house Wednesday were Mrs. Stahl, wife of Admiral Stahl, who gave a luncheon to her friends in the colony. Thursday Mrs. Alden of the Moorland entertained at luncheon and bridge.

Tuesday an invitation woman's golf tournament is scheduled at the Bass Rocks Club.

Flower Show and Garden Club

The annual flower show of the Cape Ann Garden Club was held Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. James L. Stuart, Links road, Bass Rocks, and Sewickley, Penn. There was an unusually fine representation of the various seasonable flowers the most of which were from the summer residents of this part of the North Shore. The classes and prize winners:

Class 1, for members only—open air breakfast table for one or two persons—Miss Irene McKinney of Pittsburgh, first; Miss Jean McKinney of Pittsburgh, second; Mrs. James L. Stuart, third.

Class 2, arrangement of cut flowers—Mrs. Charles Scott, Jr., of Philadelphia, first; Mrs. Charles Duffield, second; Mrs. Fred Boyce of Baltimore, third; honorable mention, Mrs. Fred Holdsworth, Boston. First prize offered by Mrs. Max L. Talbot, second by Mrs. S. W. Pillsbury.

Class 3, miniature flower picture class for Cape Ann Garden Club members only—Miss Eleanor Jones, Magnolia, first; Mrs. F. N. Weir, second; Mrs. Charles Wilson, New York, Mrs. Laurence Brown, Boston; Mrs. Charles N. Norton, Annisquam and Boston, honorable mention. First prize offered by Mrs. James Smithwick, second by Miss Alice Scott.

Class 4, open class, best specimen flowers—First prize, Rockport Garden Club. First prize offered by Mrs. Laurence A. Brown.

Class 5, for club members only, arrangement of wild flowers or foliage—Mrs. Gilman Prichard of Annisquam, first; Mrs. Samuel H. Pillsbury, Boston, second. First prize offered by Mrs. Frederick N. Wier; second by Mrs. Harry H. Walker.

The judges were Mrs. Howard Brown of Boston, Mrs. Bassett of Rye, N. Y., and Mr. Eben Comyns.

The executive committee included Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, President; Mrs. George C. Andrew, Mrs. Laurence A. Brown, Mrs. Samuel H. Pillsbury, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Mrs. Charles Scott, Miss Alice A. Scott, Mrs. James L. Stuart, Mrs. Max L. Talbot, Mrs. Harry H. Walker.

Flower show committee—Miss Alice A. Scott, Chairman; Mrs. Frances A. Brewer, Mrs. Laurence A. Brown, Miss Margaret Fitzhugh Brown, Miss Louie Condit, Mrs. Charles L. Norton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent and sons Junior and Compton, of Haverford, Penn., are the house guests of the Winthrop Sargents at their Bass Rocks summer home.

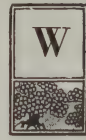

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Edwards and son Junior and the latter's friend, John Larabee of Worcester are the guests of the George H. Fullers at Krossanes.

DEL MONTE'S

Del Monte's continues to be the center of activities in the Magnolia section. Luncheons, bridges, dinners are popular methods of entertainment this season, and Del Monte's Casino, in one of the loveliest locations on the North Shore, is a popular place to entertain.

Tea dancing each afternoon, with Ruby Newman's orchestra, is finding great favor with the younger set. Each Saturday night in particular, North Shore society gathers at the Casino, and the lovely gowns of the women, together with the soft lights, the music, and the dancing are all a part of the famous Del Monte atmosphere.

EASTERN POINT

WITH A four stacker, gray in her war paint and the white yacht Aztec in the outer harbor a touch of picturesqueness has been added to the marine view. The Aztec was commandeered by the government during the war and afterwards returned.

Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose of Eastern Point entertained a party of friends at dinner at her home on Atlantic avenue on Monday evening. In the evening, the party enjoyed the premiere of Mr. Leslie Buswell's play, "The Stars in His Heaven," at Stillington Hall. Mrs. Loose's guests included General and Mrs. Dion Williams of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Starring of New York City, and General and Mrs. Logan of Boston.

Mrs. George Evans Tener of Sewickley, Penn., arrived Wednesday at her Eastern Point summer home for the rest of the season.

FERNWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Andrews of Everett have returned to their Fernwood cottage for another season. With Mr. and Mrs. Andrews are their son and daughter, Miss Virginia, who is a student at Leslie School, and Elmore.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dorley of Gloucester are at Birch Tree cottage for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Brown and family of Essex are occasional visitors to their Fernwood cottage, Pine Trail, this summer.

At Wayside cottage are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gray of Gloucester. Mr. and Mrs. Gray are accompanied by their daughter, Miss Kathleen.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Tarbox and young son, Frederick Elwood, of Gloucester are summering at Justamere Camp.

THE ROCKPORT SHORE

PERHAPS A more appropriate weather condition could not have been chosen for the revival of yacht racing at Rockport. A smashing breeze sent the boats over the course in jig time. The old Sandy Bay Yacht Club gave up the game 35 years ago. Then such men as Leander Haskins, Robert Herne, Howard Paul, Charles G. Tresnon and others upheld the sport here. Of all this group since passed on, but one was present Thursday who had to do with the club of those days, the writer, who reported the races.

At Turk's Head Inn: Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Frothingham, Mr. John K. White and Mrs. John White, Mrs. Mabel I. Martin, Boston; Mrs. Philip T. Cate, Cambridge; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Thompson, the Misses M. L. and H. C. Hastings, Brookline; K. A. Kent, Norwichtown; H. J. Barrett, Darien; Mrs. R. Henry Harris, Mr. and Mrs. S. de Lang, James C. Irving, Mrs. T. L. Hunt, Mrs. L. B. Churchill, Miss Churchill, Mrs. George W. Hubbell, Major George W. Hubbell, Everett L. Miller, Robert H. Hamilton, Frank Ferguson, Mrs. Robert S. Fitch, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dewalt, Ellentown; Mrs. Henry R. Gower, Washington; Elizabeth Eaton and Miss Farlee of Cleveland.

At the Edward: Miss Daniels, Boston; Mrs. A. Obrig, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chan, New York City; Miss Sarah Elizabeth Owens, Pittsburgh; Miss Grace Snowden, Mt. Lebanon; Miss Marian Herbert, Washington; Richmond C. Cohron, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bookham, Chicago.

At Straitsmouth Inn: Nellie L. Thompson, Frances Mailly, Boston; Miss S. A. Lurvey, Mary R. and Alice R. Eliot, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. James, Mrs. A. J. Ward, Miss M. E. Ward, Brookline; Mrs. A. Connelly, Mrs. G. Shaw, Brighton; Miss A. B. Walleit, Watertown; Harold S. Graves, Weston; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Hardy, Malden; Mrs. C. A. DeLand, Warren; Mrs. B. F. Hunt, Mrs. B. T. Nevin, Mrs. F. McElwee, Margaret Howson, Philadelphia; Margaret A. Will, Elizabeth Will, Washington.

Recent guests at the Rockport Country Club are Miss H. Barrett and E. Babson of Turk's Head Inn; J. E. Charlton of Maplewood; M. Cochrane of Melrose, W. Ray Bell of Hartsdale, New York.

Miss Grace Mullooney of Duxbury has been a recent guest of J. K. Collins at the Country Club.

Visiting golfers are C. A. Hisburne of East

THE ANNISQUAM REGION

THE IMPROVEMENT being made along the old Causeway meets with much commendation, as an admittedly dangerous situation is being removed. The switch along and down the sharp curve approaching from Annisquam has certain possibilities to be guarded against.

Mrs. Hart Mitchell of Rochester, N. Y., whose summer home is "Wavecrest," Norwood's Heights, gave an informal tea at the Yacht Club house Thursday afternoon to some eighty of her friends in the summer colony to meet her mother, Mrs. Henry Le Bretton Wills of Rochester.

Mrs. Lester C. Feener of Annisquam and Mrs. Doris Story of Gloucester entertained a party of sixteen friends at luncheon and bridge at the Annisquam Yacht Club on Tuesday last. Table decorations of old-fashioned bouquets were in exquisite accord with the gay colorings of chiffon frocks. Four tables of bridge were in play during the afternoon, prizes going to Mrs. Louis Moore of New York, and Mrs. Charles Norwood, Jr., of Gloucester.

Guests of Mrs. Feener and Mrs. Story were Mrs. Louis Moore and Mrs. Welles Sellow of New York City; Mrs. Charles J. Harrison, Jr., of Somerset, Pa.; Miss Martha Scott of Lyndale, Va.; Mrs. Everett T. Brown of West Upton, Miss Frances Bonia of Boston, Miss Margaret Brown, Mrs. Charles Clark and Mrs. Charles Norwood, Jr., of Gloucester; Mrs. William H. Ricker, Mrs. Earle Andrews, Mrs. Benjamin B. Hersey, Mrs. Clarence Nickerson, and Mrs. Harold Stacy of Annisquam.

Milton, guest of W. F. Dodge; Edward Doggin of Wakefield, guest of E. E. Babb, Jr.; L. F. Warner of Waltham, guest of C. N. Porter; E. R. Murphy of Winchester, guest of C. F. Baine; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Davis of Cambridge and I. H. Brown of Belmont, guests of Mrs. Williams; Mrs. Waits of Reading, guest of Mrs. U. P. Addis; Mrs. F. R. Garrett of Pigeon Cove, guest of Mrs. Jewett.

At the Granite Shore: Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Morris, Vernon R. Knight, Boston; Mrs. F. H. Hodgdon, Cambridge; R. Mitchell, Holyoke; W. D. Parker, Reading; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Walker and son, Mrs. E. A. Biggs, Springfield; Mrs. Edith Dennis, C. Lillian Mayor, Kenneth H. Newton, Providence; Adele Sneath, Lake Mohegan; Doris L. Goodhue, Portland; Anne Houmet, Pelham Manor; Elizabeth, Margaret, Catherine, and Agnes M. Hayes, Troy; Leah M. Galehouse, Leona Rutta, Cleveland; Dr. and Mrs. J. Owen Steddes, Montreal.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

Joan was shopping. To be sure, it's no unusual thing for any member of the Clan to be engaged in such a procedure, but Joan was engaged in a particular kind of shopping. Early that morning she had received word that little Jane Eustace, the only daughter of her closest friend, had arrived safely in this world, and Joan was doing her morning shopping in the baby department of W. G. Brown's.

It wasn't a department that any of them visited much, but looking about her now, Joan couldn't help but admire the attractive way in which the tiny, dainty things were arranged. She even wished there were more shopping to be done in this charming corner of the big store.

The problem was, what to buy. She'd never realized a baby's equipment was so complete. Fine lawn and nainsook dresses, tiny silk and wool bootees, darling little crepe de chine bootees, bonnets and sweaters of all descriptions, to say nothing of all the little indispensable accessories. They were all there before her eyes, and she simply couldn't choose.

Suddenly she caught sight of Gay coming up a distant aisle. Gay seemed to be in a great hurry, but hearing Joan's story came willingly to her assistance. After more deliberation, a dainty hand-embroidered nainsook dress was chosen as being the most appropriate, the order given, and Joan and Gay hurried off.

That is, Gay hurried, and Joan tried hard to keep up.

"What on earth's the rush?" she gasped, finally.

"We're due at the station in half an hour," Gay told her, "and I've a tremendous amount of shopping to get done."

"Who's 'we'?" Joan wanted to know.

"Why, the whole clan," was the reply. "Don't you know about it?"

"Don't I know about what?" Joan asked, exasperated.

Gay stopped and looked at her. "For goodness' sake," she exclaimed, "weren't you at breakfast this morning?"

"I skipped breakfast," Joan explained. "I had that wire from Jane, you know, and popped over here before any of the others were up."

"Well," said Gay, then paused for the sake of impression. "Well, Marcia's arriving on the next train!"

Joan gasped. "Marcia!" she repeated, bewildered. "Why, how do you know?"

"We had a wire this morning. And she's bringing her husband, Joan."

Again Joan gasped. "Her husband!" she repeated, even more bewildered. "But she hasn't a husband."

"You mean she hadn't," laughed Gay. "But there seems to be one in existence at the present time. In fact, he's on his way here now, and if I don't hurry with this shopping, I'll never be at the station to see him."

"Well," declared Joan. "Well." But she didn't seem to be able to get much further.

"It is a bit of a shock, isn't it?" sympathized Gay. "We were all that way at first, but I've gotten used to the idea now. My dominant emotion now is curiosity."

"Curiosity isn't an emotion," Joan told her. "And I don't see how you can have reconciled yourself to the thing so quickly. It's indecent."

"Do you expect me to go into mourning because Marcia's happy?" asked Gay. "But come—help me get this shopping over with, will you?"

Then, Joan assenting, she took out the little codfish skin bill and coin case which Jimmie had bought for her at Blanchard's as a souvenir of Massachusetts' Tercentenary year, and handed her a bill.

"Take this," she instructed Joan. "And here's a list of things to get at the First National Store. Then will you go into the North Shore Furniture Company's store and find out something about that old hickory porch furniture? After that, if there's time, you might stop in at Mary Ellen Golden's and order some chocolates for tonight. And then—"

"How long have we for all this?" Joan interrupted.

"About twenty minutes," answered Gay, looking at her watch. "You can do it—easily—if you'll hurry. I'm going to Shepard's myself with the order that Cora forgot to phone in this morning. I'll stop at L. E. Smith's and arrange about delivery for my new Maytag

LOUISE UPTON BRUMBACK

An Appreciation

Louise Upton Brumback was born in Rochester, N. Y., January 17th, 1867. Her father, a banker in Rochester, was descended from the Upton family of New England of which memorials still remain as for instance "Upton Square" in Salem.

MRS. LOUISE UPTON BRUMBACK

On her mother's side she was the seventh in descent from Mathew Griswold, the first magistrate of Saybrook Colony, Connecticut, and sixth in descent from Mathew Griswold, 2nd, one of the first governors of Connecticut. Her granduncle, William Page, was President of the National Academy of Design in New York City in 1872.

She was a member of the National Arts Club, New York City; the Pen and Brush Club, New York City; the Women's Association of Painters and Sculptors, New York City; the Gloucester Society of Artists, Gloucester, Mass.; the Society of Independent Artists in New York City; the Buffalo Society of Artists, Buffalo, N. Y.; and the New York Society of Women Artists, New York City, of which latter society she was one of the founders.

Her pictures are in the permanent collections of the Brooklyn Museum, New York; the Memorial Gallery, Rochester, N. Y.; the Newark Museum, Newark, N. J., and the Omaha Art Association, Omaha, Nebraska, and in many private collections.

As a young girl she occupied herself in painting water colors and painting on china but for this she had no tuition. About 1890 some friends asked her to accompany them on a coaching trip through England and the Continent. With them she visited England, Germany, France and Italy, saw most of the collections of these countries and busied herself painting many small water color and oil sketches.

Shortly after her return she married Frank Fullerton Brumback, a lawyer of Kansas City, Mo.; and lived there for a number of years.

After her marriage she painted persistently by herself but finally one year joined the summer class of Mr. William M. Chase on Long Island. That embraced her entire period of study under tuition. She went abroad several times before 1914 and painted in Brittany, Germany, and the Chateau country of France.

In 1912 she built a house in Gloucester, on a hill top overlooking the harbor and spent every summer there, except the last one of her life, painting the picturesque country on Cape Ann.

In 1917 and 1918 she was in California and painted along the coast and among the mountains of that state. In 1918 her son, who was an aviator in the World War, was killed and shortly thereafter she and her husband moved to New York City where they lived until a year and a half before her death.

She was always generous minded to her fellow artists, prodigal in giving to a beginner any knowledge she had acquired and as liberally helpful as her means allowed to those who were not so fortunately situated as herself.

In 1924 there were organized in Gloucester two societies of artists; one with a group of selected members and a jury to pick out the pictures to be shown and the other organized to give an opportunity to every artist who might paint at Gloucester to show pictures without their being passed upon by a committee of selection. She at once joined the latter association and became its first president and held that office for three years. She tried to afford an equal chance for all. She subordinated any advantage that her position as president gave her to the general good of the society. She did not allow her name to be printed as president on the catalogues of the society. When her pictures were hung on the walls of the gallery she frequently insisted on changing places with other artists less advantageously situated. Several times she took down her own pictures in order to give place to some who were tardy. In fact she endeavored to handle the situation so that there should be a fair field and no favor and so that the petty politics that so often disgrace art circles should have no place in the society. This was the Gloucester Society of Artists and it still prospers along the lines she inaugurated.

She was always trying to convince people that pictures should be judged on their own merits and not by reputation, titles or prices. On one occasion she organized a show of pictures in her large studio at Gloucester with the proviso that there should be no artists' names given and no titles mentioned and no prices furnished.

She insisted that to make a real picture it is necessary to place on your canvas a mixture of one-third paint, one-third brains and one-third emotion, and she was rather bitter against those who produce the same picture again and again in the manner the French call cliché, urging that this displayed either a lack of brains and emotion or else was a deliberate attempt to deceive the ignorant for the money that might be obtained; "For," said she, "the snow has not always blue shadows, the sunlight is not always clear, the trees are not always green on one side and yellow on the other, and the sea is not always tumultuous, and if, either through ignorance or lust of money, you teach the crowd to believe so then you are the Ananias of the Art World."

She had a vivid discussion with the owner of a western newspaper on the question whether these pictures had become so formalized that they could be fairly criticized without having been seen and the debate became so warm that the publisher offered to give her space in his newspaper for such an attempt, the only condition being that she should be furnished merely with the names of the artists and nothing more.

With only this information she wrote critical articles in regard to several shows held at a long distance from her home and which she had never seen. She was so successful in giving a general description of these distant pictures, naming their subjects and setting forth their merits and demerits that the articles were continued in the Sunday edition of the newspaper for more than a year and even she was quite astonished when several artists wrote to her thanking her for the understanding criticism of their pictures and regretting that they did not know she had been in New York.

In the latter part of 1927 she and her husband went to France. They lived a short time in Paris and then went to the French Riviera where for about a year they lived in the little town of Cagnes-sur-Mer, an old fortified village situated on a hill top looking toward the Alps. Around the crumbling walls of this old fortress, on the ancient roads so many weary feet have trodden, in the little time-stricken hamlets of Provence and among olive-crowned, flower-bedecked hills of the lower French Alps she spent the last happy year of her life—painting, always painting, always striving toward that unattainable goal of the true artist.

She lived joyously, charitably and earnestly. On February 22nd, 1929, at Nice in France, she passed calmly through the Gates of Death which stand eternally open for all the children of men.

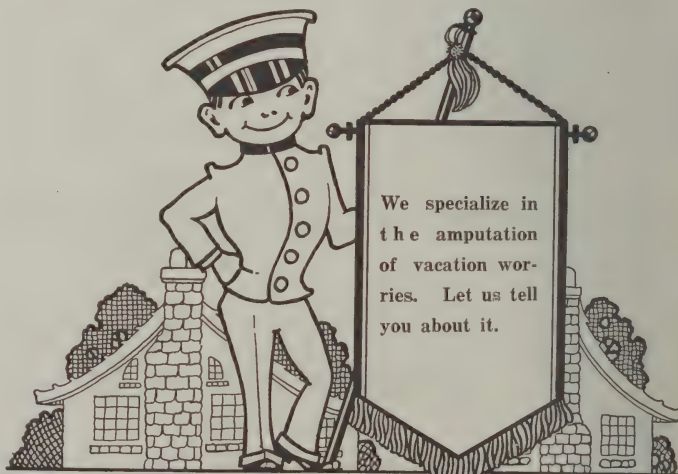

Perhaps others may be helped by what we may consider her motto in art—Prenez Garde au Maître et Evitez le Chiche.

STAGE HEAD FORT RESTORATION

Work Progresses Rapidly—Dedictory Exercises Gloucester Day, August 20

On page four we publish a reproduction of a rare photo made in 1862 of the old Fort at Stage Head, first occupied in 1625, the oldest fortification in the Massachusetts Bay colony. It is now being restored by the Lucy Knox Chapter, D. A. R., and appropriate dedicatory exercises will be held at the Gloucester Day observance, August 20, at which Col. John E. Parker the Mayor, and officials of the D. A. R. will speak. It is the only constructive matter put forth by this city for the State Tercentenary.

An additional amount is needed to complete this desirable historical preservation. All contributions may be sent to Mrs. George E. MacDonald, treasurer Lucy Knox Chapter, D. A. R., or to the Editor of the Cape Ann Shore and will be duly acknowledged

CAPE ANN THEATRE

Next week the Cape Ann Theatre is attempting something new in its production. New, and yet old.

Next week the players at the Cape Ann Theatre are attempting something new in the production of an eighteenth century comic opera. Charles Dibdin's "Padlock," written in 1768 for the Convent Garden Theatre, London, will be presented during the week of August 5th by that energetic and artistic producer, Miss Grace Dothea Fisher.

Miss Dorothy George of Boston, who is known throughout the country for her excellent concert work, will sing the prima donna role. Miss Ellen Larned will sing old Ursula, the Duenna, lending an element of humor to the opera in the character of an amusing, watchful servant.

The part of Mungo, the colored servant, will be in the hands of Robert Bunce Williams. This character was created and sung by Dibdin himself, and is the forerunner of all comic negro servants in the present theatre. Robert Hamilton will sing Leander, the lover, and Lark Taylor, Don Diego, a jealous elderly lover.

Between the acts of "Padlock," Mr. Hamilton will sing Haydn's "Where'er You Walk," and in addition Miss Marjorie Moffett will give some new and original monologues.

EASTERN POINT, JULY 23

Some 33 boats of the four classes started at Eastern Point Wednesday afternoon, a light southeasterly prevailing which, however, flushed out before the race could be finished within the limit. In the "R's" Taja was in the lead and Tid IV with Mrs. Groverman Ellis, her first appearance this season, head boat in the Sonders, Sprite being at the head of the Triangles, Maryland to the good in the Knockabouts. But all went for naught when the wind died and left them floundering about just outside the breakwater.

ROCKPORT OPEN, JULY 24

For the first time since the old Sandy Bay Yacht Club disbanded, some 35 years ago, an organized club race was held at Rockport Thursday afternoon, July 24, it being a part of the program of the town's Tercentenary program. It was an open event for trophies, but was mainly confined, as far as entrants were concerned, to the Eastern Point and Annisquam clubs. In all 43 boats participated.

The combined Gloucester clubs started from Eastern Point about 11 o'clock for a run past Thachers to Rockport, the wind, light from the southeast, Tern winning an impromptu race in the Sonders.

All the fleet, including the smaller classes, anchored just outside the inner breakwater. The start was scheduled for 2.30, but at the time the wind suddenly piped up, the water of the bay being flecked with whitecaps. The judges ordered a postponement, and it was not before 3.10 the first classes were sent off. Confusion resulted in the getaway of the R and the Sonder classes, some of the Sonders getting away with the R's.

In the R class it was a grand struggle between the Eastern Point Taja and the Squam Tabasco V, the latter leading all the way over the two rounds, being just beaten out at the finish by seven seconds.

Blue Bill had the start in the Triangles, but Black Bess won by three seconds.

In the Sonders, Tid IV, Mrs. Groverman Ellis, was the winner.

In the two smaller classes, Wildcat in the Cats and Drum in the Fish class were never endangered. The summary:

ANNISQUAM, JULY 26

A moderate southerly breeze and a smooth sea were the conditions in which the Annisquam classes sailed last Saturday afternoon. Long courses were routed the first three classes to Ipswich, then race across to the outer mark and then home, and the Cats and Fishes to Essex across to the outer mark and to the finish. In the Triangles the Goblin won after a close race with the Idol.

Dan Woodbury in the Fifteens came home a winner.

In the Bird boats, Catherine Usher on the Curlew led on the run to Essex, but on the reach to the outer mark Paul Woodbury in the Flamingo, went to the front where he remained to the finish.

The Cat and Fish classes had their usual scrappy settos, Kittiwake and Drum each hanging up another win. The summary:

EASTERN POINT, JULY 26

Flukey wind again contributed to an uninteresting race at Eastern Point last Sunday afternoon, and the judges decided to give short courses, the harbor triangle twice repeated for the big boats and once around for the smaller craft.

In the R Class the Taja had things her own way all the time. In the Sonders, Shamrock berthed to windward, got away with the gun. On the reach to black buoy, she rounded first, but on the second leg was displaced by Vim and Tern, Vim holding her place on the two rounds until just before the finish, when she was passed about 200 yards from the finish at Niles Beach by the Magnolia boat, which was 15 seconds to the good.

In the Triangles Injun had the lead from the start and held it all the way. The Knockabouts had an interesting tussle, Old Ironsides and Mary Bess fighting it out bow to bow all over the triangle. Young Jock Raymond finally got across with a four-second margin.

EASTERN POINT, JULY 27

A steady breeze from north to northeast at Eastern Point last Sunday afternoon, gave satisfactory racing conditions. The course was a broad spinnaker reach to Kettle Cove, a beam reach across with a close haul and short hitch and a long fetch to the breakwater.

While Bonnie Prince got the start in the R class, Taja soon drew out ahead and remained there. Hevella and Tid IV had the best of the get-off in the Sonders, but Tern passed them in the first 10 minutes. On the reach to the southern mark Tern and Tid IV held their lead. On the close haul Tern was dropped behind by Tid IV, which held her place although Skeezix came up with a rush, making a bid for first place, but couldn't quite make it, Tern being third boat to finish.

washing machine, drop in for a few seconds at the Cape Ann National Bank, and meet you at Towle's in twenty minutes."

She was as good as her word, and arriving at Towle's found Joan already ensconced at a table enjoying a fudge marshmallow. Having a weakness, as she put it, for fudge marshmallows, Gay joined her.

"Here I am," she exclaimed a few minutes later, "wasting precious moments and squandering money, when I might be over at the Gloucester Electric Light Company—perhaps buying a new vacuum cleaner."

"You're neither wasting time nor squandering money," Joan informed her. "You're relaxing, which you don't do nearly enough, and you're enjoying yourself. You couldn't find a nicer way to relax, or, I think, a nicer place." And Gay was forced to agree.

"Let's go!" exclaimed Joan suddenly. "We've just time to meet that train."

At the station they found Peggy and Chubby, and Jimmie, Anne and Jack.

The gates were down, and the train in sight far up the tracks.

"We're on time," breathed Gay to Jimmie, and then the train thundered past them into the station. Eagerly the group scanned the faces at the windows of each passing car. Excitedly they watched each figure as it passed down the car steps, and up the platform. Then the train drew out, leaving our group alone on the platform. Marcia and her husband had not come.

"I knew it was a hoax," Chubby asserted.

"Didn't sound so good to me, either," Jimmie shook his head dubiously. "Funny goings-on at the Shore this summer. First Marcia disappears, then Larry, next we have a wire that Marcia and her husband are coming, we wait at the station, and—nothing happens."

"Perhaps they missed the train," suggested Anne.

"Perhaps they aren't coming," returned Jimmie. "Perhaps Marcia didn't even send that wire."

This was a possibility that hadn't occurred to any of them.

"Do you suppose," asked Jimmie, slowly, "Do you suppose that anybody could have sent that wire just to get us all out of the way?"

"What for?" asked Chubby.

"I don't know," was the reply. "But I'm not at all sure that Marcia sent that wire."

"You and Gay are certainly the grandest sleuths," remarked Peggy. "Here's Gay suspecting Larry, and now you come along with ideas about poor little Marcia. Too much Philo Vance, my boy. Much too much."

"Let's not stand here all day," suggested Chubby. "I know a much pleasanter place. How about Trowbridge's all of you? Any body feel like a nice, creamy, cold milkshake?"

Peggy did, it seemed and Jack. The rest preferred Magnolia.

"And I'm not going wholly for the drink," Jack told them. "I've heard great things about a particular kind of shirt at Earl O. Phillips'. The Smart Shop for Men, you know. Best men's store in Gloucester. Why—"

"About the shirts, Jack my boy," suggested Jimmie. "What are they?"

"Burton's Irish poplin," was the reply. "They're made by the Arrow people, pre-shrunk and all that sort of thing. Really an awfully good buy, I understand."

"I want to go down Washington street way," said Peggy, "and see what the Chanticleer Special is this week. You know, they have something awfully luscious each week as a specialty, and there's a display of it in one of their windows. Each week's 'special' seems to be better than the week before."

"What are you coming to, Peggy?" asked Joan. "All summer long it's been Chanticleer Ice Cream with you, and now it's Chanticleer candy. You and Chubby are incorrigible."

"Connoisseurs, you mean, don't you?" asked Peggy sweetly. "We certainly are."

And so the two groups separated, the one to shop in Gloucester, the other to revel in the beauties of Magnolia.

Arriving in Magnolia, they went first to Manahan's where they concentrated on hats. The black velvet and black duvetyne berets attracted them particularly. Close fitting, worn well back from the forehead, they were especially becoming to Gay and Anne, both brunettes. Then there were the Henry Bendel hats, one of which in a lovely aquamarine, was unusually charming.

From hats they went on to evening gowns, and admired a heavy blue flat crepe with French net at neckline and hem. It was the newest of fall models, with its flaring skirt and front gathered into a huge jewelled brooch at the waist line. There were charming gowns in creamy laces, also, with tiers and capes distinguishing them as newer models.

At Richard Briggs' they found table plaques of dull glass; greatly subdued mirrors they were, in fact, which had all the loveliness of a regular mirror without the disadvantage of casting annoying reflections. They were in different sizes and styles, coasters for glasses, stands for flowerpots, and oddly shaped ones to be placed under centerpieces and vases.

There was a green glass pig there, too, which appealed particularly to Jimmie. It was hollow, and its mouth was open, and part of its equipment was a set of six low matching glasses. A novelty to appeal particularly to gentlemen like Jimmie.

At the Grande Maison de Blanc where next they proceeded, the girls were delighted with the display of hand bags. There were brocade bags with tops of marquisite for evening use, all in shining colors and intriguing styles. And there were bags of linen for daytime wear, in green and blues and whites and reds with clasps of bone or mosaic. Larger bags were there, too, for over-night use. Bags of the finest leather in red and blue and green and black, with zipper fasteners, to suit the most fastidious of over-night visitors.

And last, at Ovington's, they were enthralled by the different types and varieties of tables to be found there. A table of wrought iron with a tile top found favor in Joan's eyes. Just the thing for her new sun porch. Anne was more pleased with the different nests of tables, three or four in a set, with glass tops, also for porch use.

A decorated French tole table with removable tray and collapsible legs interested the whole group, as did another tray table with folding legs. This was of mahogany, and the levers for letting down the legs looked like a part of the handle. Jimmie enjoyed himself hugely with it.

P. O. SQUARE

After lunch at Green Gables, which consisted of delightful food delightfully served, the group started for the shore.

"How about stopping at the North Shore Theatre?" suggested Jimmie, en route. "I hear there's a good show this week."

The girls agreed, and soon they found themselves inside the cool, comfortable theatre.

"For pity's sake!" exclaimed Gay when they were seated. "See who's in front of us."

It was Chubby and Peggy, who, returning to the Shore and finding that the others had not yet returned, had decided to spend the afternoon at the movies.

"And by the way," said Peggy when the party had been rearranged, "here's something that might interest you."

By the dim light which proceeded from the lamp on the wall, Gay read this telegram:

"Unavoidably detained in Boston. Will arrive at 10.45 Friday. Meet us. Marcia."

tion—will be eliminated. The war is over any way.

One other point: Some years ago a quite general protest arose against the practise of unmuffled exhaust pipes on motor driven craft especially those putting out to the grounds before dawn. The result was that the state officials came in and succeeded in minimizing the cause. However, there is a certain number of these who use the Blynman Canal in early morning who resort to a prolonged series of signalling by fog-horn to call attention of the bridge tender, thereby destroying sleep conditions for several miles. Could not this be done as effectively by a colored light? In foggy weather perhaps a sound signal would have to be used but the most of the time it could be dispensed with.

At sea, in clear weather, lights are used solely.

Again we notice that there are a few who still run in violation of the law with unmuffled exhaust during these early hours disregarding the rights of others.

This small minority has evidently forgotten a clause in a document which they read, perforce, not so many years ago regarding "a decent regard for the rights of others." It should be again brought to their attention.

The Shore hasn't the slightest desire to hinder or hamper the shore fishermen in any way; rather the contrary. It is only a small minority who by reason of thoughtlessness, perhaps, offend. They should be shown the error of their ways.

FLOWER SHOW

Each year the Gloucester Flower show is an event of the summer season. Under the auspices of the Gloucester Garden Club, the exhibition has been held in previous years at the old Community House. This year the show will be held in the vestry of the Universalist Church on Friday, August 22. It is hoped that the people of Gloucester, with the summer residents, will assist by contributing flowers in an effort to make this the most successful exhibition of all.

inent New York Democrat, in the goodness of his heart and looseness of tongue, acceded to a request of an equally prominent Republican with the gesture "what's the Constitution among friends?"

If The Shore may presume to tender advice to the Republicans of the state who wish for victory next November it is to let rum alone and select its candidate for his ability to get written into law legislation which will keep its factories running and its population employed.

We believe, candidates considered, Eben F. Draper is that man. But that is not saying if Mr. Butler wins the nomination he will not be elected to the senatorship. We think he would stand better than an even chance.

That life can bring
I ask but only three—
Bread for my need,
And books to read,
And a house beside the sea.

"For Fame and Love
I know not of.
And would not learn their sting.
But with books and bread
A man is fed,
And a house is a pleasant thing.

"A house indeed
Is a goodly need.
And a house by the sea is more.

In my wallet curled
If the sea be at my door."

commerce magnate, was ruined completely by these seizures and went to the poor house and many of the others were practically beggared by the French. The records of the French Spoilation claims are illuminating on this subject.

So with the human element. Only the boldest and most daring volunteer in the wars or for positions in which daring is pitted against danger and adventure in the search for wealth. The Civil War about combed up the best of the worthwhile male stock with the sacrifice of its best blood. Remained, as a whole, the less energetic and enterprising and correspondingly down the scale.

So before 1850 we find the greater part of those families who had been the dominating class, had almost entirely disappeared. The commonalty which had been submerged in the modest fishing business began to come to the front. Included in these were a group of upstanding fishermen of Sandy Bay who came up to the "harbor" to take the vacated places of the old foreign traders. The Civil War gave them their opportunity and the subsequent rapid growth of fish eating population of the country also proved a great stimulus. These men soon owned their own vessels which grew to fleets and came ashore and established "firms" and prospered. Theirs are the houses of Victorian jigsaw architecture which sharply differentiate their period of heyday from the chaste colonial of the Revolutionary period.

This element dominated less than fifty years, made good sized fortunes and almost nearly to a man lost them, if not in the first, in the second generation. A ledger of one of these firms of the '70's recently came to light. In summing up the results of the end of the year the bookkeeper-partner made this entry in red ink at the close "We have made $60,000 this year. Thank God." Then one dollar was as good as $3 today and $8,000 would build and fit for sea a fishing craft that would catch as much fish as one costing $50,000 at the present time.

However, gone are the names of the Ellerys, Coffins, Sargents, Sanders, Pearces, Norwoods, Davis, Elwells and the old quarter-deck seadogs of India square. Not one of their male stock persists in the town. Nor can we recall one of the old time Gloucester stock who persist in the fishing business today and the same holds true to a big degree in the larger professions and retail businesses of consequence.

Some of the old time stock have obtained name and fame and money elsewhere but substantially as far as the far-descended native stock of Gloucester center is concerned they are not in the seats of the mighty.

While the wharves of all the maritime outports of New England rotted and their sea-glory departed after 1860, Gloucester went forward to greater triumphs. Its fame as a seaport is international. The record of that select body of world Vikings, who came here from that time on and mastered and manned its crafts, and by their daring and heroism made possible this magnificent achievement demands its own chapter and meed of space for even a cursory review.

While the old order has changed the past is secure. The record of Gloucestermen of the first three hundred years on land and sea, in war and in peace will never be outdone. They have left a mark for those that follow to live up to and emulate.

Madame Pons, in charge of Doctor Knock's hospital, was done in a spirited manner by Patricia Peticolas, and for the space of a moment or so, the audience had a glimpse of Peggy Leland as a nurse in the same establishment. Other roles were well done, the young artists entering wholeheartedly into the character and spirit of the play.

Dressler that this picture's amusing plot revolves. For Marie Dressler wants to save her granddaughter from falling in love with a man she doesn't approve of. And so she asks Norma, as a special favor to her, to "vamp" the man. Norma agrees to the plan, only to discover later on that the man is her ex-husband. The manner in which Norma sets out to do her "vamping," cheered on and aided at strategic points by the inimitable antics of Marie Dressler, brings to the audible screen an unending series of jolly, laugh provoking sequences that will surely delight all audiences.

Rod La Rocque as the ex-husband who finds himself falling in love with his wife all over again, is convincing and believable in a good role. Others in the cast who do good work are Hedda Hooper, Sally Eilers as the impulsive granddaughter, Raymond Hackett, Gilbert Emery and Tyrrell Davis.

Robert Z. Leonard, who directed "Let Us Be Gay," also directed Miss Shearer in her recent success, "The Divorcee."

William Powell, who scored so favorably in two recent starring pictures, "Street of Chance," and "Shadow of the Law," is again starred by Paramount in a new and thrilling romantic drama, "For the Defense," coming to the North Shore Theatre in Gloucester Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Playing opposite Powell and creating one of the most interesting roles of her career is that stunning brunette, Kay Francis, recently seen with Powell in "Street of Chance."

In "For the Defense," Powell plays the role of Bill Foster, brilliant criminal defense lawyer, a character said to be modeled after a notoriously famous New York attorney. Through his uncanny ability to find loopholes in the law, Powell succeeds in winning freedom for many of his criminal clients. So successful is Powell that he gains the secret hatred of the District Attorney, who hopes to "get" Powell red-handed on some crooked deal. But Powell, despite all underworld associates, is on the level, winning his cases merely because he successfully outwits the District Attorney. But the District Attorney gets his chance when Powell, blinded by love, jeopardizes his life to save the woman he loves from the clutches of the law. For the first time, Powell gambles, trusting to luck rather than his usual cold, calculating judgment. There is a thrilling and powerful climax as Powell fights desperately to protect the woman who unwittingly has brought disgrace and shame to his name.

As Bill Foster, William Powell is all that could be desired. Powell creates a role which a pre-view New York audience even thought superior to his "Natural" Davis of "Street of Chance." And Kay Francis as Powell's leading lady is excellently cast in another fine role that should win for her many new admirers. Others in the cast include Thomas Jackson, the detective of the stage and screen productions of "Broadway;" William B. Davidson and John Elliot.

John Cromwell directed "For the Defense" and Oliver H. P. Garrett wrote the story. Both of these men collaborated in similar capacities in "Street of Chance."

On the same bill will be shown "Strictly Modern," a First National all-talking feature with Dorothy MacKaill and an all star cast.

THE STARS IN HIS HEAVEN

Congratulations to Mr. Leslie Buswell and his splendid cast on the production of "The Stars in His Heaven!" Well-written lines, superb acting and a thoroughly appreciative audience made the premiere of Mr. Buswell's play on Monday evening an event to be recorded in North Shore history. To the Master of Stillington, author, actor and producer, go all the honors of the occasion.

The play itself, an English comedy in three acts, unfolds the decidedly refreshing story of sophisticated characters in a sophisticated time. The triangle situation is worked out in a novel manner, with great strength of character displayed. Mr. Buswell's characters are real and convincing, their lines clever and unaffected. Each scene in its progression develops the plot, building toward the dramatic climax in the third act. There are tense moments, humorous moments, and tragic moments, skilfully and effectively interwoven in the material of the play. One finds frivolity and simplicity, idealism and sophistication, in "The Stars in His Heaven," but above all, an understanding and appreciation of human nature on the part of the author.

The play centers about Brenda Matheson, played by Margaret Barker, a youthful artist whose personal charm and dramatic ability aroused the enthusiasm of her audience. Brenda, in love with Nigel and loved by Cedric Leith, brothers, marries the latter, whom she loves "only a little less." Nigel returns to his wife, an invalid, to return after her death a year later. Fully determined to re-awaken the love of Brenda, now a mother, he is dissuaded by his mother in the most dramatic scene of the play. The play closes with Nigel's acquiescence to his father's plans for him.

The part of Nigel is played with great skill and understanding by Mr. Buswell, while John Griggs' performance in the role of Cedric leaves nothing to be desired.

Miss Effie Shannon, as Lady Eveline, mother of Nigel and Cedric, adds to her many laurels in this new production. She is the perfect actress with splendid stage presence, and unusual dramatic ability. In her big scene, the dissuasion of Nigel from his great desire, she reaches emotional heights attainable only by a great artist.

Langdon Bruce, playing opposite Miss Shannon as Sir Arnold Leith, provides the humorous element of the play. His work is finely and adroitly executed.

Harriet Eells plays an amusing part as Maggie the superstitious Irish maid who has been with the family for years, and Charles Gazzam performs a minor part, that of Charles, the butler, with facility.

GALEN PERRETT EXHIBIT

Sunday marked the opening of the exhibition of paintings of the sea by Galen J. Perrett at his studio at Great Ledges at Land's End, Rockport. The exhibition will be open to the public every Sunday during July and August from 3 to 6.

Following the exhibition, Mrs. Galen J. Perrett gave the first of her summer supper parties in honor of the opening of the Rockport Art Association's new gallery. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. Nicola D'Ascenzo, Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Holberg, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. King, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knapp, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Ross Perrigard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Rosebault, Mr. Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Spivakowsky, Mrs. Woodbury and Miss Elsa Rehmann.

CAPE ANN THEATRE

The season at the North Shore's newest playhouse, the Cape Ann Theatre, progresses swiftly. Already this group of accomplished actors and actresses have presented a number of charming and finished dramas to appreciative audiences, this week's production being no exception.

"The Watcher," a three-act play by Cora Maynard is especially suited to the company at the Cape Ann Theatre. It is excellently written, the development of each scene showing the masterly touch of the artist. Miss Maynard's play is unusual in that an invisible character directs the development of each individual.

Miss Helen Claire plays to perfection the part of Vivian Kent, a high-spirited girl, who bears on her lovely shoulders the entire responsibility of her family. Winston Hibler, as George Kent, plays an important role in an admirable manner, while Marjorie Moffett displays skill and ingenuity as Kent's wife.

Miss Ellen Larned appears in this production in the amusing role of a typical Irish maid, and Robert Hamilton does a fine bit of acting as the interested family friend.

The play as a whole is excellently cast, and skillfully produced. Much credit is due Miss Helen Griffiths, whose settings are superb, and Miss Grace Dothea Fisher under whose direction "The Watcher" is presented to the public.

EXHIBITION AT THE COMMUNITY HOUSE

Tuesday marked the opening of the exhibition of Cape Ann artists at the new Community House on Middle street. In spite of the rain, a large number of enthusiasts were in attendance to enjoy this showing by artists who make their home on the Cape.

The exhibition itself is a splendid collection of paintings and etchings. Among the exhibiting artists are Morris Hall Pancoast, Alice R. Hardwick, Abby Barry, Frederick J. Mulhaupt, Elizabeth Withington, Bertha Menzler Peyton, A. Conway Peyton, Alexander Tupper, Harry A. Vincent, Sarah Gannett Houghton, Oscar Anderson, L. A. Gillette, and H. Boylston Dummer.

Some of the best known etchings of the late George W. Harvey are being shown in the exhibition and are attracting a great deal of deserved attention. "Universalist Church" and "Misty Afternoon" are two of the loveliest of these. A particularly effective study is that of the Annisquam Church from the bridge, which is one of Mr. Harvey's latest undertakings.

The exhibition at the Community House is unusual in that each picture is the product of a resident artist, and for the most part, each one has for its subject some local scene. Harry Vincent's "Old Houses, Rockport," brings to mind directly the quaintness of that ancient village, while Elizabeth Withington's "Gloucester Boats" is typical of this seaport town. In "Twilight on the Moors," Alexander Tupper presents a new and different aspect of the Cape Ann motive, a piece of work skilfully and most effectively executed.

The foreign note is introduced by Alice R. Hardwick of Annisquam whose depiction of "Supper time, Holland" is a splendid example of this well-known artist's ability.

H. Boylston Dummer presents the industrial aspect of this section in "Shipbuilding, Essex," an unusual study of the shipyards in our neighboring Essex. "The Dunes," by Oscar Anderson, and "On the Beach," by Bertha Menzler Peyton show two unlike aspects of a like motive. Mr. Anderson portrays the ruggedness and wildness of the dunes, while Mrs. Peyton studies summer activity at the bathing beach.

The exhibition will continue through the summer to Sunday, September 7th.

NORTH SHORE ARTS ASSOCIATION

Cape Ann anticipates the second concert in the series of three presented by the North Shore Arts Association this summer. This second concert, to be held on Saturday evening, August 2, will feature a trio of violin, 'cello and piano. Arthur Fiedler, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pops Concerts, under whose direction these concerts are produced, will play the first violin, Mr. Hypolite Droeghmans the 'cello, with Jesus Maria Sanroma at the piano. Miss Mary Silveira, soprano, will assist the trio.

Those who attended the first concert of the series know of the delightful evening in store for them at the Association Gallery on Saturday evening, while those who did not are assured of a splendid program.

ANNISQUAM, JULY 27

The afternoon race at Annisquam was sailed in a moderate breeze.

In the Triangles Blue Bill was the leading boat, Scalene just astern and Goblin the third boat. Once out in the bay Scalene went into the lead. Blue Bill and Goblin made off to the eastward, while Idol and Scalene stood up the Essex shore. The advantage was all with Goblin and Blue Bill, which reached the outer mark in the order named. The lead was maintained on the reach and run, although the fight for first place was not settled until near the finish line. Goblin's margin was 29 seconds.

In the Bird class Paul Woodbury in the Flamingo sewed up the race on the first leg. Tern was second boat.

Geraldine Smith in the Caterpillar sailed a fine race in the Cat class. Scratch, however, won the race.

Eddie Simmons turned in another first in the Fish class, four all told so far. The summary:

"GOOD COMPANIONS"

Perhaps you will discover some titles that bring back pleasant memories.

"My Dear,"

As "Once in a Blue Moon" "Adventure Calls" me, I am going to yield to the "Desire" for a "Strange Adventure," and as time is "Passing," and I have been a "Captive" to circumstances so long, and have gone "Stumbling" on my way, I have decided to take "The Road" to "Unknown Lands." I guess there is something of the "Barbarian" about me, for I like to "Wander," and have my "Liberty." "No Bed of Roses" has been mine, and I'll be a "By Stander" no longer.

Some day, in the "Golden Dawn," I'll take "French Leave" of "The Family," and go on a "Long Hunt" with a "Salute to Adventures." I'm hoping it will prove a "Light Hearted Journey." It may be "A Scandinavian Summer," or would you advise "Roaming The Rockies?" I can assure you it won't be "Skyways," nor into "Hot Countries." "Seven Horizons" would be too much of a "Strange Pursuit." "Points East" would be "Something New" for me.

No matter what has befallen me, I have always had a vivid imagination—that "Gift Supreme"—and had my "Secret Room," where I could retire into a world of my own, and where I have found many "Strange Companions." I would picture myself decked out in a "Party Dress," and wearing "Silver Slippers" with "Rhinestones," and my hair with a wonderful "Permanent Wave."

There would be "Skippy" a "Laughing Boy," who knew all "The Secrets of Charm," and who told me of his "First Love" for a "School Girl" friend. Then there was "Young Woodley," who, although "Earth Bound," seemed "A Son of the Gods." "Strange Truth" I got from "The Lady Jean." She was "Easily Persuaded" to tell me of a "Crisis" in her life, but "All the Days of Her Life" she was "Four Square."

There was one I called "Mr. Pim," who became much interested in "The Night Club Mystery" and insisted he had a "Revelation" from a "Man Who Was There."

I'VE NOTHING BUT MY GARDEN

BY SUSAN BABSON

(Dedicated to the Gloucester Garden Club)

Note by Editor—Annual Exhibition at Universalist Vestry, Friday, August 22.

I've nothing but my garden, said old Maria Day.
But God has given me flowers, and those I'll give away.

They're common and old-fashioned and homely just like me,
But like God's rain and sunshine I want to make them free.

So with stiff and toll worn fingers she worked that night till late,
And in the early morning a sign stood on the gate.

It said, "Come in," just that and nothing more,
But Maria with her knitting sat by the open door.

And by her side a pitcher stood—'twas broken at the nose.
But in it, there were clove pinks, bluebells and a rose.

And many passed from day to day beside this open door,
Some in this world's goods were rich, and some were very poor.

Some children were, with troubles small, some bore the stain of sin, Maria's face held hope for all, and so they wandered in.

To each she gave a kindly smile, "God's flowers, take one," she said.
They knew not why, they took a flower and felt their spirits fed.

Maria's gone now.
One night quite wakeful she beheld a strange form by her bed.
"Come see the lovely garden I've made for you," he said.
So she closed her tired eyes and took his outstretched hand,
Next morn, they softly whispered, "She's in God's heavenly land."

They raised no costly monument, 'twas in their hearts they said,
Her life with theirs was so entwined, they would not call her dead.

And all through the summer season, the sign hung as before,
The pitcher with the broken nose stood by the open door.

For in it were the clove pinks, the bluebells, and the rose.
The children said,
"Nights she comes down and picks them, then back to Heaven goes."

But one morn at early dawning a watchman passed that way.
The flowers had on their dewy dress they wear at break of day.

Lured by their sweet, fresh fragrance, he, careless, straggled in,
A form amongst the flowers he saw, 'twas she once stained with sin.

THE LITTLE THEATRE

At the School of the Little Theatre on Rocky Neck last Friday and Saturday evenings, Mme. Evans and Cunningham presented their players in Clemence Dane's three-act drama, "Mariners." Versatility seems to be the keynote of the Little Theatre. The students are trained to play comedy and tragedy equally well, and with the same enthusiasm. It is no feat for these young actors and actresses to jump from Ibsen to Kane Campbell, from a group of one-act plays to a subtle comic-satire; nor will it be an extraordinary task for them to play Frank Molnar next week, close after Clemence Dane's "Mariners."

In last week's production, Miss Virginia Dillon, who played the part of Lily Cobb, carried off the honors for her splendid understanding and interpretation of her role. M. E. Stevens, playing opposite to Miss Dillon, gave a fine performance as Rev. Benjamin Cobb. Mr. Stevens' deep, rich voice is a splendid asset to an actor of such adaptability.

C. Norris Houghton, last week's Dr. Knock, gave a creditable performance in a minor role, that of George Shepperley. John Mann, who will be remembered for his

When people or nations have dissenting views of each other there can be no amity unless the divided forces get together — to smile over their supposed differences.

This is delightfully proven in "So This is London," Fox Movie-tone production starring Will Rogers and now to be seen and heard at the North Shore Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Based on the play by George M. Cohan, the story deals with a wealthy owner of a cotton mill in Texas, a role played by Will Rogers.

There comes a time when he has to visit the British Isles in order to arrange for the purchase of an English cotton mill.

He takes his wife and only son aboard and on the way over the Junior falls in love with an English girl returning from the States.

When the love affair gets serious papa decides it is time for him to check it, for marriage of his son to an English girl is the one thing he will not tolerate.

His efforts to stop the marriage, his meeting with her titled parents, form the plot of a highly entertaining picture.

A NIGHT'S ROUND UP

Of Hotel News Some Thirty Years Ago—A Coincidence Recalled

Forty-five years in the news reporting field on Cape Ann, especially that part embraced in covering the summer resort section, naturally brings one in contact with notables of high degree and otherwise. In looking down the years of this experience perhaps one such episode outstands beyond the others in its subsequent orientation.

The scene opens at the clerk's office in the Oceanside at Magnolia, around the first time," quoth the clerk, "big Democratic politician, down this way, no office holder, but the man behind the scenes they say." He indicated a rather medium-sized man with no outward manifestation of pretense engaged in conversation with some of the old standbys of the hotel from the Middle West. Sitting on the sofa was his wife and two daughters, dark-haired, bright-eyed little misses. At the time of the North Shore summer life, eventually becoming of the cottage element farther up the shore. As far as this writer was concerned they passed from his annual summer populace census.

That same night about ten as was my custom I made my weekly call on Walter Osborne, manager of the Harbor View, Walter, beside being a hotel man, being a newspaper man at the time. At that hour we both foregath-

Bedroom in House of John Hays Hammond, Jr., at Norman's Woe Cove, Showing Mural Decoration. These Wall Papers were Originally Placed in a Room in Mr. Hammond's Bungalow Some Fifteen Years Ago, but were Removed by Joseph A. Nunes and Placed in their Present Position. Mr. Nunes Continued the Picture Motif, adding a Section of His Own Painting where Necessary.—Scene Represents a Ship at Anchor under Polar Glaciers. Thence Southward toward the Vegetation Line and In to the Primitive Civilization of the Lapps. The Blocks from which the Decorations were made were Buried by the French During the Great War to Prevent their Destruction.

1900. The writer in quest of news stressing arrivals of notables. At that time the Oceanside was one of the most exclusive in the country, dominated entirely by Back Bay dowagers and the Boston Beacon Hill set. Thither flocked many social aspirants with money from all parts of the country for recognition. If these dowagers of the rocking chair fleet turned thumbs down it was all off for any new comer to break inside the ring.

"There's a man and his family over there who comes from Texas; here for the wife struck me as being one of the positive members of the family.

In a short time my assistant, a young fellow just in college, began turning in social notes about the young ladies recounting their social and athletic triumphs. Evidently they had gotten in to the good graces of the social arbiters of the place. To make this part of the story short the family came here for several years, the daughters grew to womanhood and married into some of the leading families of New England and New York. They became a part ered in his private office and relaxed somewhat. Ensued the usual question.

"See that man sitting out there chatting with that group? Well, he's a Princeton College professor, has his whole family and his brother-in-law here. Quite a man, enters into the life of the house, tries to get up parties and entertainments for the guests and has started a little house paper containing skits about the various persons and is quite the life of the place." So among the notes taken that night and printed in the succeeding issue of the Shore and the Globe summer resort news section was the following:

"Professor and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson of Princeton University and family, comprising two daughters, are among the recent arrivals at the Harbor View. They come for an August stay and are accompanied by Professor Wilson's brother-in-law, Professor Stockton Axson, also a professor in Princeton and Mrs. Axson." Just another summer resort note at the time. This was repeated for several years, the party coming as guests to the Harbor View. Always Professor Wilson was the democrat seeking to fraternize with what he considered the "right" people, that is respectable people of culture, and drawing the line at none answering this specification. In other words a thorough democrat — the real aristocrat. For be it known that the Harbor View did not set up as being "exclusive" in any other sense than that it was a first-class hotel for the right sort of people.

Now to my mind there was the keynote of Woodrow Wilson's character. Not a tuft hunter, a snob or quasi-aristocrat—all the sign of inferior complex, but the exact opposite—and not seeking any exclusive hotel to make advantageous social contacts. Right here I believe historians will find the real Woodrow Wilson.

After several years Professor Wilson became President (Princeton) and came no more to this city in summer. But his name began to appear in print. It was stated in the press that he headed some movement designed to make Princeton more democratic or to retain its democratic atmosphere, some sort of controversy relating to the club life of the institution. Professor Wilson had previously interested himself in political questions but his efforts were considered more or less academic in more than one sense. He stood for clean politics and square-shooting. In his club controversy he lost out and he won.

This controversy attracted the attention of the country and especially of his home state New Jersey, so when his name was mentioned for governor there was no stopping the delegates from handing him the nomination gratis. His election naturally followed. His course in office made him a national figure. Then came the historic Baltimore convention when Mr. Bryan, at that time the Warwick of the party, took Tammany by the neck, mopped up the floor with it and dictated the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. Roosevelt jumped his reservation and the Taft debacle followed and Wilson rode triumphant into the White House and Tammany was powerless to stem the tide or hit low.

Destiny brought the Great War. Wilson was no ingrate as was shown by his choice of Mr. Bryan as Secretary of State. Three other men who proved towers of strength were William McAdoo whose rehabilitation of the run-down railroads was a remarkable feat and Josephus Daniels whose record of transportation in the Navy Department marks him as the strongest, even more so than Gideon Welles, of any man who had ever held that portfolio. Many up this way may affect to laugh at that summing up but the record is secure and is one which is to the glory of the American Navy. As one who was a part of and saw some of the workings of this thing as far as one man could see it, this statement may have a bit of warrant.

Reluctantly Wilson was forced into the war. Bryan refused to sacrifice his announced convictions to political expediency and got out. Then a new adviser some time after appears. The man from Texas who we first met at the Oceanside appears on the scene. Apparently he had just the qualifications needed. Used to the ways of politicians he had in plenty just those qualities that Wilson lacked and sorely needed. His alter ego if we may so term the party in question became of world-wide note. One of the outstanding figures of the war made so as the agent of Wilson. But the time came when Wilson found he could trust no one so cutting the Gordian knot and against the protest of the entire Republican press he went over to France to participate in the peace pour parlers.

There he endeavored to read the Golden Rule into the treaty terms but found himself hamstrung and sold out on every side. From being the most trusting of men he was forced to become the most suspicious. Every one of the apostles became a Judas in his eye. Even the faithful Tumulty, but to the latter's credit let it be said that nothing but the kindest of words and the deepest appreciation has come from his lips. Tumulty understood and understands. More than any other person he knew the awful struggle and strain which beset his chief on all sides and warped his judgment.

Will this ambassador extraordinary of Wilson or Bryan rank as the Seward of that epoch-making administration. For Seward, big man, his bigness of intellect and devotion to his chief is growing bigger, greater in the estimation of historians every day. Time inevitably appraises men judicially and scrupulously just. The square dealer wins in the long run.

Never since the preachment of the Master has a greater and more altruistic doctrine than Wilson endeavored to write into the treaty "Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men" been essayed. His peace treaty failed. Has it failed? The Master died unheralded. That gatherer up of historical odds and ends, Josephus, fails to mention him. It was only several hundred years later that tradition carrying on the doctrine of the Master and the gospels as handed down by word of mouth were written that the day of the Nazarene came. So may it be with Wilson. Time will tell.

Consider the last days of Wilson. Bedridden, unable to rise, in a deep stupor, assailed in the Senate by the Cat-

TO MY LADY IN SEARCH OF THE DISTINCTIVE MAGNOLIA

MAGNOLIA

THE SEASON is swinging in to mid-August and may be said to be at its height. The Beach Club tennis tournament and sports and the Street Fair have livened up things perceptibly and much of the old time life and animation which characterized the place at this period is in evidence.

The death of Mr. Lawrence, who was making his initial season here as a hotel proprietor, is a matter of regret. Mr. Lawrence possessed a fund of experience coupled with energy which would have counted in the hotel life of the place. He took over the well known Hesperus, brought it up to the present in many ways, and his short term here gave evidence that he might make a success of his adventure. His widow will continue the business.

Social life has focussed in full swing at the Beach Club.

Thursday night Master Neddie Bigelow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow of Brookline and Magnolia, gave a party to five of his young friends at the Beach Club. His sister, Miss Olivia Ames, also entertained a party of twelve of her associates at the same time. Games were played, treasure hunts enjoyed, and each of the young guests presented with a souvenir gift of the occasion.

Mrs. L. A. Brown of Bass Rocks entertained a party of twenty-four at a lobster supper on the beach on Friday evening.

All the players in the tennis tournament enjoyed a weenie roast on the beach on Friday evening.

John J. Chickering, Sherill Bigelow and Mrs. Benjamin F. L. Bassett of North Andover have been recent guests of John C. Ellsworth of Magnolia at the Beach Club.

Miss Eleanor Rowe of Magnolia has had as a guest at the Beach Club recently, Miss Gretchen Bremer of Milton.

Miss Dorothy Blodgett of Brookline and Mrs. William M. Shedden of Chestnut have been recent guests of Miss Ruth Martin at the Beach Club.

The Misses Barbara and Anne Stevens of Magnolia have been entertaining Miss Kathleen Smith of Gwynedd Valley, Pa., and Miss Betty Rees of Chestnut Hill at the Beach Club this week.

Miss Ruth Swift of Manchester has had as guests at the Beach Club, A. S. Beveridge of Indianapolis, Florence Lindsey of Southboro, Kenneth Pender of South Dakota, and Lawrence R. Van Deusen of Scranton, Pa.

Recent Beach Club guests of Mrs. George C. Schanck are Miss Agnes Donahue of the Hotel Delmonico, N. Y. C., and Mr. Spencer Wilson of the Lotus Club, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Root and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scranton of West Newton and Mrs. Nolt of West Roxbury have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Esson at the Beach Club.

Miss Eleanor Shaw of Boston and Wareham has been a guest of Miss Catherine Richardson of Magnolia at the Beach Club.

Miss Jean Fuller of Gleasondale has been entertained at the Beach Club recently by Miss Priscilla Phelan of Magnolia.

Mrs. W. G. Shields of Magnolia has had as a guest at the Beach Club Dr. Mary Blauvelt of Ridgewood, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. O'Connell of Magnolia have been entertaining Mr. John J. Dowling of Newton and Mrs. Edward G. Murray of Larchmont, N. Y., at the Beach Club.

Mrs. Paul Gring of Manchester recently entertained Mrs. George H. Stevens also of Manchester, at the Beach Club.

Miss Virginia Phelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Phelan of Brookline and Manchester, has returned from a short visit in New York City.

Mrs. Damon Runyon and children, Damon, Jr., and Mary, of New York City are guests at Green Gables.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Cunningham of Larchmont have been recent guests at Green Gables.

Captain and Mrs. Edward Watson and daughter, Miss Clifford Watson, of New York City, stopped recently at Green Gables.

Recent visitors to Hesperus Villa have been Mr. and Mrs. E. J. O'Rourke of Worcester, with their two daughters, Miss M. A. and Miss N. F. O'Rourke.

At the North Shore Inn: Mr. Edward W. Gilbert and his mother, Mrs. Gilbert of Philadelphia; Bessie Mott, New York City; the Misses Catherine, Agnes, Elizabeth, and Margaret Hayes, Troy.

At the Oceanside: Mr. and Mrs. F. Goodwin Smith, Hartford; Mrs. Alice P. Stickney, Montclair; Samuel Frank, Mrs. R. Simon, Mrs. M. Simon, Mrs. K. Wormsley, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Noble, C. F. MacMurray, John W. Lapice, J. M. Holzman, Mrs. B. M. Holzman New York City; Sellen R. Meyers, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggins, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Allen R. Hite, Pasadena; Mrs. Berry McAllister, the Misses Bernice and Virginia McAllister, Columbia, Mo.

Prize winners at this week's bridge at the Oceanside were Mrs. William R. P. Emerson, Miss Elsie S. Crane, Mrs. Mary Nimmo Black, Mr. Caswell Ellis. Mah Jongg prize winners, Mrs. C. I. Hood, Miss Mary Queen, Mrs. Charles M. Noble.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Blake White of Ormand, Fla., Bretton Woods and New York, are the guests of the John Hays Hammonds at Lookout Hill.

Another guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hammond is Mr. Charles Butters of San Francisco. Mr. Butters is an old friend and companion of the Hammonds, being with them in their younger life during the stirring days at Johannesburg, South Africa, just prior to the Boer War.

Mrs. Charles Hoyle of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Hoyle being a sister of Mrs. Hammond, has arrived at Lookout Hill for an indefinite stay.

August, the gala month of the North Shore, has been ushered in with dancing and festivity at Del Monte's. Among those entertaining at Del Monte's this week are Mr. N. W. Bashford of Magnolia, with a party of ten; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Perry of the Oceanside Hotel, party of eight; Robert Potter of Manchester, party of eight; Quincy Adams Shaw of Prides, party of six; Miss C. H. Sherburne of Marblehead, party of eight; Miss Abby Beveridge of Prides, party of twelve; Miss Fanny Moore of Prides, party of eight; Mr. E. H. Brainerd of Magnolia, party of ten; Mr. William McGaffee of Magnolia, party of ten; Mr. Kitfield of Magnolia, party of eight; Daniel Mulloney of Magnolia, party of twelve; Sewall Fessenden, Jr., of Manchester, party of eight; Charles Inches of Marblehead, party of twelve.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

The Salvation Army Annual General Maintenance Appeal for $3,000 here in Gloucester and vicinity is now on.

The chairman of this drive makes the following statement:

"The faithful and untiring work of The Salvation Army appeals to every thoughtful person. The army is dependent upon public support and the amount required for efficient service is of course large.

"Contributions can be forwarded to Mr. Kilby W. Shute, Treasurer, Cape Ann National Bank or given to the Salvation Army representatives when they call at your house.

"The service rendered in this community is of unquestioned value, efficiently and economically rendered, and worthy of generous support.

"I personally feel the work that the Salvation Army is called upon to do here in Gloucester, and its vicinity, is done by no other organization, and the workers are kind and thoughtful in their ministrations to the poor and unfortunate.

"This is the only appeal that will be made this year.

"Sincerely yours,

"HON. WILLIAM J. MACINNIS, Salvation Army Drive Chairman."

BASS ROCKS

SWINGING toward mid-August social life seems to pep up a bit although with the soaring temperature wisdom dictates taking things as easily as possible. Several teas and bridge parties have taken place at the club house this week and as the season advances from the backstretch into the last quarter this form of diversion will become more general.

At the regular weekly bridge held on Monday afternoon at the Bass Rocks Golf Club, eight tables were in play.

Mrs. Stahr of Washington and Bass Rocks entertained a number of friends at luncheon and bridge at the Club House on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ralph P. Alden of Springfield, who is summering at the Moorland, entertained at a luncheon and bridge on Thursday.

Miss Daisy Prentice of Washington, a guest at the Hotel Thorwald, entertained at a luncheon bridge on Saturday.

Mrs. Ralph P. Alden, with her mother, Mrs. James F. Bidwell of Springfield, entertained a number of friends at a bridge tea on Wednesday.

Mrs. Arthur T. Safford of Lowell and Bass Rocks was hostess to a group of friends at a tea at the Bass Rocks Golf Club on Wednesday.

On Thursday, Mrs. Bartow Van Ness of Baltimore and the Moorland, Bass Rocks, entertained at a bridge tea at the club house.

Mrs. Charles Brinton of Haverford, Penn., is the guest at "Tragibizganda" of Mrs. Charles Scott.

Miss Mary Moseley, proprietor of the Nassau Guardian in the Bahamas, is en route for this country from England and on her arrival will be the guest of Mrs. Winthrop Sargent at Bass Rocks. Miss Moseley is of the fourth generation who have been in proprietorship of that journal.

BRIER NECK

N. H. Stack and family of Wakefield have returned to their Brier Neck cottage for another season.

John Mitchell and family of Medford are spending the summer at their Brier Neck cottage.

Rev. C. Oscar Ford and family of Winthrop are at their summer home in Cliff road.

Reginald Heber Smith and family of Boston are spending the summer at Brier Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clawson of Woodstock, N. J., are at Briercliffe for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Clawson are accompanied by their family.

Albert K. Comins and family of Winchester are at Brier Neck for another season.

Miss Martha S. McTaggart of Worcester has come to the McTaggart cottage, "Craigiedoran," for another season.

Thornton A. Snow and family of Winchester are at Brier Neck for the season.

W. H. Haker and family of Brookline are summering at the "Croosways," Brier Neck.

Cameron Thompson and family of Brookline are spending the summer months at Barberry Lodge.

Mrs. Andrew Lumsden and family of Everett are at Braeside for the summer months.

Walter B. Allen and family of Boston are at Rosemoor Lodge for another season.

Albert B. Morgan and family of Malden are spending the summer months at Ozone cottage. The Morgans are residents of long standing at Brier Neck.

Henry A. Morgan, Jr., of Malden is summering at Greylodge cottage.

Fred H. Perry and family of Watertown are spending the summer months at their cottage in Brier Neck road.

EASTERN POINT

THE OUTCOME of the three races for the Greenough cup between Eastern Point, Annisquam and Marblehead Triangles was quite satisfactory, the trophy remaining on Cape Ann, showing that the Gloucester contingent is the equal of the best at the game. The tourney was hotly contested, Marblehead being defeated by a half-point, going home defeated but by no means disgraced. We presume these inter-North Shore contests may be an annual fixture.

Senator David I. Walsh and General and Mrs. Edward B. Logan of Boston were the over Sunday guests of Mrs. Jacob L. Loose at her summer home, "Sea Rocks."

Mrs. James Todd of Sewickley, Penn., whose summer home is at Rumson, N. J., is the guest of Mrs. George E. Tener at her Eastern Point summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe Nesbit of Philadelphia and Hyannisport, are the guests during August of Mrs. Nesbit's mother, Mrs. George E. Tener.

Molly Williams, who has spent the last week in the Adirondacks, has returned to the Ramparts for the rest of the season.

Mrs. F. E. Williamson of Chicago, daughter of Mrs. Raymond, has arrived at the Ramparts for a stay during the month.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson of New Jersey is the guest of Mrs. S. A. Raymond at the Ramparts.

The annual tennis tournament on the courts of Colonel and Mrs. John Wing Prentiss at Blighty will be held in two weeks in charge of Mr. Lawrence Rhinelander of Eastern Point.

THE ROCKPORT WOMEN'S CLUB

The Rockport Woman's Club is making preparations for a Tercentenary Costume Tea on the afternoon of August 30 at 51 Broadway. There will be three groups, Provincial, Colonial and Modern. Prizes for the best costumes. Games, whist and bridge are being arranged and dancing by the younger set.

THE ROCKPORT SHORE

IF A CLEANER, brighter and neater New England town may be found along the North Shore than right here we have not run across it in our travels. A typical Pomander row is Dock square with its neatly kept grounds framing cheerily painted colonial cottages. It's such a town that people who can choose will come to make their permanent home.

Mr. Herbert P. Bowman of Cambridge has the Thibeault cottage this season.

Mrs. Thomas Barnett of St. Louis has come to Bearskin Neck for another season.

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Bass of Greenwich are at "Rudder Grange" on the Headlands for the summer months.

Mrs. Hattie G. Bass has arrived at "The Anchorage" for the new season. Mrs. Bass comes to Rockport from Hyde Park each summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Beal of New York are numbered among the art colony this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuel W. Beach of West Newton are here for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Beal of Gloucester are at "Sea View" on Bearskin Neck for the season.

Beatrice Cast Bell is spending the summer at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cast of Malden.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Blackwell are at "Martin Fuller" cottage, Land's End, for the season. The Blackwell residence is in Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lyman Bogert of Waltham are among those who spend their summers at Land's End. The Bogert cottage is "Camborne Ledge."

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. B. Brown of Wellesley are at Land's End for another season.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bryant of Washington are at "Faer Smith" on Shetland road.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard B. Buchanan of Woburn are at "Moss Rock" cottage for the summer.

THE ANNISQUAM SECTOR

SQUAM YACHTSMEN both as regards seamanship and strategy acquitted themselves with credit during the first three days' racing in the Triangle class for the Greenough trophy against the admittedly strong and well seasoned Marblehead and Eastern Point crews, this being Squam's first season with Triangles. These Triangles are classy boats.

The looked for accident at the mill dam occurred although as far as can be seen the human element was largely accountable. Work of construction is now being pushed on the southern side. The incident proves ample justification for the erection of these stable barriers.

Miss Grace W. Minns of Boston and Annisquam left this week for Maine where she will spend the remainder of the month returning to Annisquam for the rest of the season.

Miss Polly Marden, daughter of the Professor of Spanish of Princeton University, is the guest this month of the Edmund D. Cooks at Millrace cottage, Annisquam causeway.

Miss Margaret Barlow of Garrison, N. Y., is the house guest of Mrs. Benjamin A. Smith at her summer home, Wigwam Point.

Mrs. Elliot Daland and three children of Torresdale, Penn., a sister of Miss Margaret Fitzhugh Brown, the portrait painter, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. David Stevens in Arlington street.

Mr. Havens Perkins, a Rhodes scholar at Queen's, Oxford, and Professor of Ethics in the General Seminary, N. Y., whose works on education have attained a wide audience, is the guest of Mr. A. Hyatt Mayor at Seven Acres, Annisquam.

ALONG THE ANNISQUAM—

RIVERVIEW

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Blatchford of Gloucester are at their cottage in Riverview for the season. Mrs. Blatchford is contemplating a California trip in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman G. Harriman of Gloucester are at Riverview for the summer. Mrs. Harriman was formerly Miss Doris Blatchford. With Mr. and Mrs. Harriman are their two children, Sherman G., Jr., and Bruce.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Gorton of Gloucester are at their Riverview home,

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

Wonderings—and More Wonderings—Chubby's Kitchen—Magnolia Shops
—Marcia at Last

Another week had passed with no further word from the truants of the clan—Marcia and Larry. Since the arrival of Marcia's telegram a week earlier, the clan had waited in an agony of anticipation for news of Marcia herself and her new husband—whoever he might be. And now at last had Friday come around again, the scheduled date of the arrival of the pair.

"Do you really think they'll come?" Peggy asked Anne, from the depths of a luxurious Heywood-Wakefield reed and fibre chair. (Peggy had done a great deal of shopping lately at the North Shore Furniture Company, and this set of strikingly colorful chairs was the principal result.)

"Nothing would surprise me," volunteered Chubby. "After getting the whole bunch at the station last week and then not showing up at all, I've my doubts as to their appearance this trip."

"Disciple of old man Schopenhauer himself, aren't you?" scoffed Jimmie. "Quite a budding young pessimist, I should say. What's the matter, Chubby? Haven't they been treating you right at Barker's lately?"

"Don't mention Barker's," begged Peggy. "I almost had to drag him out of there by main force yesterday. That delicious peach ice-cream is too much for him."

"But what do you think, Anne?" persisted Gay. "Will they really come today?"

"I don't know any more than the rest of you," said Anne, slowly, "but somehow, I rather think they will."

"I certainly hope you're right," Gay returned. "I'm awfully anxious to see this man of Marcia's. Have you any idea, Anne, who it can be?"

"All I know," replied Anne, "is that Marcia was engaged last fall to a boy she met at school. They were planning to be married in September. Then, a few weeks ago, when Marcia first arrived, I noticed that she seemed rather unhappy and asked her about it."

"Wasn't that the day we saw those marvellous trousseau linens at the Grande Maison?" Joan wanted to know. "I noticed it, too."

Anne nodded. "Marcia told me," she continued, "that she had broken her engagement, and was going to Europe this fall."

"Why, of course she did," broke in Peggy. "I remember perfectly. She even arranged her passage at Bott's, didn't she?"

"I didn't know she went as far as that," said Anne, "but I do know that she was very much interested that day we were talking about Bott's being an accredited representative for so many first class steamship lines."

"But that's neither here nor there," Jimmie said, impatiently. "Do you want to know what I think?"

He paused to ascertain whether anybody did. Then, being satisfied, apparently, with the questioning expressions on the faces of the clan, he went on.

"I think that Marcia and Larry have skipped off and got married, and are keeping us in all this suspense just for a lark!"

"Marcia and Larry!" exclaimed Peggy. "Why—why—"

"How perfectly ridiculous!" said Joan. "Why they scarcely knew each other."

"Are you sure of it?" questioned Jimmie.

"Positive," was the reply. "Why, they met for the first time the night Marcia came."

"Who introduced them?" demanded Jimmie next.

Everybody was silent.

"Well?" from Jimmie again.

"I remember now," said Anne. "We were all sitting in Peggy's living room when they came in. They joked some about having met on the porch, didn't they?"

"Of course they did," cried Peggy triumphantly. "And that settles it, doesn't it, Mr. Sherlock?"

"Not quite," was the reply. "Do you know that they met on the porch—for the first time?"

No one spoke for some time. Each was busy with his own thoughts and questionings, each anxious for the return of the prodigals, and the truth.

Cottage Pewter

PEWTER belongs to the country cottage! Its quaint charm, its varied service, its immunity from constant care and cleaning are but three of its splendid virtues. To these Ovington's adds a fourth commendation . . . the attraction of modest prices.

OVINGTON'S

Lexington Avenue, Magnolia
Mass.

Fifth Avenue at 39th Street
New York

Never were pewter table sets lovelier than here at Ovington's and never were they more reasonably priced!

"Well," remarked Chubby, "this is too much for me. Suppose we try to forget it for awhile. We'll meet the train, anyway, and see," with a glance at Jimmie, "if they actually do arrive. But there's lots of time to wait. Who wants to see my new kitchen?"

Chubby's latest acquisition was a new kitchen. Peggy declared that his mania for Gorton Pew products was the direct cause, but most of us secretly thought that Nauss lumber had something to do with it. Chubby was always building and building on.

The kitchen was really the most modern and the pleasantest kitchen in the experience of any of the clan. Built of Nauss lumber, decorated by Steele and Abbott, and furnished with gaily colored kitchen furniture from the Gloucester Lumber Store on Main Street, it was the most attractive and withal the most practical arrangement they had seen.

There was a brand new shiny gas range, a Glenwood, from the Gloucester Gas Light Company, a gleaming Frigidaire from L. E. Smith Company, and the entire kitchen equipment was a credit to the firm of L. E. Andrews. Lovely, shiny aluminum pots and pans, saucepans, strainers, etc., all with handles in uniform color adding to the attractiveness of the ensemble, gave the room an air of smartness unusual in so humble a laboratory. Chubby told us that his bathroom was to be done over by L. E. Andrews, too, in the near future.

Shelves in the kitchen were laden with groceries and provisions from the First National Stores, and Peggy caught a glimpse of a pair of broilers ready for cooking that could have come from nowhere but Shepherd's market.

"Let me show you my new tennis court," said Chubby, when inspection of his remarkable kitchen was concluded. "Swinson Brothers are doing it, and believe me, when it's done it'll be a wonder."

"They're the people who are doing the work in the reconstruction of the old fort at Stage Fort Park, aren't they?" asked Joan.

"They certainly are," was the reply, "and doing a mighty good job, too. It's a fine thing for the city to have that old landmark preserved."

"Children!" wailed Peggy suddenly. "What are we going to do to entertain Marcia and her husband when they arrive?"

Nobody had thought of entertainment. Busily engaged as they had been with wondering and questioning, not a thought was given to the matter.

"Of course, there's always Del Monte's," suggested Jimmie.

"Oh, Del Monte's, of course," they told him. "That goes without saying. But what else?"

"The Little Theatre on Rocky Neck," offered Joan. "They do lovely things."

"That, too," agreed Anne. "And tea at Vera's. That's an adorable place, don't you think? So restful and refreshing with its soft gray tones."

"It's in an ideal spot, too," added Peggy, "down there among the rocks and gorze, with that marvellous view out over Brace's Cove! It surely is the nicest tea room on the Cape."

"Then we might give a tea, too," suggested Anne, "and have all the young people in to meet the newlyweds."

"Fine idea," approved Gay, "but who in the world can we get to serve?"

"That's easy," said Peggy. "Let's leave it to Cottage Service. They seem to do everything under the sun, why not that? And I know they'll do it willingly, as they do things always."

"Well, Cottage Service opened my cottage," Joan told them, "and I suppose they'll close it; and they've taken wonderful care of me all season. I can't imagine the Shore without them now."

"Speaking of entertainment," said Gay, a little later, "how about some for ourselves right now? There's an hour, or rather two, before the train is due. Let's run over to Magnolia, shall we?"

"Somebody'll have to make room for (Continued on page 16)

EASTERN POINT, JULY 30

A light and undependable breeze from the southward again presented itself for the Eastern Point race Wednesday afternoon, July 30.

In the Sonder class, Panther secured a good lead out of the harbor. Hauled on the wind, Tid IV and Tern stood to starboard toward Thacher's, while the rest of the division headed up into Boston Bay. Luck was with the first named, Tid having the best of the argument over Tern to the mark by ten seconds.

On the run home, Tid got in the wake of a wind slant which wafted her along, while Tern was at a standstill, all the others being in the same predicament, strung out all over the bay.

In the Triangles Idol and Flirt reached the weather mark practically together. On the run in, Injun and Blue Bill favored by a vein, slipped into first and third places, respectively. Blue Bill cut corners and squeezed into second place.

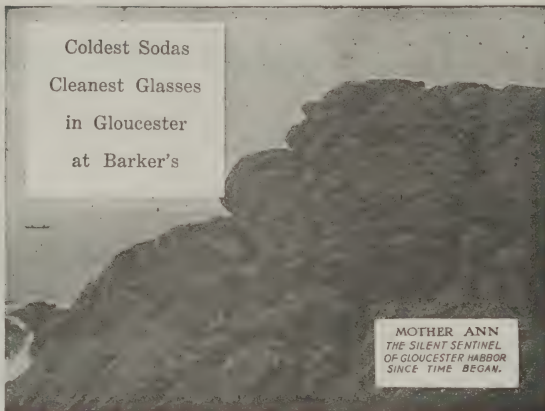

In the Cape Cod Knockabout group, Bemo secured a commanding lead in the first half, only to get hopelessly marooned in a calm quarter section off Norman's Woe, while her competitors came up with and distanced her. The summary:

ANNISQUAM, AUGUST 2

A spanking southwesterly breeze from 18 to 20 knots gave the boats at Annisquam all the wind they wanted Saturday afternoon, August 2. With a short, choppy sea in Ipswich Bay, water was taken aboard aplenty. Some of the boats of the smaller classes were withdrawn. The 15-footers did not start.

For the Triangles, it was scuppers under and bucking masts throughout, yet all carried full sails.

Goblin won, although passed by the Sealine, Blue Bill and Idol, all turning at the outer mark in the order named within 30 seconds. Once close together, Goblin early retrieved her lost lead while Blue Bill and Idol displaced Sealene, which finished fourth.

In the Bird class, Evelyn Woodbury rounded Essex mark half a minute in advance of Tern and positions were unchanged on the run to the inner mark.

On the beat home, Paul Woodbury in the Flamingo, who had been the sternmost boat at the first two marks, ate up into the lead, although he had trouble with a buckling mast.

In the Cat class, Ben Smith in the Caterpillar showed himself a good man when looking the wind in the eye, coming home a winner after being left by Kittiwake and Wildcat on the reach and then redeeming himself on the dead beat to the finish line. The summary:

EASTERN POINT, AUGUST 2

The best weather conditions, with perhaps one, of the season, prevailed at Eastern Point Saturday afternoon, August 2, three classes appearing for the racing in a refreshing southerly wind of 15 knots.

The Bandit, in the Sonder division, had the advantage until getting outside the breakwater when the fleet all kept off to starboard under the lee of the backshore of Eastern Point. It was tack and tack to the southerly mark and on this work Jack Raymond in the Hevella navigated his boat to the turning point a minute and 40 seconds ahead of Tid IV, with Tern 35 seconds astern of the latter.

On the reach to Kettle Cove, Tid and Tern both reduced the stretch of water the Hevella had established. Hevella just nosed them out for the honors at the second buoy.

On the run home, Tid and Tern passed Hevella, the Cox boat, just before the finish, pulling ahead enough to assure victory.

Mrs. Groverman Ellis, who sailed Tid IV, reined in at the line sufficiently to allow Hevella to slip over into second place and thereby fatten up its average in the first series of the class, which ended Saturday.

In the Triangles, Mavouneen sailed by Gerald O'Brien, a newcomer to the club, scored a first victory.

In the Cape Cod boats, Fontana had established a long lead on the first two legs but was eventually overhauled by Lucky Duck, her first appearance this season. The summary:

ALL OFF SUNDAY, AUG. 3

Lack of wind at Annisquam caused the scheduled yacht races there to be called off last Sunday. A start was made at Eastern Point, but little progress was made before the yachts were becalmed and eventually had to be towed back to moorings.

HEVELLA, SPRITE, MARYLAND

Jack Raymond's Hevella leads the Sonder class at Eastern Point in both the Wednesday and Saturday and Sunday races at the end of the first series. Jacob D. Cox, Jr.'s Tern is second. Sprite leads the Triangle class, while Maryland, sailed alternately by Meredith and the Misses Sophie and Kate Boyce, leads the Cape Cod Knockabouts with Jock Raymond runner-up with Old Ironsides.

Standings at the end of the first series: Wednesday and Saturday races—Hevella 86.2 points, Tern 85.2, Skeezix 65, Shamrock 59.8, Buccaneer 50, Lady II 33.3.

Nonqualifiers—Tid IV 83.3 points, Bubbles 58.3, Tid III 25, Bandit 11.5. Sunday races—Hevella 85.3 points, Tern 84.3, Skeezix 72.1, Shamrock 63.9, Buccaneer 41.6, Bubbles 25.6, Lady II 17.6.

Triangle class—Sprite 73.8 points, Flirt 68.3, Black Bess 65.7, Injun 63.6.

Cape Cod Knockabouts—Maryland 96.7 points, Old Ironsides 77.3, Bemo 65.9, Syph 64.3, Guerriere 55.1, Mary Bess 59.7, Arethusa 46.7, Fontana 31.3, Skippy 15.9.

Nonqualifiers—Wiki Wiki 42 points, Touareg 27.3.

FLOWER SHOW

Each year the Gloucester Flower Show is an event of the summer season. Under the auspices of the Gloucester Garden Club, the exhibition has been held in previous years at the old Community House. This year the show will be held in the vestry of the Universalist Church on Friday, August 22. It is hoped that the people of Gloucester, with the summer residents, will assist by contributing flowers in an effort to make this the most successful exhibition of all.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

me," announced Joan. "I left my car at the Fernwood Garage last night. Something went wrong with the brakes, and they do such excellent work I let them take complete charge of all repairs."

Half an hour later, after Peggy had ordered her usual amount of Chanticleer Ice-Cream for the clan's dinner (luscious orange sherbet this time) and after Chubby had phoned for luncheon reservations at Green Gables, they set out for Magnolia, the Mecca of summertime shoppers.

Peggy was lovely in a shell pink knitted suit with matching beret, the result of yesterday's shopping at W. G. Brown's, and Anne wore a crisp blue linen and panama, products of the same establishment. Joan and Gay were like twins in white pique suits and gay berets, which they confessed were also Brown's. And all were exquisitely and comfortably shod with Armstrong's Deauvilles.

Chubby made his usual stop at Towle's en route, while Peggy insisted on being taken to Mary Ellen Golden's for at least a pound of her delicious chocolates. Gay and Jimmie were lost for a time, but were soon found in Patisserie's, admiring the new display of porch furniture. Then, fearful lest Chubby find new points of interest to detain them further, Anne hurried them all into waiting cars and off to Magnolia.

Arriving there, they went directly to Ovington's where they found a new shipment of lamps just arrived. Table lamps, bridge lamps, bedside lamps, boudoir lamps, all sorts and kinds of lamps in the most fascinating variety imaginable. One in particular impressed Anne. It was a table lamp of gold plated bronze, with a graceful ivory figure mounted on an onyx base. A silk shade in ivory completed a lovely effect. Gay was intrigued by a charming bedside lamp, made especially to go between twin beds. It was of decorated metal in pale soft green with dainty flowers in pastel shades on each of the two stems. Still another lamp of sang de boeuf coloring, mounted on a base of French bronze, was admired by the entire clan.

Reluctantly they left this fascinating shop to visit the Grande Maison de Blanc. Here, dainty equipment for a newly arrived infant delighted them. Everything from bassinet and wardrobe to nursery basket and scales, was in a soft shell pink. For the crib there were soft white wool blankets bound with pink, and coverlet of soft pink crepe de chine, with edge of taffeta.

For the baby itself there were the daintiest of sheer white slips, as well as the more elaborate dresses for christening and such formal occasions. One of these, beautifully tucked and embroidered and finished at the bottom with a band of rare old lace, was particularly enchanting.

Proceeding to Manahan's, fashions caught and held their attention. Fashions in new fall clothes. A light wool day time frock in a dark tobacco brown was particularly pleasing to Anne, while Gay selected a lovely red canton crepe, with long sleeves, and black velvet jacket to complete the ensemble.

For late afternoon, there were gorgeously colorful frocks of the popular and striking lame, and for evening stunning velvets in such unusual shades as apple green and geranium red, as well as the ever popular black.

Leaving Manahan's finally, they concluded their shopping tour with a stop at Richard Briggs'. Here they found watch balls in five lovely colors: amber, green, amethyst, and two shades of blue. Some were equipped with a slender gilt chain, for hanging in one's living room or on one's porch, others had matching stands with a ball of crystal in the stem for decoration. The girls thought immediately what splendid bridge prizes they would make, and since they were so reasonably priced, each carried a share of them away with her.

TRAFFIC ORDINANCE

"Nearly time for the train, isn't it?" asked Chubby as they left the house of Briggs.

Jimmie glanced at his watch. "Fifteen minutes to make it," he told them.

There followed a scramble for waiting cars, and a quick run to the station. They reached there just as the train came roaring down the tracks.

Eagerly they gathered on the platform, awaiting the moment of Marcia's appearance. Eagerly they scanned each face as it appeared in the vestibule of the car.

"Look! look!" cried Peggy, suddenly, pointing down the platform to the last car.

The others, following the direction of her glance, gasped with amazement. For there stood Larry, on the station platform, helping Marcia to the ground.

NORTH SHORE ARTS ASSOCIATION

The second concert in the series presented by the North Shore Arts Association under the direction of Arthur Fiedler was given at the Association Gallery on Saturday evening, August 2. The program featured a trio of violin, played by Mr. Fiedler, 'cello, Hyppolite Droegeham, and piano, Jesus Maria Sanroma. The trio was assisted by Miss Mary Silveira, soprano, accompanied by George B. Stevens.

The concert opened with Mozart's Trio, No. 4, in C Major (No. 548 in the Kochel Catalog) by the three Symphony players. Mr. Sanroma was at his best in this composition, a beautiful study by the great artist.

Miss Silveira's first group of songs showed her to be in excellent voice, and were well received by the audience. The group consisted of Goossen's "Chanson De Barbarine," Gretchaninoff's "Snow-Flakes" and "Una Voce Poco Fa" from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini.

Schubert's "Trio, No. 2, Opus 100, in E Flat Major," was the next number on the program, played by the trio. The four movements of this composition are particularly powerful and were extremely effective as rendered by the visiting artists.

The final number, a second group of songs by Miss Silveira, concluded a delightful program. Songs of this second group were Mozart's "Batti, Batti" from Don Giovanni, "The Market" by Carrew and "Depuis Le Jour" from Louise by Charpentier. Miss Silveira sings with a freshness and a beauty unequalled by older and more experienced artists. Her voice has a lovely clarity and a splendid natural strength. She sings with ease and grace.

During the intermission a very welcome announcement was made to the effect that on August 24, Mr. Sanroma will give a recital in the Association Gallery.

STILLINGTON HALL

A most enjoyable program by John Goss, baritone, and Florence Moxon, pianist, was heard at Stillington Hall on Thursday evening, August 7. This was the second in the series being given at Stillington Hall this summer.

Mr. Goss, who has made a special summer trip from England to fulfill a few limited engagements of which the Thursday night concert was one, has been described as "a born artist, with the intuitions and the taste which must be inherent, since they never could be merely acquired," and he undoubtedly proved himself beyond all dispute at Stillington Hall. Mr. Goss has a voice, at once beautiful and interpretative. The quality of his tone is splendid, his singing exceptional.

Miss Moxon was greeted with enthusiasm by her audience. She plays with understanding and sympathy. She is both capable and sensitive, her technique and expression good.

CAPE ANN THEATRE

Owing to the illness of Miss Dorothy George, who was to have sung the leading role in "Padlock," this week, Miss Fisher, the theatre director, has changed the program and is presenting at the Cape Ann Theatre this week, "Cape Ann-tics." One of the features of this most enjoyable program is a sketch written by Miss Fisher herself, which takes one through the medium of folk songs from Florida to Hawaii. Miss Ellen Larned will sing the songs.

Other numbers on the program is a burlesque-athletic dance by Winston Hibler, a blackface performance by Mr. Robert Williams, new and original dialogues by Marjorie Moffett, and a one-act play with Miss Essex Dane and Miss Helen Claire.

An interesting piece of news from the Cape Ann Theatre is that Mr. Daniel Frohman, the dean of the American theatre, arrived at Turk's Head Inn on Thursday to review the productions at the theatre.

Miss Fisher will present Diddin's "Padlock," next week.

THE MARY CLARK CONCERT

Makes Successful Appearance Before Large Audience at Moorland

Mary Clark, noted American soprano, appeared at the Moorland Hotel, Bass Rocks, this week. Miss Clark, a member of the International Opera Co., has toured the United States and Europe in concert and opera, and is at present on a summer tour of New England and Canada. She is assisted by Francis Leslye Watkins and R. deC. Leland, of the Theatre Repertory Co. Miss Clark, a protegee of Caruso and a pupil of Mme. Sembrich, was warmly applauded for her exceptional voice and interesting program.

NORTH SHORE PRIZE WINNERS

Announcement was made Wednesday of the winners of the 1930 prizes at the North Shore Arts Association's annual summer exhibition, the judging having been done in secret ballot form by artist members of the association who had personally viewed this unusually fine show.

The prizes were awarded as follows:

Milton Gilbert Davis Memorial Prizes for portrait or figure—$50 to Ruth A. Anderson for No. 99, "The Lavender Dress;" Milton Gilbert Davis Memorial Prize for landscape, $100, divided between No. 21, "Down Essex Way," by Bertha Menzler Peyton and No. 92, "Road and River," by Aldro T. Hibbard; Marine prize given by Mrs. I. N. McHenry, $100, divided between No. 8, "Snow and Surf," by Frederick L. Stoddard and No. 88, "Gloucester Harbor," by Anthony Thieme.

Still life prize given by Mrs. Mary F. R. Clay, $100, to Miss Marguerite S. Pearson for No. 172, "Silver Reflections."

Esther M. Groome Memorial Prize for best work of art in exhibition, regardless of medium, $50, to No. 11, "St. Francis of Assisi," sculpture by Louise Allen Atkins.

Etching prize given by Epes W. Merchant, $25 divided between Gifford Beal for his "Seiners" and Harrison Cady for his "Lonesome Gap in the Great Smoky Mountains."

The Davis Memorial Prizes were given by Albert M. Davis of Boston and the Groome Memorial Prize by Ruth A. Anderson in memory of her aunt, former curator at the North Shore Arts Galleries.

This exhibition will be open daily to the public, without charge, through September 6.

The North Shore Arts Association will hold its annual meeting for election of officers and trustees at the Galleries, East Gloucester square, on Tuesday evening, August 12, at 8.15 o'clock.

NORTH SHORE THEATRE

den Hare and Mary Forbes are the titled English folk.

"This Mad World," the William C. de Mille all-talking production which will come to the North Shore Theatre next Thursday and Friday is a Clara Beranger adaptation of a story of the love of a French spy and a German princess, behind the German lines in Alsace. The principal roles are filled by Basil Rathbone, Kay Johnson, Louise Dressler, Veda Buckland and Louis Natheaux.

"Love Among the Millionaires" has a true Bow throb story. Clara falls in love with a brakeman, Stanley Smith, who turns out to be the son of the president of the road. Neither Stanley's father nor Clara's approves of the match and family complication ensues before the matter is finally straightened out to the satisfaction of every one.

Little Mitzi Green mimics Clara Bow in this picture and sings a song, "Don't be a Meanie," which rivals Jack Oakie's "Alma Mammy" in "Sweetie."

Skeets Gallagher has a strong comedy role with Stuart Erwin. Both these young men are candidates for the hand of Clara Bow and their intense rivalry provides a running fire of comedy.

THE IMMIGRATION LAW!

Deport Alien Criminals—City Officials Commended — Abate Broomstick Mast Nuisance

A year ago an immigration restriction law was passed frankly and avowedly to keep the balance of population power in the United States preponderately in the hands of the descendants of the original settlers, who were mainly from the British Isles, with a perceptible number from the Scandinavian and Teutonic countries. So a ratio based on population content of the Revolutionary period was devised for that purpose. The idea was to bar out the influx from Southern Europe and the Near East. There was nothing new in it. The same principle had been adopted in the Japanese exclusion bill.

But like many other ideas it is working out somewhat different than anticipated. Not that the sentiment is that it should be repealed, rather that it should be strengthened and all immigration stopped for an indefinite time. But the people we want most won't come over.

England is entitled to the largest annual amount permitted to enter, some 65,000. No one would think in view of the amount of unemployment existing there but that this quota would be quickly filled by those glad to come to this land of opportunity. But such is not the case. There are nearly thirty million overcrowding the tight little isle and they don't want to get out. They stay. The unemployed seem quite satisfied with the dole. Evidently the old-time self-respect of the English middle and lower classes is being undermined as economic conditions become acute.

Across the channel in Ireland we find an interesting condition of things. There also is a recent indisposition of many of the natives to emigrate and the immigration quota of the Free State remains unfilled. C. B. McKenna of Trinity College, Dublin, an authority on this subject, commenting upon this showing, says that fifty years ago the Free State had six million inhabitants. Now it has but half of that number and the country is being drained of its young blood at the rate of 50,000 per year. In America he says—we quote—"the emigrants of Irish blood lack the virility of the people of other races and in time must disappear. They congregate in the cities and have the grim distinction of having the highest death rate in the United States." And he goes on to show that "the Irish of all the races of all the emigrants have the lowest resistance to disease."

All of which may be so, but there is no sign of such around Boston and vicinity. There the Irish are very much alive and coming.

However, the sentiment is regardless of any consideration that the bars must be kept up. Improvement in labor saving machinery and the increase of unemployment make such a course imperative. Both Labor and the highest motivated Capitalism are united on this point.

We have enough and too many of the southern and Near East representation, the greater part of whom are non-producers—a shop-keeping, small trading element, overcrowding an already overcrowded field. In this city we have the best of them, the maritime Portuguese and Italians who make the finest fishermen material and more than hold their own, genuine wealth producers drawing from the treasures of the sea.

The proposition of the Dry Enforcement Bureau to deport forever all alien violators of law from this country strikes us as being the greatest agency yet advanced to terminate much of the present lawlessness that prevails. It hits the bull's eye. If enacted and enforced a vigorous Federal administration could clean up Chicago in six months. If its provisions are strengthened and it further provided that any naturalized citizen convicted of being an habitual violator of the laws shall have his citizenship cancelled forever and his children declared aliens and deported, we believe that the present unsatisfactory condition of things that has recently obtained in this country would be improved seventy-five per cent. within the year. Desperate diseases require sturdy remedies. The knowledge that a man and his family will be debarred the highest civic honors of the world, the right of American citizenship and residence, would tend to put the foreign criminal element very much on its good behavior.

BYRD DOGS LEAD MARCH

The Byrd Expedition to the South Pole inspired the theme of this year's annual Fakers' Ball of the Gloucester Society of Artists, that was given Thursday evening in Hawthorne Inn Casino, Gloucester. Edward Goodale and some of his dogs that were with him on the expedition, led the grand march. The South and North Poles were featured in the decorations in the casino, designed and executed by the artists themselves.

The most original and beautiful costumes will be awarded prizes, and there will be a second prize in each classification. Judges will be Miss Grace Hazen, designer of jewelry and gold and silversmith; Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt, New York actress; P. E. Gillingham, art director of Forbes Lithograph Company of Boston; James R. Pringle of the Boston Globe.

As we go to press Thursday we regret the list of prize winners is necessarily deferred until next week.

STACY MEMORIAL

A bronze tablet was dedicated to the memory of George O. Stacy, for whom the Stacy Esplanade, Gloucester, is named, at the entrance to the esplanade Thursday afternoon at five o'clock. United States District Attorney Frederick H. Tarr was the principal speaker, paying a deserved tribute to Mr. Stacy's efforts as a community builder and as an exponent of its civic beauty.

The tablet, designed by Mrs. Gertrude C. Fosdick of New York and set into a huge boulder, is a tribute to Mr. Stacy from his friends of Hawthorne Inn, of which he was the proprietor for more than forty years. It was unveiled by Alice Fischer Harcourt and Mayor Parker presided. A wreath was placed by the Gloucester Society of Artists.

The inscription reads, "Stacy Esplanade is the result of a wish conceived by his parents and fulfilled by their son, George O. Stacy. Keenly alive to the beauty of Gloucester Harbor, he desired to bring to its shores corresponding beauty. This tablet is a loving tribute from his friends of Hawthorne Inn."

THE PILGRIM

BY ALEXANDER G. TUPPER

Dedicated to those brave men who came to the Cape Ann Shore and eventually established the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

The silent curtain of the night—
A moon and stars and whisper of the sea;
And pine boughs shelt'ring close all that takes flight—
A shore where lies the landscape dreamily!

And then the dawn breaks
On a land where voices pierce the solitude;
And sleeping nature startlingly awakes,
As well as all that dwells protecting brood!

Behold the coming habitant—
The birth of Freedom on whitened wings of morn!
And nature gazes outward hesitant,
Off'ring fragrance—incense to the born!

The child has grown to state
And all that he has dreamed has come to life!
For he has learned to labor and to wait—
To build on faith in every path of strife!

An artist grand was he!
And scenes he painted—ships and men,
The fruitful hills, towns tow'ring o'er the sea,
A nation's flag that floats o'er wave and glen!

His canvas glowed supreme
In permanence and men live on to see—Impressions made with Life's translucent dream
To what we call an immortality!

A Pilgrim and his land—
A Bethlehem of Freedom and of Peace—
So do we live to follow on
And give our best—Prosperity's increase!

East Gloucester, August 10, 1930.

Art and Dramatic

NORTH SHORE THEATRE

"Our Blushing Brides," Joan Crawford's newest starring picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will be presented at the North Shore Theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Seen in support of this popular star is a distinguished cast headed by Robert Montgomery, Miss Crawford's leading man in "Untamed," Anita Page, Dorothy Sebastian and Raymond Hackett.

"Our Blushing Brides" is a timely, vividly true dramatic story of modern youth. It reveals Miss Crawford in a finely drawn dramatic role, in many ways reminiscent of her well remembered portrayal in "Our Dancing Daughters." Cast as a beautiful model in an ultra-fashionable Fifth Avenue department store, Miss Crawford interprets the role of a girl who is old-fashioned enough to believe that love is the most sacred thing in life. To live up to this ideal, she is forced to combat all sorts of alluring temptations until unusual circumstances finally do bring her the true love she has dreamed of. The picture's action is fast-moving, highly dramatic, building up to a climax that is as unusual as it is interesting.

THE LITTLE THEATRE

The students at the School of the Little Theatre approached dramatic perfection last Friday and Saturday evenings with the presentation of Ferenc Molnar's "The Swan." The action of the play consists of the bringing together of two mythical royal families who act out amusingly the pretenses of aristocracy, with interesting results. The various parts were, on the whole, exceedingly well played, with one or two of the actors outstanding.

Charles Edgecomb as Dr. Nicholas Agi gave a particularly fine performance, while M. E. Stevens played the part of the genial Father Hyacinth with ability. Peggy Leland was delightful in the character part of Symphorosa, and the part of Alexandra received excellent interpretation in the hands of Ruth Emerson. Norman Sturgis scored a hit in the amusing part of Prince Albert. Other players in the cast included May Sarton, Judith Chase, Margaret Forbes, John Mann, Francis Blake, Peter Hyun, Russell Bailey, Barbara Percival, Roswell Hawley, Lois Weeks, Jane Oakley, A. Elizabeth Mullin, Betty Chidley, Ursula Felix, Felice Leeds and Frances Norton.

The settings for the play were excellent, particularly that for Act 2, the dining hall scene, which was done in a gorgeous deep red

GLOUCESTER DAY NEXT WEDNESDAY

AT STAGE FORT PARK

SOME TWENTY YEARS AGO a midsummer festival known as Gloucester Day was inaugurated and held at Stage Fort Park. It was planned in the nature of a town fair and it is safe to say the like of it as a community festivity could not be duplicated in this country. It has never failed to attract widespread interest and attendance of a large number of the summer element on the North Shore.

Instead of horses, kine, farm and dairy products, plows and agricultural but his frail craft in which he pioneered in this feat will be on exhibition.

It is eminently fitting that this exhibition be given at Stage Fort Park, for it was on this very ground that the Dorchester colony of fishermen and farmers founded the Massachusetts Bay colony in 1623 and set up their stages or fish curing racks, built their community house, brought over ready-cut from England, and from this port for 307 years the fisheries with the foreign commerce for about half that pe-lined with red flares. This will be accompanied by a display of fireworks which will be so staged as to make them more effective with the bay as a background.

On the next day, Wednesday, that of the main celebration, there may be a short parade of military or other organizations. There will be all kinds of sports for children, yacht races in the harbor, boat and canoe races, outboard motor races, swimming and other aquatic events, beside field sports and a machinery, the finished packages of fish as shipped to the consumer, the nets, seines, hooks, dories and models of vessels used from 1623 to the present in addition to other attractions furnished the principal exhibits of this unique display, all under a "big top." Formerly a central point of interest, a human figure in the exhibition, was Capt. Alfred Johnson, familiarly known as "Centennial" Johnson. Capt. Johnson was the first to cross the ocean in a 14 foot open dory in 1876, named the Centennial, a feat as difficult as that achieved by another of his fellow Scandinavians (in Lindbergh's case) by descent in the first generation. Capt. Johnson has since passed along to the ultimate haven in the Fortunate Isles, riod, have been continuously pursued, and today are more firmly entrenched here than ever. A record which no other port in the United States can duplicate. In this Tercentenary year, outside Boston, and in some measure, Portland, Gloucester alone in New England upholds to a major extent the maritime traditions and energies at once the glory and strength of New England.

The date of the observance this year is August 20, next Wednesday. It will be a dignified observance in every respect, under the personal direction of Hon. Col. John E. Parker, mayor of the city. On the Tuesday evening before there will be a grand illumination of the entire outer bay, the coast being out-baseball match on the Hammond diamond.

A principal feature will be the dedication of Fort Conant, as the garrison of the Civil War called it in honor of Roger, the first governor or superintendent, who was here in that capacity from 1624 to 1626. As we have pointed out in previous issues of The Shore, this is the oldest authenticated fort in the Massachusetts Bay colony, defenses being first thrown up on Stage Head by Capt. John Hewes, who was here from 1625 with a party of marine adventurers from the west of England. He set up his fishing stage and began operations, but the Pilgrims who claimed the territory, sent over Standish and a company of armed men to drive Hewes and his men off. But they were not to be driven and fortified themselves and held their ground. This event is commemorated on the big tablet set up on a rocky hillock next the fort in 1907. In all wars up to the Great War it has been occupied by troops as a defense.

This is the one constructive memorial of the State Tercentenary observance in this city and was initiated and carried to a successful completion through the efforts of the Conservation Committee of Lucy Knox Chapter, D. A. R., of this city, with the active co-operation of Mayor Parker. The restoration is a remarkably accurate and solid piece of work after an old Civil War photo of the fort, and is the work of Swinson Brothers. It will form a fine adjunct to this noted historical and beauty spot. In the issue of The Shore of August 2 we printed a reproduction of the photo referred to.

Through the efforts of Congressman Andrew the U. S. S. Marblehead, one of the latest of the naval units, has been assigned to this port during Tuesday and Wednesday and a detachment of the marines and sailors will take part in the parade. The procession, although gotten up at the eleventh hour, so to speak, promises to be a representative one.

The exercises in connection with the dedication of Stage Head Fort (restored) will be held at four in the afternoon, the cool of the day preferable for occasions of this character. Invitations have been sent out to prominent personages and the occasion promises to be fittingly observed. Following is a tentative program although the time of the parade may be changed but there is nothing definite about this at this writing:

"AN INTERESTING CUSTOMER"

How would you like to meet the interesting "denizen of the deep," depicted herewith while taking a quiet swim? Not much. He is a rare specimen of shark species unknown to the fishermen and was taken by one of the Italian boats off the Isle of Shoals—having become entangled in their nets.

He had a double row of teeth and measured from nose to tail 14 1-2 feet. He presented a more formidable appearance before being dressed, being relieved of about a barrel and a half of the choicest of food fishes for he was evidently a valiant trencherman who sought only the best the market afforded.

Formerly these sharks were thrown overboard but of recent years with the incoming to the country of shark eating people they are in demand and are shipped to the big cities where they find a ready market.

GILBERT HOSPITAL DRIVE

There comes a time in the lives of all of us when illness or accident suddenly strikes. So accustomed have we become to the efficient working of our civilization that all of us say, "Of course, there is a hospital always waiting for me, where I can go and where I will be treated as a guest," with no further thought of by or through what means it is provided.

Summer visitors to Cape Ann and vicinity have, for more than thirty years, shared with the residents of Gloucester and vicinity the facilities of Addison Gilbert Hospital, on the outskirts of Gloucester. And not a few of those who come to the Cape summer after summer have "Gloucester, Mass.," as their place of birth on their passports to Nice and Cannes for the winter seasons.

Addison Gilbert Hospital is today confronting the most difficult situation which has arisen since its establishment in 1897. It is overcrowded as it has never been before, and there are many days when the corridors are used as wards, and wards built for three or four beds contain five or six.

There is but one remedy for this situation, said the Board of Trustees at a meeting a few months ago, and that is a larger hospital. But there were no funds nor a magic lamp close at hand, so an appeal to Gloucesterites, permanent and peripatetic, was decided upon.

The eleven-day period from August 14 to August 25 has been set aside for a campaign for $175,000 to provide for the enlargement and modernization of Addison Gilbert Hospital, and contributions to the fund in any amount will be welcome.

TO MY LADY IN SEARCH OF THE DISTINCTIVE MAGNOLIA

MAGNOLIA

THE MATTER of the preservation of the Old Planters town landing in Lobster lane seems settled to the satisfaction of all concerned. Metes and bounds will be set to retain intact what is left of this historic reservation.

By the way, what has become of the proposition to take over the jib piece of land abutting the city's land near Magnolia square? The proposition looked for the best interests of Magnolia.

A rumor of somewhat vague nature comes that there may be something doing in the line of completion of the proposed golf course. We give it as rumor only.

About 100 of the residents in this section of the North Shore, members of the Beach Club, enjoyed an old-fashioned clam bake on Crescent Beach last Thursday night. The bake was in charge of members of the club, with Mrs. Otis Weld Richardson and Mrs. Samuel S. Stevens as chairmen. Mrs. George Story had charge of the employees of the club.

The bake was built in front of the club house of large piles of seaweed and driftwood in which ample stores of clams, lobsters, corn, sweet potatoes, etc., had been buried. This was set fire and in due time opened steaming hot and a beach feast followed.

A large pile of driftwood blazed high and illuminated the scene after dusk.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Otis Weld Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Borden Covell, Mr. and Mrs. Costello C. Converse, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Phelan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fessenden, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Foster, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Farnum, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Plympton, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Anderson, Mrs. J. Harrington Walker.

Robert C. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Martin of Coolidge Point, entertained a party at dinner at the Beach Club on Thursday. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Herbert, Martha Eastman, Demeter Larisch, John Tatfield, H. O. McDearitt, S. A. Aldrich.

Mrs. M. L. Ryan has been entertaining Lorraine and Frances Wilkinson of Newton at the Beach Club recently.

Dorothy Chandler and Marguerite Fuller of West Newton have been recent guests of Margaret Esson.

Mrs. W. N. Coolidge, Jr., of Manchester entertained Sara Schaffer of Salem and Mrs. Hayden of Annisquam at a beach luncheon last week.

Z. B. Adams of Brookline has been a recent guest of Thomas E. Covell at the Beach Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Royce Boss of Cambridge, and Miss Sue Boss of New London have been recent Beach Club guests of Mrs. Pierce Curtis.

Mrs. Otis Weld Richardson of Boston and Magnolia entertained a party at luncheon at the Beach Club on Tuesday.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Borden Covell of Boston and Magnolia entertained a party at luncheon at the Beach Club.

Mrs. Arthur W. Kennard of Magnolia was hostess to a party of eight at luncheon at the Beach Club on Thursday.

On Thursday evening about 75 of the older club members enjoyed a clambake on the beach. Owing to rain, the party was obliged to move indoors early in the evening, but with undampened spirits, participants continued on an evening of cards and dancing.

On Thursday, August 14, the Beach Club will observe its annual beach sports day for children.

Recent guests at Green Gables have been Mrs. W. T. May and Mrs. G. W. Stoddard of Newton Centre.

Mr. Roger Cheney of Connecticut has been a recent visitor to Green Gables.

Mrs. E. H. Haskell and Miss Marian Haskell are expected to arrive at Green Gables early in the week.

About twenty-four playground instructors from Somerville spent the afternoon and evening at Green Gables on Thursday. Swimming was enjoyed, and later dinner was served to the entire group at the Inn.

At the North Shore Inn: Mrs. E. W. Goodrich, Miss Helen Goodrich, Greenwich; Theresa E. King, Somerville; Cornelia H. THIS SECTION has been well favored with patronage during the season, meaning the hotels, as well as cottage leasings. For the past ten days and more the most of the hostelrys have been at a capacity business. The popularity of the place is perennial.

The Shore received a visit from Captain E. Armitage McCann, a retired square rigged master, who now devotes his entire attention to his magazine, "The Shipmodeler," official organ of the Ship Model Makers' Club. He has also published a number of works on ship-modeling which have had a wide vogue and more than a hundred thousand models have been made from his designs. He has clients in the most unexpected places. One, a farmer's wife in a prairie state, devotes her spare moments to this intriguing hobby.

Surprise for Artist

A surprise party was given Miss Jean Nutting Oliver, artist and art critic, at the Delphine Hotel, Sunday afternoon by some 20 of her artist friends. Flowers decorated the attractive white and green tables. Summer chiffons blended with the colorful profusion of blooms, making it seem a veritable garden party. Miss Helen Seymour and Miss Edith Fisher poured. Among those present were Mrs. O. M. G. Howard, Miss Mary F. Ferris, Eben Comins, Ernest Thurn, Miss Helene Seymour, Miss Mabel Nichary, Mrs. Anna A. Townsend, Misses Grace and Agnes Oliver, William Fosdick, Miss Edith Fisher, Mrs. F. H. Storrs, Mrs. Day, Mrs. Edwin Ford, Miss Mary Hooper, Miss Nellie Tompson, Miss Isabelle Books, Mrs. Antoinette Inglis, Miss H. Sahler and Miss A. Annan.

Mrs. C. E. Grammer of Boston entertained seven tables of bridge-whist at the Delphine recently.

Mrs. Charles E. Claggett and Mrs. J. M. Cobb, both of Louisville, were hostesses to a party of friends at an after-theatre supper at the Delphine on Friday.

At Hawthorne Inn: Mrs. Eugene F. Ladd, James B. Finlay, Mrs. N. B. Repper, Charles Repper, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, Newton Centre; Thomas Malone, Anne T. Ahern, Anne F. ### BASS ROCKS

WHEN THE JITNEY players come and go and the golden-rod begins to glow by the wayside September is within hail. Only two weeks to Labor Day. The season has seemed short and quiet and subdued. Whether the shadow of the stock market has been anything of a factor to this end is problematical. At any rate it has been a time of readjustment to changed conditions all around.

Mrs. Murray B. Jones of Houston, Tex., daughter of Mrs. James A. Baker, of Bass Rocks, is the guest of her mother at her summer home. Mrs. Baker is also entertaining her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Malcolm Baker of Houston, for the remainder of the season.

Mrs. Herbert Hallock of Worcester has been the guest during the week of her sister, Mrs. George F. Fuller, at her Bass Rocks summer home.

At the Moorland: Mr. and Mrs. Dana Slade, Jr., Hinsdale; Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Stallwood, Chicago; Mrs. Henry R. Todd, Atlanta; A. M. Grier, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Richards and children, Stamford; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Burke, Springfield; Mrs. L. S. Peabody, New York City; Mrs. Robert H. King, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. Bevis Longstreth and family, Kansas City; Philip Kauffmann, Washington.

At the Moorland: Mrs. John M. Corcoran, Boston; Mrs. James E. McConnell, Brookline; Mrs. Frederick C. Beach, Stratford; A. Louise Brainerd, Effie Leaf Hopkins, Mrs. A. L. Briggs, Dorothy and Leontine Briggs, Hartford; Mrs. W. J. Buffington, Ruth Steele Buffington, Hinsdale; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hutchinson, Mrs. George Rust Rogers, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. James S. Garretson, S. Baldwin Garretson, Bronxville; Mrs. E. C. McKallor, Binghamton, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Norris, Jr., Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Wehr, Miss Anne L. and Jane Wehr, Nell V. Goehring, Pittsburgh; Mrs. R. N. Gresham and children, San Antonio; Mrs. Walter Skinner, Mrs. F. M. Pitton, Hamilton; Augusta L. Pfau, Camden; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Holding, S. H. Holding, Jr., Cleveland; Caroline Ross, Baltimore; Mrs. H. E. Averill, Mrs. F. C. Averill, Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. Hasley T. Tichenor, Montclair, N. J.

At the Thorwald: Mr. and Mrs. Paul B.

Roberts, Winchester; F. L. McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Avis, Providence; Ethel Converse, New Haven; Mrs. Edward Grotzinger, Helen and Edward Grotzinger, Mrs. A. H. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. David Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Henderson, Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Riggs, Mrs. Mary Winslow, New York City; Mrs. Jane Forsythe, Mrs. E. O. Bacon, Oswego; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Dangerfield, Benjamin Dangerfield, Jr., Mrs. H. H. Patterson, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Smith, Frances Smith, Charles J. Smith, Short Hills; Mrs. Herbert Calves and Jean Calves, Dr. Irving Wright, Philadelphia; Mrs. Richard Huyler, Mrs. David Perry, Mabel Perry, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Kennedy, Mrs. Isabel Espie, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Anderson, Gross Point; Mrs. F. S. Bishop and son, Miami Beach; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Dodge and son, Toledo; Mrs. Churchill Whittemore, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. Lighthall, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Barlow, Montreal.

Mrs. Victor Kauffman of Washington and the Moorland entertained at luncheon and bridge at the Bass Rocks Golf Club on Saturday.

Miss Helen Russell and Mrs. Ryerson were hostesses at a bridge tea at the Club House on Tuesday.

Mrs. Long of Washington entertained at luncheon and bridge at the Bass Rocks Golf Club on Wednesday.

Miss Beatrice Alden of Springfield and the Moorland entertained at luncheon at the Golf Club on Friday.

Mrs. John Bailey of Baltimore and Bass Rocks was hostess at a tea at the Golf Club on Sunday afternoon.

EASTERN POINT

WITH ALL the yachts except the Cape Cod Knockabouts away at Marblehead this week life has been somewhat dull and listless. However, the younger yachting set in their knockabouts have staged a couple of interesting sailing scraps to liven up matters.

Mrs. T. Russell Sullivan of Villa Latomia and Miss Myra R. Tutt, also of Eastern Point, have been on a motor trip to Southeast Harbor, Me., during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Jones and children, Virginia and Lawrence of Kansas City, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Jones at their Eastern Point summer home. The Messrs. Jones are brothers.

Among the lovely floral sights along the shore the rock garden of Mrs. James C. Farrell at Felsenmeer, Grapevine Cove, stands out prominently and evokes much admiration.

Mr. Alexander Tener and son George Evans of Sewickley, Penn., arrived this week as the guests of Mrs. George E. Tener at their summer home. Mr. Tener came on in his yacht Tertia.

Play in the annual inter-Eastern Point tennis tournament will begin next week on the courts of Col. and Mrs. John Wing Prentiss at Blighty.

THE ROCKPORT SHORE

THIS HAS BEEN Rockport's gala week of the season and she has done herself proud. The parade of Thursday was colorful and original, the floats depicting the "pirates," "witches" and the "hatchet gang," being nicely conceived and carried out.

At the Granite Shore: G. W. Sinick, R. G. Randall, Maxwell M. Dexter, Shackford Dexter, Mrs. M. A. Halvossen, G. W. Whiting, R. D. Skinner, Brookline; Margaret M. Powers, Belmont; Horace W. Colby, Arlington; J. S. Chandler, Newton; George C. Goss, Newtonville; H. Nelson Babb, Pauline M. and Ruth C. Babb, Newton Highlands; M. L. Lynch, Beverly; Mr. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Regal, Springfield; Grace Gilde and sister, Randolph; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Sherburne, Plymouth, N. H.; Annie M. Seif, S. Seif, New York City; Mrs. Otto Himler, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Quallish, Cleveland; W. C. Caswell, Claremont; Mrs. A. L. McCabe and family, Troy; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cummings, Columbus, Ohio; S. W. Helm, Los Banos, Cal.

An additional feature at the Granite Shore this summer is dancing for the guests.

At the Manning House: A. J. Souster and family, Arlington; May E. and Elizabeth J. Corney, Belmont; Mr. and Mrs. Gardner A. Norton, Cambridge; Grace Lawton White, Mrs. Hattie E. Davis, Mrs. F. H. White, Providence.

At Sunset Inn, Pigeon Cove: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wernstern, Elsie Wernstern, Mr. David Brown, Mr. J. W. Melonkenney, Mr. and Mrs. Kernlern, Boston; Mrs. J. Cunningham, Jane, Elizabeth and Grace Cunningham, Somerville; Miss Sheridan, Newton; Clara T. Quinn, West Newton; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Clark, Rutland; Miss E. H. Lamb, Miss Mildred Lamb, Hartford, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Stiyher, Newark; Miss B. L. Ruscoe, Miss H. Ruscoe, Miss R. M. Trope, Mr. and Mrs. Sonld, Brooklyn; E. R. Nichols, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Shoproth, Miss Maude Shoproth, Miss B. M. Holm, Chicago; Mrs. G. H. Vulehr, New York City; Mr. and Miss Shannard, Elmira; Madame F. Matich, Belgrad, Injoslvia.

Mrs. R. L. Finney of Pigeon Cove has been entertaining her granddaughter from Washington, Ohio.

Word has been received by Mrs. Frederick Babson of Pigeon Cove of the birth of a grandchild in Canton, China, on July 19. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Snider. Mr. Snider is a teacher of English in the University at Canton, while Mrs. Snider was formerly Miss Babson of Pigeon Cove.

At Turk's Head Inn: Mrs. M. Campbell, Mrs. F. Stanwood, Mrs. R. D. Andrews, Margaret Lander, Boston; Margaret Haley, Cambridge; Dr. and Mrs. Howard Chidley, Winchester; Mrs. George Ebaugh and family, Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Curtis, Frank J. Burke, Mary J. Burke, James W. Burke, Worcester; Elizabeth Moore, Holden; Ava G. Earle, Mrs. C. E. Earle, Fall River; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lander, Mrs. H. S. Knox, New Haven; Evelyn

THE ANNISQUAM REGION

ANNISQUAM WITH its yachtsmen gone seemed quite deserted during the past week. However, the lack of the Saturday racing did not interfere with the masked festivity at the club house, nearly all the colony being present in force.

Miss Luella Brownell of Upton has been the week-end guest of Miss Mary Brown at her grandmother's (Mrs. E. A. Smith) summer home at Wigwam Point. Miss Brown was hostess to twelve little playmates on her eighth birthday Saturday. Needless to say that all greatly enjoyed the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. French and three sons, John, Nathaniel and David, of "Sherwood," Framingham, have taken the James Guiler cottage for the rest of the season.

The Misses Margaret and Sally Driscoll of Jamaica Plain were the guests of Mrs. B. A. Smith during the week.

At the masked ball at the club house this week Mrs. Hart Mitchell in her grandmother's wedding gown was accorded first prize as the most beautiful bride; Miss Alice Ives the funniest as a colored flapper, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Gleason as the most original. They wore old-fashioned costumes of the pre-Civil War period, Mr. Gleason with Burnside whiskers and bell-crowned hat. The ball was under the direction of Mrs. Humphrey Birge, Mrs. Redmond Clark, Mrs. Ralph T. Hale and Mrs. Hugh McK. Jones. The family of Mr. Jones won honorable mention representing dice.

TO THE FRIENDS OF GLOUCESTER'S FIRE FIGHTERS

The committee representing the Gloucester Firemen's Associations, have decided to abandon the holding of its annual field day at Stage Fort Park on Labor Day, 1930.

Also on account of the various money campaigns being held at the present time in our city we have decided not to ask for contributions for our relief fund this summer as has been our custom in past years.

We wish at this time to thank our many friends who have so generously supported our causes in the years past.

Respectfully yours,
CHIEF HOMER R. MARCHANT,
President,
CAPTAIN HENRY HILTON,
Secretary.

ENTERTAINS FOR SON'S FIANCEE

Rev. and Mrs. Arthur B. Kinsolving of Baltimore and their daughter, Miss Anne Seddon Kinsolving, are the guests of Mrs. J. Nicholas Brown and her son, John Nicholas Brown, at Harbour Court, Newport, R. I. The engagement of Miss Kinsolving to Mr. Brown was announced recently. Mrs. Brown gave a dinner for her guests last night, and will give a large reception and tea tomorrow in honor of Miss Kinsolving. The Kinsolvings were for several years members of the Eastern Point summer colony.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

The Truants Return — Explanation Promised—The Shops Beckon—Magnolia Again

Nobody spoke for the space of a full minute. The entire clan had come to the station to greet the returning Marcia and her husband, and there was Larry Edwards helping Marcia off the last step of the car. Jimmie's suspicions must have been correct. Marcia and Larry had stolen a march on the others by skipping off to be married.

"Well," said Chubby, the first to recover speech. "Let's greet the returning bridal couple."

"Wait!" whispered Anne, huskily. "Look!"

The others, needing no second warning, looked. And there, directly behind Marcia and Larry, and apparently with them, was another couple.

The clan gasped in unison. More complications!

Then a little cry from Anne. "Why it's Phil! Phil Hastings! Marcia's fiance!"

"Fiance no longer," laughed Marcia, overhearing as she approached the group from the shore, "husband now."

"Well—well—" began Chubby, but was unheeded. Everybody was talking at once, and nobody was listening to anybody else. Marcia was passed around to be kissed, and all the men seemed to want to shake Phil's hand at once.

"Wait, wait," gasped Marcia, laughingly, "here's Larry, you know, and Judith."

"Judith!" Another surprise for the clan.

"Did you all meet on the train?" asked Peggy, in a moment.

The two couples looked at each other and laughed.

"We've been together all the time," Marcia told them. "We had a double wedding at Judith's. She's Phil's sister, you know."

"Judith?" asked Anne. "She was Judith Hastings?"

Marcia nodded.

"Why—why, I've known her for years!" exclaimed Anne. "We were at school together, and had a year abroad together afterward. And I didn't even recognize her!"

Judith turned, saw Anne, and with a gasp of pleasure, rushed into her outstretched arms.

"It's a small world," offered Chubby, evidently for the want of something better to say. "What do you all say to a drink at Barker's to celebrate this momentous occasion?"

For once everybody agreed with him, and in a few moments the entire group had set off for Barker's, some to sample their famous milk shakes and frappes, others to delight in mellow, creamy fresh peach ice-cream.

"Tell us about it all, won't you?" entreated Joan, when they were comfortable.

"Let's wait till we get back to the shore," suggested Phil. "There'll be more time and more privacy, perhaps."

The others assenting, Marcia cried, "How about a shopping expedition, right now? I haven't been in a shop for perfect ages, and there's so much I need!"

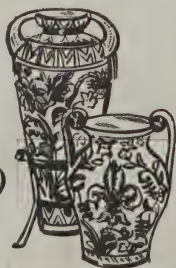

"Going to Bott's to arrange about that European tour?" asked Joan slyly.

Marcia beamed upon her. "Not today," she replied. "We're going over this winter, though, and we'll surely book our passage at Bott's before we leave the shore."

"Just at present," she continued, "it's furniture, and household equipment. Can anybody give me some suggestions?"

"Can we!" came from Chubby immediately. "Let me show you!"

"Chubby'll take you first to Nauss' Lumber Yard," Peggy told her. "Then he'll take you to the Gloucester Lumber Store and point out to you the advantages of buying unpainted furniture, and having it finished according to your own taste. There'll be a half hour's intermission for lunch, tea or refreshments at Towle's, and then a thorough and complete inspection of the Cottage Service establishment. After that he'll invite you to see a picture with him at the North Shore, followed by more refreshments—a soda at Wetherell's. Then—"

"You're wrong, my dear," denied Chubby amiably. "I should take her first of all to Swinson Brothers' and make arrangements for a tennis court like mine. Never saw one like it—why, that court of mine—"

"Stop him, some one," cried Gay. "We haven't all afternoon to listen to praises of Swinson Brothers, no matter how much they deserve them."

"What I was about to suggest," remarked Jimmie, "is that we take these young people to Patillo's first, and let them select some comfortable furniture to live with for the rest of the summer. Then it might be a good idea to order something in the line of food and provisions—"

"Groceries from the First National Store," approved Peggy.

"A pantryful of Gorton-Pew products," added Gay.

"And a half hour or so spent in ordering at Shepherd's delightful, cool market," exulted Chubby.

"You'll all have to help us," laughed Marcia. "I tell you what we'll do. Judith and I will detail each one of you to a particular errand, and we'll do a bit of shopping for ourselves."

"First of all," said Judith, in her low, musical voice, "I want to ask you all to dinner with Larry and me tonight."

"And we'll tell you the whole story then," added Larry, eagerly.

They all accepted, of course, delighted at so early an opportunity to get better acquainted with this new wife of Larry's who had impressed them all so favorably.

"Order gallons of Chanticleer Ice-Cream," Larry whispered to Anne. "I want Judith to be surprised with the splendid quality and delicious smoothness of the best ice-cream on Cape Ann."

"By the way," asked Judith, "can't I get some chocolates around here somewhere? It seems to me Marcia's been saying quite a bit about a particular kind of chocolate—"

"Mary Ellen Golden's, you mean," put in Marcia quickly. "We'll go there first, shall we?"

"Are you boys coming?" Judith asked Larry and Phil.

Larry shook his head negatively. "I'm going to the bank," he remarked. "This shopping expedition sounds formidable to me, and I think I'd better tell the Gloucester National Bank something about it."

"Oh, it won't be as bad as that," laughed Marcia. "But if you're determined not to come, just run into the office of the Cape Pond Ice Company, and have them send out some ice this afternoon, will you?"

"I'm going to Earl Phillips' Smart Shop for Men," offered Phil. "Chubby here's been telling me about some Irish poplin shirts he bought there. Burton's, didn't you say, Chubby?"

Chubby nodded. "To say nothing of good-looking neckwear and hosiery," he amended.

"I must have a radio," announced Judith, as she and Marcia were leaving. "You haven't one at the cottage, have you, Larry?"

Larry indicated that he hadn't but that he knew where to buy one.

"W. G. Brown's," he informed her, "have the best radios in town. You have your choice of four different kinds: Radiola, Atwater Kent, Majestic and Victor. They're in a variety of styles, too. Cabinet, low boy, highboy, or separate stand. And the Victor combination radio and phonograph has an arrangement whereby it's possible to make records of your own."

"I'd like one of those," said Chubby, longingly.

"I imagine you would," returned Peggy, somewhat sarcastically the fat boy thought, and wondered why.

The group separated, some going in the direction of the North Shore Furniture Store, where they had some particularly good looking reed furniture, Larry and Phil going toward Steele and Abbott's to make arrangements for the redecoration of Larry's cottage. Joan started off toward West Gloucester and the Fernwood Garage where she had left her roadster a week ago, Peggy and Anne went via Trowbridge's to Blanchard's where they had heard that unusual codfish skin novelties were to be had, and Marcia and Judith went in search of raiment.

"Oh, Judith, look!" exclaimed Marcia, coming to a full stop in front of L. E. Andrews' window. The window was full of all sorts and kinds of toys to please the heart of a little child. Wooden toys and metal toys, big toys and little toys, all were there together, with more just inside the door. There were real honest-to-goodness garages with motor cars inside, complete kitchen equipment, including cooking utensils and cabinet, for the little housewife, dolls, baby carriages, croquet sets for out-of-doors, miniature garden seats for the children's garden, and boats, sand pails and shovels for the seashore.

After admiring for several minutes, the girls passed on reluctantly to further business. Their immediate destination was Armstrong's where Peggy had told them fall styles were on display. So satisfied, so genuinely delighted had they been during the summer months with Armstrong's Deauville Sandals, that they were sure these new fall models would be nothing short of perfect.

"Yes," Judith was saying, as they walked on, "Larry's decided to have a Bulldog Pipeless Furnace put in for protection against these chilly mornings and evenings at the shore. Then too, we want to stay late into the fall and enjoy the glorious months of September and October here. It seems a pity, doesn't it, that people rush away just at the loveliest time of year?"

Marcia couldn't help but agree, although, she told Judith, there's always so much to do in the early fall.

"I'm going to buy a Maytag," she confided a moment later. "Phil's going to order it for me at L. E. Smith's this morning. Washing machines make such a difference in getting help!"

"Isn't the National House Furnishings Company our next stop?" asked Judith. "Larry's been raving about their lovely porch furniture. I must see it, really."

"It's splendid," was Marcia's reply. "I know by experience—at Peggy's."

An hour later, with all missions accomplished, the clan met at Trowbridge's to extend their shopping expedition as far as Magnolia. En route, Marcia insisted that they take a short time to visit the old Webber and Sawyer houses on Western avenue.

These houses, Marcia explained to Judith and Phil, were part of Poole's antique establishment, and contained all sorts of rare and beautiful old pieces. Some were English, some French, some early American, and everything beautifully old.

Finally quitting the old Sawyer homestead, they embarked again for Lexington avenue and the shops. Arriving there, nothing would do but that Marcia and Judith must go directly to Manahan's.

There they found coats. The most beautiful winter coats thus far created by Dame Fashion. One especially, a Vionet model, trimmed with Russian cross fox, delighted Marcia, while Gay simply went into ecstasies over a suit, consisting of heavy jersey dress, and short jacket of brown ermine dyed squirrel.

Then there was another stunning model, of pineapple dyed ermine, just the thing for evening.

Tappe hats caught Judith's eye, as well as a cunning green model with ostrich by Henry Bendel. And in the line

EASTERN POINT, AUGUST 6

What little air there was stirring in the harbor Wednesday afternoon, August 6, came from all points of the compass and Maryland, sailed by Miss Kate Boyce, won the race in the Cape Cod Knockabout class of the Eastern Point Yacht Club, getting a slant when the boats rounded the break-water spar buoy for the last leg and sliding to a minute victory over Wiki Wiki.

Fontana had the start but Wiki Wiki slipped into the weather berth and followed close to the Eastern Point shore, carrying a nice breeze all the way out to the spar buoy, having a three-minute lead at the turn. The next leg took the fleet to the Prairie Ledge buoy with varying conditions of sailing, Bemo and Old Ironsides crawling closer. Rounding Prairie Ledge, wind came from the southward, making a beat out to the spar buoy. Wiki Wiki took the middle of the harbor while Old Ironsides and Maryland, which had come in to third place, followed the western shore.

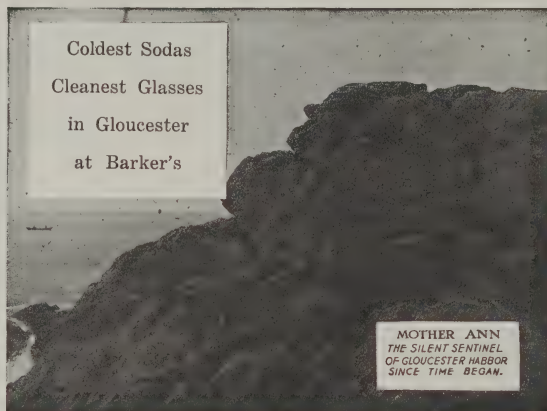

Old Ironsides turned into the home stretch just ahead of Wiki Wiki but struck a soft spot and Maryland came up from third to first and fanned along to win.

Bay challenge cup from the Annisquam Yacht Club.

Gypsy, the Paine-designed 1929 champion Marblehead 20-rater, sailing in the role of challenger from the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club, won the third and deciding race from a fleet of eight R boats and took the famous silver mug back to its old home in Long Island Sound after a five-year leave of absence in local racing ports.

The Manchester Cup was brought to Marblehead in 1925 when Charley Welch's Yankee successfully invaded Long Island Sound. The following year the trophy passed into the prize locker of the Boston Yacht Club through the win of the Ellen. The cup was captured last year from the Nahant Dory Club by the one-point victory of the Annisquam challenger Live Yankee from the Gypsy, then sailing for the Nahant club.

Wednesday was a duplication of the two previous races with the trio of Long Island Sound boats taking the first three places. The Gypsy, with two firsts and a second, nosed out the Cotton Blossom from the Stamford Yacht Club by a single point and the Larchmont entry Robin by two.

EASTERN POINT, AUGUST 9

While the big boats were at Marblehead last Saturday afternoon the Cape Cod Knockabout fleet of the Eastern Point Yacht Club had the field all to itself, sailing a race inside the bay over a triangular course.

A light southerly breeze prevailed. The race resolved itself from the start into a tussle for first place between Sallie Pillsbury in the Lucky Duck and Jock Raymond in the Old Ironsides. The Lucky Duck lived up to her name, getting across the line just two seconds to the good. The summary:

THE IMMIGRATION LAW!

Much commendation is accorded the Municipal Council and City Marshal on all sides for its vigorous and satisfactory solution of the traffic congestion problem, especially in Main street. The same for the marked improvement in abating the un-muffled motor boat exhaust nuisance in the early morning hours.

The majority of power boats that pass and repass into the Blynman canal have masts about the size of broomsticks. If, as in other places so circumstanced, these were compelled to have poles that could be lowered at will, or, if not, that passage into the canal should be only at certain specified hours, much of the raising of the bridge and consequent halting of traffic to and from the only entrance of the city could be avoided. It can be managed.

TRAFFIC ORDINANCE

CITY OF GLOUCESTER

In the year nineteen hundred and thirty.
An ordinance regulating parking.

SUMMER TRAFFIC RULES

During the months of May, June, July, August and September, the following traffic regulations shall be effective:

No parking at any time on the westerly side of Bass avenue extending from the corner near the trestle, so-called, to Beach road, and on the westerly side of Nautilus road between Beach road and the southerly end of the bath house.

Washington street at Plum Cove Beach—Cars parked parallel with the roadway on the beach side, and limited to two and one-half hours on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays between June 15 and September 15.

Bass avenue and Nautilus road—Parking limited to two and one-half hours on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays during June 15 to September 15.

Bass avenue—Cars may be parked on the right side only, from the car barn to 100 yards west of Thacher road. Cars to be parked parallel to the road.

Bass avenue from Thacher road to Nautilus road, one way parking on right side only.

Nautilus road one way and from June 15 to September 15 in the area between the two bridges, cars shall be parked parallel to the road and on the remainder of the road to a point slightly beyond the bath house, cars shall be parked at right angles to the road. No cars shall be parked later than 10 P. M. in the evening.

Atlantic road—Two way; no parking on either side between Nautilus road and Farrington avenue on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays.

Brier Neck-Witham street—Parking permitted on the westerly side from Thacher road to a point 50 feet north of the northerly boundary of Salt Island road at the junction of Salt Island road and Witham street. Parking limited to two and one-half hours on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays.

Salt Island road—No parking shall be permitted on either side except from the northerly side from the ledge to a point 25 feet from the corner of Witham street; and no parking allowed on the easterly side of Witham street except at or near the service entrance of Little Good Harbor Beach Inn for a distance of 25 feet to be particularly designated by traffic markings.

ALLEN F. GRANT, City Clerk

In Municipal Council, June 6, 1930.

Passed to be ordained.

of dresses, Marcia was perfectly delighted with a black flat crepe trimmed with embroidered white medallions.

At Briggs', where next they came to rest, they found Black Knight china, something with which they were not particularly familiar. There were parts of a complete dinner service on display, with the soft ivory body of the plates forming a perfect background for the delicate green floral decorations. Around the edge ran a beautiful scroll design broken here and there by a cluster of flowers. The salad plates, square in shape, appealed to Judith, while a new melon plate for oyster cocktail quite delighted Anne.

Next, at the Grande Maison de Blanc, they were intrigued by luncheon sets once more. They were of linen with lace edging, of linen with lace inserts, all of lace, binche, Point de Venice and a lovely, delicate filet, and of linen with lace and exquisite embroidery.

Then there were tea cloths, some colored, some plain with appliqued flowers and geometrical designs in color. In blue, green, rose, pink, yellow and orchid, this particular group was a delight to behold.

They went to Ovington's next, and found such a crowd there that it was impossible to see as much as they would have liked. However, they caught a glimpse of a perfectly stunning crystal centerpiece for a table with crystal candlesticks to match, which Chubby thought very lovely indeed. And the silver table, with little covered vegetable dishes, individual in size, and larger vegetable dishes with separate portions for different vegetables, which promised to facilitate service so much, was an object of admiration for the entire group.

Back at the shore that evening they were discussing the lovely things in the Magnolia shops.

"But enough of Magnolia!" exclaimed

Chubby, suddenly. "Aren't we going to hear about this double wedding?"

The annual Invitation Tennis Tournament of the Oceanside Hotel, Magnolia, is scheduled to open on Saturday, August sixteenth. Many of the North Shore tennis players, young and old, are expected to compete. Among the outstanding performers will be John Richardson of Staten Island, N. Y., who will defend the title which he won last year. In the doubles, he, paired with his father, presents a formidable combination. Dr. W. R. P. Emerson, an old-timer on the Oceanside courts, is also expected to be seen in action. The ladies' singles will be featured by the play of Miss Louise Packer, prominent North Shore tournament player from Rockport. She, too, is a previous winner of the event. Play will continue through the following week and end with the final matches being played on the week-end of the twenty-third.

Del Monte's continues to be a center of activity for social life on the North Shore. Among those entertaining at the Casino during the past week have been Mrs. H. H. Whitman of Beverly, with a party of twelve; Mr. Russell Burrage of Manchester, with a party of eight; Mr. George E. Schanck of Magnolia, with a party of sixteen; Mr. Eugene Perry of Magnolia, party of ten; Mr. Grey Foster of Magnolia, party of twelve; Mr. E. ## SANDY BAY YACHT CLUB

At a meeting of about 100 interested men and women at the Rockport Board of Trade rooms Monday, Sandy Bay Yacht Club was organized. Plans for inaugurating two or more classes of smaller boats were made. Officers were elected and plans discussed for a club house and landing places on the south end of T Wharf.

The officers chosen are: Marian J. Cooney, commodore; George A. Lowe, vice-commodore; Joseph Higgins, secretary - treasurer; Lindley E. Dean, Hosea C. Tufts, Charles Liffler, Jr., Leighton H. York, Chester N. Story, board of governors; Gifford Beal, Leighton H. York, Benton C. Story, Clifford Elwell, George A. Lowe, John Pierce, Frank McEarchern, membership committee.

Temporary plans for a club house were submitted calling for a building 26 by 36, with assembly room, locker room and other accommodations. The matter was referred to the board of governors with power to appoint a committee for proceeding as deemed best.

Commodore Cooney reported that a committee appointed at a previous meeting had purchased three pilot class yachts as a starter. Members advocated two or more classes of the smaller type.

CAPE ANN THEATRE CO.— LAND'S END

For our seventh week beginning August 19th, I have prepared an amusing whimsical farce, "The Chalk Mark," by Algernon Tassin, who comes from New York to play one of the characters in his piece.

Mr. Tassin, Harvard '92, is a professor of English at Columbia University and an author of many books and plays. He was an actor for many years and played with Julia Marlowe, Arnold Daly, Maxine Elliott, Mary Shaw and other stars. He is taking a midnight jump, as it were, from his desk in the Summer School of Columbia to the footlights of the Cape Ann Theatre.

This very jolly farce gives an opportunity for all the members of the Cape Ann Company. It will surprise and charm you to see Miss Helen Claire in the role of a quaint little maid-servant fresh from an orphan asylum. Winston Hibler plays opposite her, a servant also from an orphanage. Lark Taylor appears as an investigator of spiritistic phenomena and Grace Dothea Fisher as a fluttering lady deeply interested in his researches. Ellen Larned and Marjorie Moffett, Robert Hamilton and Robert Bunce Williams all have amusing characters to play, and Mr. Tassin plays the choleric Theophilus Gunter, just arrived from the Philippines.

You will have a good laugh over this three-act farce, for its situations are extremely amusing, its dialogue witty, and the humor spontaneously gay.

On August 26, the Cape Ann Theatre Company will appear in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." The week of the "Twelfth Night" will close the season for 1930.

THE LITTLE THEATRE

and shining gold. The school-room scene in the first act, in blue and silver, was also worthy of note. Honors for this part of the evening's success go to Martin Fallon and C. N. Houghton, assisted by a capable stage crew, under whose direction the scenery was designed and built.

This week the Little Theatre will present three one-act plays, "Nursery Maid of Heaven," by T. W. Stevens, "Hall-Marked" and "The Sun," by Galsworthy.

NORTH SHORE ARTS ASSOCIATION

A third most enjoyable concert is promised to the public by the North Shore Arts Association on Saturday, August 16. This concert, the third in the series being presented by the Association this summer, will feature the Boston Sinfonietta, and will be its first appearance hereabouts. The Sinfonietta, which is a miniature symphony orchestra, is composed of sixteen members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and is being presented under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pops Concerts. Mr. Fiedler's work is well known to North Shore residents. Mr. Fiedler is assisted by Jesus Maria Sanroma, official pianist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

STILLINGTON HALL

Beginning on August 25 and extending through August 30, Mr. Leslie Buswell will present Fred Wright's new play, "X Versus X" at Stillington Play House.

The cast for this play, which is an English comedy in three acts, and which is being presented for the first time by Mr. Buswell, includes many who are old favorites with Stillington Hall enthusiasts.

Miss Margaret Barker and Mr. John Griggs, who did such excellent work in "The Stars in His Heaven," will play again in this new comedy. Elena Miramova and Doris Rich, both of whom will be remembered from last season's productions, have parts in "X Versus X," as do Mr. E. Fleming Watkins and Marsh Irvin. Mr. Buswell himself will also appear.

In view of the remarkable success attained by the Stillington players already this season, a splendid and masterly performance is anticipated.

CAPE ANN THEATRE

This week Miss Grace Dothea Fisher is presenting at the Cape Ann Theatre, Turk's Head Inn, a comic opera, "The Padlock," written by Charles Dibdin in 1768 for the Convent Garden Theatre, London. It is beautifully done by this company of professionals.

Owing to the illness of Miss Dorothy George, production was deferred for a week, opening last Tuesday night with Miss Marjorie Wilson as prima donna.

Miss Ellen Larned as Old Ursula, the duenna, lent an element of humor to the opera as an amusing watchful servant. Mungo, the colored servant, which part is the forerunner of all comic negro servants in the theatre today, was effectively done by Robert Bunce Williams. This character was played by Dibdin himself.

Robert Hamilton gave a splendid performance as Leander, the lover, and Lark Taylor made an excellent Don Diego.

In this novel production the Cape Ann players strike a new note in theatrical productions on the North Shore, and with so successful a venture to their credit, it is hoped that more such unusual productions will be forthcoming.

NORTH SHORE THEATRE

Robert Montgomery as the millionaire department store owner, who, almost against his will, falls in love with a model who at first will have nothing to do with him, is well cast in an important role. It is undoubtedly the best role allotted to Montgomery since he deserted Broadway for Hollywood.

Two other especially interesting performances are contributed by Anita Page and Dorothy Sebastian, both of whom played with Joan Crawford in "Our Dancing Daughters." As two hard-working, good looking girls who are tired of their humdrum lives and yearn for luxury and ease, Miss Page and Miss Sebastian are all that could be desired. Others in the cast who do good work are Raymond Hackett, John Miljan, Hedda Hopper, Albert Conti and Gwen Lee.

"Our Blushing Brides" was directed by Harry Beaumont, who also directed Miss Crawford in "Our Dancing Daughters."

Will Rogers' second starring picture, "So This is London," a rollicking comedy successor to his first hit, "They Had to See Paris," will be shown at the North Shore Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In transferring his activities from the gay boulevards of Paris to the formal surroundings of an English country estate, Rogers proves even more amusing than ever. His droll humor and sly comedy antics, coupled with situations that in themselves are hilariously funny, combine to make "So This is London" one of the most delightful and carefree pictures of the season.

Cast as a wealthy English-hating American who takes his wife and son with him to England on a business trip and then spends most of his time in a futile attempt to break up his son's love affair with a beautiful English debutante, Rogers creates one of the funniest roles of his stage or screen career. But when Rogers suddenly realizes that he is making a mess of his son's life, he does a complete about-face and does all in his power to "fix" things. And it goes without saying that Rogers' idea of "fixing" things, brings to the audible screen one riotous scene after the other.

As the Hiram Draper who goes to England on business and remains to champion the love affair of his headstrong son, Will Rogers is Will Rogers. From beginning to end he does and says all those things audiences like so well even better than he has ever done them before. Irene Rich, who played his wife in "They Had to See Paris," again plays the role of his patient better half, and Frank Albertson is cast as the son. Maureen O'Sullivan, that charming newcomer to the screen, who recently made her debut with John McCormack in "Song O' My Heart," is also prominently cast as the young English girl who is responsible for all the difficulty.

"So This is London," which John Blystone directed, is the all-talking screen version of the well known George M. Cohan stage success of the same name.

On the same bill will be shown Bebe Daniels in "Lawful Larceny," an R. K. O. feature directed by Lowell Sherman.

ROCKPORT ART ASS'N CONCERT

On Sunday, August 17, 1930, at 3.30 the Rockport Art Association presents Boris Kreinin, Violinist; Marguerite Porter, Soprano, of Boston, and Mr. Nicolas Slonimsky, pianist, conductor and composer.

The program will be of the contemporaries of the masters, such as Locatelli, Massenet, Marat, Bachalet, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Prokofiev, Moussorgski, Strauss, and Mlynarski.

Mr. B. Kreinin is first violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. After graduating from High School he became a student of the violin at the Petrograd Conservatory, under the renowned Leopold Auer, winning first prize as a violinist. The following year he completed his studies in the various musical centers of Europe. Mr. Kreinin was engaged as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra, at Helsingfors, Finland, also in Dresden, and was soloist with the Royal Opera Theatre in Moscow.

When Serge Koussevitzky organized the famous Symphony Orchestra in Moscow, he engaged Mr. Kreinin as soloist and concert meister, a position which he held until the beginning of the World War. He then became soloist and assistant conductor in the Opera Theatre of Musical Drama at Petrorgrad and accepted a professorship at the People's Conservatory. Among his treasured possessions is a letter from Serge Koussevitsky bearing testimony to the unusual artistry and musicianship of his former co-worker.

Miss Marguerite Porter, Soprano, with her charming personality and beautiful voice has won the praise of the Boston music critics.

Nicolas Slonimsky, Pianist, was born in St. Petersburg. He began to study piano at the age of six. He studied composition with Kalafati and Steinberg, at the St. Petersburg Conservatory. He left Russia in 1920 and traveled in various countries in Europe up to November, 1923, when, at the invitation of Vladimir Rosing, Director of the American Opera, he joined the faculty of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y.

Since 1927 he has been conductor of the Pierian Sodality of Harvard University (founded in 1808). He also conducts the Chamber Orchestra of Boston, presenting novel programs of modern and ancient music.

IN OLD COLONY DAYS

Widespread interest is being manifested in plans for the Tercentenary celebration being held on August 13, 14, 15 and 16 under the auspices of the Independent Christian Church (Universalist) in Gloucester.

Events in the program include an exhibition of colonial art and handicraft each afternoon and evening, with a tea hour at four o'clock. Many rare and beautiful family heirlooms from Gloucester homes are included in the exhibition, while at tea hour, charming Puritan maidens are dispensing hospitality.

Four special entertainments of Colonial character are a "Pageant of Shawls," a play by Edith Tewksbury depicting the international romance of the shawl, given in the vestry on Wednesday evening; a concert of old songs and hymns by a Puritan choir in the church auditorium on Thursday evening; "The Old Peabody Pew," written and dramatized by Kate Douglas Wiggin, in the auditorium on Friday evening; and on Saturday afternoon a Children's Program, featuring episodes of Old Colony Days, in the vestry.

Mrs. George D. Winchester is the general chairman of the celebration, assisted by an efficient committee including Mrs. George E. Hodsdon, Costumes and Exhibition; Mrs. P. G. Corliss, Rugs; Mrs. William T. Shute, Shawls; Mrs. Charles Bergengren, Quilts; Mrs. George Tarr, Miscellaneous; Judith Murray Guild, Dolls and Toys; Miss Marguerite Haskell, Flowers; Mr. Daniel Babson, Old Money; Miss Annie Marr, Old Books and Papers; Mrs. Lee M. Cox, Old Spectacles.

The tea hour soloists are Miss Eleanor Fenelon Moore, Mrs. Agnes Price Herrick, Mrs. Luther French, and Miss Avis Elwell.

The Shawl Pageant is in the capable hands of Mrs. William T. Shute, Robert Churchill is in charge of the Puritan Choir, while Mrs. Fletcher Burnham is the able director of the "Old Peabody Pew" and the Children's Program. Mr. Lester R. Crowe is assisting these chairmen.

THE DRIVE—A STATEMENT

(Note—The following was written, in part, for insertion in the first issue but for a certain reason publication was deferred.)

During the 36 years of existence The Shore has given freely of its space to any appeal to the public. The Great War evolved "the Drive," an extraordinary measure for an extraordinary crisis. After the war a number of enterprises utilized this machinery for its purposes. More than any other section that we know it has been used in this city. Under direction of professional directors, groups of local men, trained intensively, have made personal solicitation.

Numerous complaints have come from the summer element regarding the manner in which this machinery has been used and The Shore has editorially in the past advised caution in this respect.

This year these complaints have been more pronounced. This is their argument: "We come here, pay our taxes, including full water rates for four or five months in the summer. We derive but slight direct benefit from many municipal enterprises. We admit that some of the objects for which these drives are made are meritorious but contend that they are purely of local concern. If this city was not so contacted with the summer resident element as it is they would have to cut their coat from their own cloth. Besides we have our own charities in our home towns to consider," etc.

Rockport, Manchester, Marblehead and other summer resort sections do not find it necessary to resort to this expedient. So The Shore has decided not to open its columns to appeals directed by professional organizers or where door to door solicition or follow up methods are employed. Other mediums must be sought.

This of course does not apply to community celebrations or to appeals the response to which is personally unsolicited and wholly voluntary. The Shore has no desire to harm any one or any institution, especially financially. If there are those who care to respond to the appeals to which objection is made other modes of contact will undoubtedly be found.

That this position is endorsed by many of our citizens is evident from the open letter from Chief Homer R. Marchant and Captain Henry Hilton, President and Secretary of the Gloucester Fireman's Association, published last week in our columns stating that the organization on account of the multiplicity of these appeals had decided to forego its use.

Marks the End of World War Inflation —Prices Returning to Normal—Encouraging Outlook for Summer Interest

The season of 1930 is fast drawing to a close. Financially, it has not equalled its predecessors of the past ten years. This state of things was bound to come. July opened poorly especially as regards cottage leaseings. Estate men reported that the call for moderate priced places had dropped off sharply, but that the demand for the higher priced leaseings was comparatively unaffected. Hence the conclusion is that the depression has hurt most in the upper middle class sector of the populace. They have had to curtail.

Hotel reservations were decidedly off in July except in a minority of instances. However, in August the hotel situation whether from the hot wave that scourged the country or from other causes, changed decidedly for the better and an approximate average registration was recorded in the majority of cases.

One thing is apparent. The war is over and economically and financially the country is returning by gradual stages to price bases as before the war. Today the dollar is as good as $1.25 six months ago.

We were told a few months ago that there was no longer to be any panics or setbacks or hard times and that the country was embarked with a through ticket on a financial joyride that was to go on world without end amen. Newspapers of standing printed such predictions.

A few weeks after came disillusion, the deluge and the stock market debacle. The new generation in Wall street learned that economic and financial laws are immutable and that what goes up must come down and down they came with a bang.

What concerns us is the outlook, say for the next ten years. It is to be a sobering down period. As a nation we are in the morning after stage.

History repeats itself. The first ten years after the Civil War was inflation, high prices, swollen and quickly acquired fortunes. Then came the panic—Black Friday of '73, followed by the panics of '76, the late '80's, the early nineties, and the depression of 1914. Then the Great War and we holding the bag while the nations of the old world fought each other to the death.

The Cape Ann summer element is a strongly entrenched class. A few million paper profits may have been lopped off some of their accounts but there are other millions in reserve. They are comparatively unaffected. Most of them own their own. This is their home in

BLUENOSE VS. THEBAUD

Will There Be An International Fisherman's Race — All Up to Captain Angus

Will there be an International Fisherman's Race off this port this fall?

The prospects look bright and then again not so good.

The whole thing depends on the owner of the Bluenose, Captain Angus Walters. His craft went ashore at Placentia Bay, N. F., about two months ago but was floated and resumed her voyage and has now been two months at sea.

Last week the American section of the International Fisherman's Race committee received notice from the Nova Scotia representatives to come to Yarmouth, N. S., for the purpose of talking over arrangements. The enthusiasm of those eager to see such a classic ran high. An hour before the Gloucester group were to entrain for their destination they received word from Halifax to remain at home as Captain Walters desired to obtain more first-hand knowledge of the extent of the injuries to his craft.

So there the matter stands with the doughty Lunenburg skipper the X in the proposition.

It is questioned whether the Bluenose

A LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE

BY EPES SARGENT

NOTE—Dividing literary honors with his sister, Judith, wife of Rev. John Murray, Epes Sargent, born in Gloucester in 1813, died in Roxbury in 1880, is best known by his stirring poem, "A Life on the Ocean Wave," which ranks with the sea-songs of Dibdin, Weatherly and other composers and writers, attaining widespread popularity at first. During the past 40 years or more it lapsed into a semi-obscurity, but its genuine merit and ring of the sea has proved its saving salt and has restored it to high favor as sung to the music of Russell. It is now one of the popular numbers of concert and radio artists. Epes Sargent was editor of the Boston Transcript 1848-53, and was the compiler of a popular series of school readers.

A life on the ocean wave,
A home on the rolling deep,
Where the scattered waters rave
And the winds their revels keep.
Like an eagle caged I pine
On this dull and unchanging shore,
Oh, give me the flashing brine,
The spray and the tempest's roar.

Once more on the deck I stand
Of my own swift gliding craft,
Set sail farewell to the land,
The gale follows fair abaft.
We shoot through the sparkling foam
Like an ocean bird set free,
Like an ocean bird our home
We'll find far out at sea.

The land is no longer in view,
The clouds have begun to frown,
But with a stout vessel and crew
We'll let the storm come down,
And the song of my heart shall be
While the winds and waters rave,
A home on the rolling sea,
A life on the ocean wave.

AT THE NORTH SHORE
THEATRE

At the North Shore Theatre next Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be shown a production that will be bombing the heart of all humanity. It is "The Dawn Patrol," with Richard Barthelmess and we go on record to say that it is the greatest epic of the air that has ever been produced. Wait until you see it! We know you'll go wild over it. When you see it you will say, "No wonder the critics went wild over it with praise. No wonder the Rialto Theatre in New York had to open its show at 9 A.M. until 12 midnight! No wonder all Gloucester is hailing it as the most sensational success ever seen! It is the unforgettable story of the boys who took the air line to heaven with the odds a million to one; a smile on their faces and a prayer that they might come back to the women they loved. Stark, tragic moments that made men of youngsters. For this is the epic of the world's Escadrille on the Western Front flying gloriously into the dawn seldom to return.

Live with these eaglets of the skies! Boy-aces of Flanders days who smile at fate as they ride into the clouds of battle! Leaving

THE LITTLE THEATRE

Three one-act plays were presented at the School of the Little Theatre last Friday and Saturday nights. There are those who enjoy the Little Theatre players most in their one-act plays, because of the opportunity given to study at first hand the versatility of the actors. Certainly there was ample opportunity for this in Saturday night's presentation.

In the first Stevens' play "Nursery Maid of Heaven," May Sarton and Peggy Leland played to perfection the roles of Atalanta and Benvenuta, while the character of the Abbess was excellently portrayed by Patricia Peticolas. The settings for the three scenes in this play were especially effective, the lighting effects unique. Others in the cast were Judith Chase, Russell Bailey, Jane Oakley, Barbara Percival, Inez Simons, Betty Chidley, Fabian Friedman, Peter Hyman and Margaret Peticolas.

Galworthy's "Sun," the second and probably the most interesting play, was done in splendid style by the three actors, Felice Leeds, John Mann and Charles Edgecomb. The audience thrilled to the quick tempo of the play, and was held tense in its enactment. Settings in this play were also most effective.

THE FOUNDING OF A CHURCH

By LAURA S. HERSEY

Four miles north of Gloucester, about half way to Rockport on the "back of the Cape," is the little village of Annisquam. A flourishing, prosperous hamlet in days gone by, the little community still retains evidences of past accomplishment. Standing on the bridge which leads from the highway into the heart of the village, one remarks the row of quays along the wadred years ago now, the inhabitants of "Annis Squam and the Northerle part of the Cape" were called, "in his maiestyes name" to meet together at the new meeting house in Annisquam to "make choyce of Presenct officers for the year ensuing."

The object of the meeting was fourfold: First, to choose a precinct clark (or clerk); second, to choose assessors vorable site at the head of the cove, overlooking the river and Annisquam Village. It is understood that there was some dissension in the choice of a location, since that part of the village which clusters about the head of the bridge and the Old Tavern was the more thickly populated.

However, the first structure was built where the present church now ter's edge. Fishermen once set out from these same wharves to adventure on the broad Atlantic; lobstermen plied their trade in the shallow waters of the cove, and the village women wove and spun for their hardy men-folk.

Old Third Parish Meeting House (Now Universalist) and Lane Homestead at Head of Lobster Cove, Annisquam

On a rise at the head of the cove stands the Village Church, on the very spot where the early inhabitants of Annisquam built their first church edifice more than two hundred years ago. The church played an important part in the lives of the men and women of the eighteenth century, and the little church at the head of Lobster Cove had its own particular share of influence. The records of the church from the first meeting of the parish remain intact, and it is from them that the following article has been prepared.

On June 22, 1728, more than two hunto make the minister's rate (or salary) for the presante year; third, to choose a Collector to gather the same; and fourth, to take care for calling further meetings.

The meeting, according to the records, was duly held and the officers chosen; men of serious mien and behavior, all of them. Ancestors of present day Annisquam people.

To the inhabitants of the thriving little village, the new church was the fulfilment of a long-cherished want. The First Parish Church in Gloucester was a long way off, involving a long, roundabout journey through Dogtown, while the Second Parish, West Gloucester was out of the question entirely.

And so these men of Lobster Cove and Planter's Neck, fishermen and farmers, appointed eight of their number to erect a meeting house on a fa-stands in the most propitious location in Annisquam. What an inspiration it must have been to those old sailors and fishermen as they worked aboard ship or on their wharves, to follow the building of their church! Day by day, as the lobstermen set their pots or drew them in, they must have watched the construction of the new edifice with the satisfaction that can come only from a sense of accomplishment. One can almost see the eagerness and feel the enthusiasm with which they labored, after the day's work was done, to bring the building to rapid completion.

Finally it was finished, officers elected, and the pews sold under the direction of the eight builders. Not only were these men given the privilege of disposing of all existing pews, they were also voted the disposal of all pews that should thereafter be built in the galleries of the meeting house, "to the full satisfaction of them as for the said money they have all ready disbursed for building sd meeting house."

Equipment intact and officials installed, there remained only two matters of importance to be considered. The choice of janitor and minister. The curator of physical properties was more or less easily procured, but a custodian of souls was a more difficult problem. At length, however, the parish settled on one Benjamin Bradstreet to be "an ordained menester in this presenc't." Mr. Bradstreet was accordingly approached and agreement was made to the effect that his salary should be "one hundred and thirty-five pounds stated salary per annuel or yearly and the contributions of strangers."

And so the Reverend Mr. Bradstreet was settled among the inhabitants of Annesquam and the northerle part of the Cape at a salary of approximately $675 (plus the contributions of strangers) to be paid to him quarterly so long as he should live and perform the office of gospel minister among them.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Bradstreet did remain in Annisquam until his death, about 30 years later, ministering to the various and diversified wants of his flock, presiding over his church services, and doing his best to maintain peace and good-will in his parish.

Four years after his installation, ten pounds were added to Mr. Bradstreet's salary, and steps were taken to secure land for a Parsonage. A lot of land at the head of "Gallopes Foley Cove" (presumably Folly Cove in Lanesville) had been deeded to the Annes Quam Parish by the "olde parish," but owing to the great distance between the village and the land, a committee was appointed and empowered to "sell it to any man that appears to by and to warante the same" provided there could be "more Lande Bought Lying more convenient for a parsonage or youse of the menestry."

Evidently land was available which lay more convenient for a parsonage, for it is recorded that a week later a meeting was called "to consider among other things some way or method to fence in ye parsonage land."

In its early days, the church seems to have dealt with things secular as well as things spiritual. We find in the records, the notation of a special meeting called to "chuse agentes If you See cause to treete with the towne about theiar defect in not sending the Schoole master to Squam on this Lone neck according to towne vote and in case they don't agree aboute the schoole master, for to parsecute the towne of Gloucester in the law from conte to conte untill the case be fully ended in gloster."

That the people of Annisquam Village were of hospitable nature and desirous of assisting in the spiritual welfare of neighbors is manifested in a vote taken by the parish to the effect that "some offers or proposals" be made "to sundrie of ye inhabitants living near to Sandy Bay and to sundrie of ye inhabitants living between ye dividing line of this parish and the first parish in Glo'r" and "to Pass any vote with respect to them as you shall then think fit and proper."

The generous spirit of the villagers went even further as time went on. We find them, a little later, making provisions that should the inhabitants of Sandy Bay accept these certain offers and proposals, they should, "as soon as can be to procure make and always to maintain in proportion with such inhabitants as shall join with us according to their and our number of people ye most convenient way, for them to pass through ye woods leading to Annis Squam meeting house."

Owing to the depression in money value, it was found early in 1737, that Mr. Bradstreet's salary was no longer sufficient for his needs. Accordingly, the parish met "to make some reasonable addition to the salary of Mr. Benjamin Bradstreet or to make his salary equal to what it first was when he settled in this parish. Also to make the said Benjamin Bradstreet some reasonable allowance for taking care of ye parsonage fence for two years past and to make provisions for maintaining said fence for ye ensuing year."

And so we leave the Rev. Benjamin Bradstreet entering upon his tenth year as pastor of the flock at Annisquam, conscientiously performing the duties of his office, preaching the gospel in the new church at the head of the Cove, and tending, in his spare moments to the needs of the parsonage fence.

The inhabitants of Annes Squam are happy in their church, satisfied with their pastor, and tolerant of existing conditions. The past decade has been one of achievement and good will, and there has been no indication, no foreshadowing of turbulent times to come in the history of the little church.

THE PRENTICE MEMORIAL

Colonel and Mrs. John Wing Prentice have given $50,000 to the Addison Gilbert Hospital for the purpose of building an annex to be known as the Prentice Wing.

A truly munificent gift in line with the high altruism of the founder of the institution, Addison Gilbert, Esq., whose example has been followed by Rev. J. J. Healey and numerous others who have all given liberally according to their means.

Fortunate the community that has such men, inspired by such generosity and true public spirit.

MR. AND MRS. HAMMOND'S GENEROSITY

Hon. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond are among those who have contributed most generously to the Addison Gilbert Hospital drive, having donated $10,000 for a sun parlor for that institution.

TO MY LADY IN SEARCH OF THE DISTINCTIVE MAGNOLIA

MAGNOLIA

ONE WEEK to Labor Day—and the mild September. Two of the finest weather months in this country are ahead of us. Nothing in this country may be superior to autumn in Essex County, both countryside and seashore. With the wine of life in the air and the year at its full — incomparable for the out of doors.

Prize winners at the regular weekly bridge at the Oceanside last week were Mrs. J. H. Goodspeed, Boston; Mrs. C. I. Hood of Lowell; Edith Hopkins, Mrs. Mary Nimmo Black, Mr. Robert Livingston, New York City; Mrs. Harchie Robinson, Louisville; Mrs. Howard Baltjer, Baltimore; Charlotte Reed, Manchester; Mrs. H. W. Osborne, Cleveland.

At the Oceanside: Henry L. Houghton, Spencer Welton, Mrs. E. M. Sinnott and daughter, Dr. Henry L. Houghton, Boston; Mrs. John H. Hyde, Brookline; Mrs. Charles Whitmore, Hingham; Theodore S. Clark, Mrs. H. W. Bates, Mrs. J. A. Mitchell, Mrs. H. L. Picke, Henry Ross, Elton E. Ogg, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Johnson, Mabel Brandt, Irene Leedon, Ben Dash, Fred C. Williams, New York City; Mrs. C. W. Ford, Bronxville; Mrs. G. E. Dorland, Rochester; Desmond Coyle, New Haven; E. N. Hentz, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rickelson, Jr., Pittsburgh; Mrs. E. T. Gardner, Leslie Gardner, Donald J. Steele, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Levering, Jr., Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. George E. Stevens, Edward L. Byrnes, Chicago; Laura Estelle Nash, Cleveland; Mrs. Melville Wooster, Litchfield; Norma Prasuhn, Columbus; Mrs. J. G. Wurtele, Minneapolis.

At Green Gables: Mr. and Mrs. Wyman K. Flint, Rev. and Mrs. Piper, Boston and Antrim; Miss Edith Haskell, Mrs. Edward L. Haskell, Newton Centre; Julia A. Ruddy, Sally and Mildred Ruddy, Warren; Eva M. Kennedy, Hopkinton; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Conkling, Buffalo; Miss S. E. Stevens, Miss Viola G. Fredy, New York City.

Mrs. N. W. Bashford of New York and Magnolia was hostess at a supper and bridge at the Beach Club on Wednesday evening. About thirty guests were present.

Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe of Brookline and Magnolia entertained at luncheon at the Beach Club recently in honor of her mother, Mrs. R. E. Livingston, a guest at the Oceanside.

Senor Don Raymonde Padilla, Secretary to the Spanish Embassy at Washington, is the guest of the John Hays Hammonds at Lookout Hill.

Thursday, William N. Craig spoke on "Rock Gardens" at the home of Miss Eleanor Jones at Magnolia under the auspices of the Cape Ann Garden Club.

Miss Mildred Caroline Core of Fort City, Penn., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. John Hays Hammond at Lookout Hill.

Miss Elizabeth Hammond arrived Saturday from a six months' stay in Europe, mainly Paris, and is at Lookout Hill for the rest of the season.

Mr. Richard Ford of the State Department at Washington, formerly American Consul at Seville, Spain, is a guest of Hon. John Hays Hammond.

The social season is at its height at Del Monte's. Each evening representatives of the North Shore social set may be seen there dining and dancing. Beautiful gowns make a striking appearance in the softly lighted Casino, and the music is without exception the finest hereabouts.

Entertaining at Del Monte's during the past week have been Mrs. Walter Carl of Bass Rocks with a party of twenty; Mrs. Frank Allen of Magnolia, party of twenty-four; Mrs. John Ripley Bigelow of Magnolia, party of six; Mrs. John Morrill of Manchester, party of eleven; Mrs. J. ## THE FAKERS' BALL

The annual Fakers' ball of the Gloucester Society of Artists, held at the Hawthorne Inn Casino, at East Gloucester, Thursday evening, was a big success. It was a costume ball, with all the colorful characters usually represented at affairs of this kind, including Emperors, Queens, toreadors, Carmens, cossacks of the Don and what not.

A feature was the appearance of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Goodale of Ipswich, with their two huskies, Moody and Hughee, who were among the canine heroes of the Byrd expedition. They led the grand march, deported themselves with dignity and were given much applause.

In honor of their appearance it was Polar Night and Pres. Oscar Anderson, Vice-Pres. Charles A. Winter and others on whom fell the burden of the decorations did something original. The polar motif was used. In the rear of the hall was a huge painting of a square-rigged polar exploration ship. It was up against impassable ice fields. The frieze about the walls showed penguins, polar bears, Arctic whales and other denizens of the land of eternal ice.

More or less formality attends these affairs. At 8.45 came the grand march, headed by the Goodales and the dogs, the judges, Pres. and Mrs. Oscar Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Winter, and the whole motley group of about 250 couples. On the whole, it was voted one of the most artistic affairs that the society has staged.

The prizes were awarded as follows:

First, Most Original Man's and Woman's—Miss Mabel Vickery, Baltimore, and William Tilton, "two Byrds."

Second—Mrs. William M. Storrs, New York, lady of the mid-Victorian period, and Jack Royce, Bass Rocks, Russian hussar.

Honorable Mention—Mrs. Charles M. Butler, Hawaiian; Carl H. Nordstrom, Turk; Edward E. Goodale, "Byrd dog"; Miss Fifi Har-mar, young lady of the '60s; Miss Violet James, rabbit; Muriel Whiteley, Peter Pan, and Patricia Turchon, "Tinkle Bell."

Among the costumes noted were those of:

Miss Anne F. Rogers of Gloucester, lady of the Elizabethan period.

Virginia Gruppe of New York, Egyptian belle.

Mrs. William J. Little of Boston, period costume.

Miss Mary Danher of Little Rock, Ark., "A long time ago."

Mrs. W. Wyend of New York, Spanish gypsy.

Elfrida Le Huget of Boston, Princess Lara. Mrs. William H. Landon, Alpine climber. Cecilia Forsythe of Lexington, "Greek goddess."

Mrs. J. H. Emerton of Boston, Mohammedan mullah.

Roderick Loftus of Bass Rocks, Egyptian Prince.

Miss Hope Distler of Baltimore and Annisquam, Dutch boy, and Margaret Fitzhugh Browne of Boston and Annisquam, Dutch fisher girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Galt of Rockport, Manhattan cocktail.

Miss Winnifred Fell of New York, deck-hand from the "City of New York."

Mrs. Clifton Ward Harrington of Cambridge, "Byrd pierrette."

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Gruppe of New York City, Moslem Pasha and Lady of the Harem. blehead, "Toreador and Carmen."

Mr. and Mrs. Channing Williams of Marblehead, "Toreador and Carmen."

Mrs. William Hale of Gloucester, colonial lady.

Mrs. Sara Gannett Houghton, Persian lady. The judges were Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt, Miss Grace Hazen, P. E. Gillingham of the Forbes Lithograph Company and James R. Pringle.

Serving as active members of the executive committee were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Little of Boston and Eastern Point. William Wurts Harmar acted as master of ceremonies.

The Penguin dance, a dance duet by Miss Virginia Butler of Providence and Bass Rocks and Marshall Irvin of New York City, was an exhibition novelty which was encored.

Mrs. Sally Stanton Tilestone, East Gloucester, "Iceicle."

Ruth Stark, East Gloucester, "Pirate."

Mildred Turner Copperman, East Gloucester, "Peri."

Mrs. Everett Gardner, East Gloucester, "Lady in Ermine."

AT THE ROCKPORT SHORE

Social activities at The Edward are only one of the charming features of this delightful hotel. On Saturday evening the Clafin Quartette gave their second concert here this season and were received with the greatest enthusiasm. Sunday evening following a delightful concert was given by the Rockport Art Association, the visiting artists and members of the association being entertained by Mrs. Wilson of The Edward. Miss Porter's lovely voice was much appreciated, and Mr. Slominsky at the piano was as always the finished artist.

Miss Mildred Moffet of the Cape Ann Theatre.

EASTERN POINT

NIGHTS OF the olden time fared forth afield on jousts and tourneys as related in the colorful tales of Sir Walter. Nowadays, along the North Shore the gallants of the yachting field go to Marblehead to contest on the heaving (more or less) field of the cloth of blue. Sunday they returned and resumed their place in the scheme of things hereabouts.

Last week an item was turned in that Mr. Alexander Tener and his son, George E., had arrived at the Point in their yacht the Tyrone. The editor thinking he knew more about the matter than the writer, changed the name to the Tertia under the impression that the name was continuous as applied to the family yachts and their successors. But he was all at sea. The name is Tyrone as first written.

Mrs. Robert W. Mark of Cleveland was the week-end guest of Mrs. S. A. Raymond at the Ramparts.

The annual tennis tournament at Eastern Point on the courts at Blighty, the residence of Col. and Mrs. John Wing Prentice, began Monday. Among those from the Ramparts in the play were Molly and Edward T. Williams and Mr. S. E. Raymond.

Mrs. Henry L. Stoddard and her granddaughter, Miss Jean Reynolds, of Clapham Point, Conn., and New York, are guests of Mrs. George E. Tener at her Eastern Point summer home.

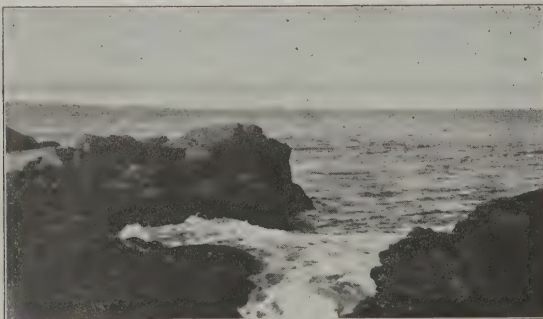

Miss Lucy Alice Jones of Evanston, Ill., and Miss Eloise Hanford of Syracuse, were the guests this week of Miss Elinor Jones at "Green Gables," Eastern Point.

Miss Barbara Holdsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Holdsworth of Brookline, is to be presented at a tea at the Country Club in November.

CAN YOU NAME IT?

A few years ago an observing letter carrier, Daniel V. Buckley, who formerly covered the Bass Rocks route, noticed a conformation in the rocks along the beach upland of Atlantic avenue, Bass Rocks, almost directly in front of immediately came to the same conclusion as Mr. Buckley. It is within 15 feet of the road.

THE ANNISQUAM REGION

T HE SQUAM representatives at the big Marblehead yachting meet returned Sunday and report a most enjoyable time and some hot racing. Labor Day will ring the bell on yachting here for the season although the club house will not be de-commissioned until the middle of September.

Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood will give a tea and exhibition of her camera subjects at her home, "Sheep Rocks," tomorrow, Sunday afternoon, entitled, "Mediterranean Shores." These exhibitions of Mrs. Wood in the past have proved most attractive both from the choice of subjects and the artistry evidenced in selection and presentation.

Mrs. Gilman Pritchard gave an informal musical and tea at her summer home, "The Tideways," Thursday, in honor of the Boston composer Charles Reppert and mother.

Mr. James N. White of Annisquam was the week-end guest of Mrs. Alpheus Hyatt at Seven Acres.

THE GEORGE HARVEY EXHIBIT

At Annisquam, the studio of George Wainwright Harvey is open to the public each afternoon with a remarkably beautiful collection of oils, water colors, pastels, and etchings including studies made in Holland, marines, and landscapes, and one senses the beauty that was in the soul of the artist, finding expression in the creation of his pictures.

Outstanding is Mr. Harvey's last painting, "A Rhapsody," and such it truly is. It portrays a wave, white-capped, ready to break, in the full glory of the setting sun. Purple shadows obscure the horizon, dusky clouds float overhead, but the sky has not yet relinquished the glowing colors of departing day. A shimmering path of waning sunlight steals across the waters, and a spirit of eternal peace pervades the whole.

"Sundown in Gloucester Harbor" depicts a boat beside a wharf at sunset, while a lone man plies his oars in a tiny skiff. Three dories hauled up on shore beside a fisherman's equipment of kegs and boxes is Mr. Harvey's interpretation of "Sunday Morning at Salt Island."

"The New Moon at Sundown" is an interesting and unique study of the dunes. Chebacco Lake in moonlight is another of Mr. Harvey's unusual compositions. Here he shows the moon arising from the darkened sky, while shades and shadows mingle with the shimmering waters of a cove.

The etchings of Mr. Harvey need no introduction or word of commendation. Exquisite studies of arresting subjects, they stand, with his paintings, a monument to the memory of a master.

AT GOOD HARBOR BEACH INN

Social activities at Good Harbor Beach Inn started Wednesday evening with a fresh boiled lobster party on the beach with all the fixins, under the direction of Emile St. Germain and Paul Branchard of Montreal, and Mr. George F. Dunn of Fitchburg.

Friday evening a card party was held in the social parlors. Auction bridge and whist were played, the person at each table making the highest score was awarded a prize. The winners were:

Miss Marcelle St. Germain, Montreal; Mrs. H. L. Bisselle, Chevy Chase, Md.; Mrs. H. Milhard, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss Marion Bridge, Fall River; Miss Anne Schoedinger, Columbus; Mr. W. A. Francis, Boston; Mr. George F. Dunn, Fitchburg; Master Arthur Johns, Medford.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

Explanations — Luncheon at Green Gables—The Shops—Good-Bye

"Well, isn't it about time we had that story of yours?" Chubby asked Phil when we were all comfortably settled in Larry's living-room. The living-room was new, incidentally, being in that wing of the house which had recently been added; built, of course, of L. B. Nauss lumber. Decorated by Steele and Abbott, furnished with smartly luxurious furniture from Patillo's, and lighted most effectively by means of stunning new fixtures from the Gloucester Electric Light Company, it was indeed a living-room to delight the most fastidious.

"How do you expect him to exert himself so soon after eating?" Jimmie wanted to know. "It isn't fair."

Dinner was just over. And such a dinner! Beginning with crab cocktail (the crab for which Judith confessed to us had been one of her morning's purchases at the First National Store), through the main course of roasted chicken (Shepherd's of course), to the creamy smoothness of delicious Chanticleer ice-cream, the meal had been a fine example of culinary perfection.

"Of course it's fair," put in Marcia at this point, "and Phil's just dying to tell you."

Phil grinned. "Of course I am," he admitted.

"Remember the day you all went to Magnolia?" he asked, first.

"Which day?" chorused the entire Clan.

"Well, it was at the very beginning of the summer," Phil replied. "Perhaps the second week you were here."

"The day we saw the trousseau things at the Grande Maison," offered Marcia.

Of course we remembered then. It was the day Marcia had acted so strangely.

"I passed you in my car that day," continued Phil. "You were parked on Lexington avenue, shopping, I suppose, and Marcia sitting in the car, saw me."

"And rushed into the Grande Maison where you all were as fast as I could," supplemented Marcia.

"I waited around until you all came out to the car again," went on Phil, ignoring the interruption, "but it was no use. Marcia wouldn't recognize me."

"Properly," sniffed Marcia.

Phil silenced her with a glance.

"After that I followed you everywhere, hoping to see Marcia alone, but with absolutely no success until that day when you played bridge at Vera's, and coming home by way of the shore drive, left Marcia in the car while the rest of you went down on the rocks to watch the surf.

"She wouldn't even speak to me at first, but finally I persuaded her to go for a walk with me, and to listen to my explanation of our little difficulty."

"Walking back to the car, I happened to tell her about my sister Judith who was going through the same sort of misery we'd just escaped, and she insisted on going to her. So instead of returning to your car, as we had intended, we went to mine and started for Maine. We thought we'd call you when we got there, but Judith's phone was out of order."

"Then after talking with Judith," added Marcia, "we decided not to call at all, but simply to surprise you."

"Which you certainly did," said Chubby grimly.

"But how about Larry?" asked Joan. "Where does he fit into this picture?"

"I'm coming to Larry," said Phil.

"You see, although Judith herself knew where Larry was, she hadn't said a thing about it to me. But when she and Marcia got together, and talked things over, they discovered that I'd been rubbing elbows with him, so to speak, for the past week and hadn't even seen him."

"When Marcia told her how really miserable Larry was over the whole affair, Judith relented and sent for him. Larry came, we decided it would be a lark to have a double wedding and surprise you all here at the shore, and so—here we are, and that's all there is to it."

That's all there was to it, to be sure, but it was vastly different from ideas

Leather Accessories to Leisure

OVINGTON'S little shop is replete with lovely leather, hand-tooled and inlaid in the Florentine manner. Here are picture frames, albums and guest books, book ends, desk sets and clocks in leather cases... a host of exquisite things to give away or keep yourself... useful, all of them and not by any means expensive.

the group had entertained at first. So they decided not to tell them how they had suspected Larry and Marcia to have eloped, or that they had wondered about Larry himself and questioned Judith. It all seemed so far away now, and in light of these new developments, it didn't matter anyway.

Besides, Phil and his sister Judith were such delightful additions to the clan, to say nothing of Larry and Marcia, the pleasure of whose company they had already enjoyed for a brief space.

"Well," said Chubby again, breaking the silence that followed Phil's last statements, "how about luncheon at Green Gables tomorrow to celebrate the return of these young truants?"

"Fine," called Jimmie from the opposite end of the room where he had gone to examine an antique spinet desk (which wasn't really an antique at all, but one of the Gloucester Lumber Store's reproductions which Larry had bought unfinished and had had finished to match the living-room furniture.) "That suits me perfectly. I've been dying to lunch there all summer."

"Why haven't you, then?" Peggy wanted to know. "The rest of us have been there often enough, goodness knows."

"The trouble is," Gay informed them all, "that Jimmie simply can't go by Towle's. No matter whether it's morning, afternoon or evening, he always feels the need of refreshment in that vicinity."

"Well," grinned Jimmie, "I can't think of a pleasanter place to wait for you women to do your shopping, can you?"

"Oh," said Peggy, suddenly, "have any of you been to L. E. Andrew's lately? I've found the best looking bridge prizes there this summer. They've all sorts of novelties in glassware and pottery—"

"To say nothing of hardware, paints and varnishes," put in Chubby. "I trade there almost entirely."

"Shan't we go shopping before lunch tomorrow?" asked Judith. "I didn't nearly finish all I have to do this morning."

"Of course," responded a feminine chorus, and then exchanging good-nights, the Clan separated until the next morning.

Shopping was postponed the next morning, however, until after luncheon. It proved to be a glorious day, and Chubby invited everybody to play tennis on his brand new courts just completed by Swinson Brothers.

Chubby was extremely proud of his new acquisitions. His cottage had been almost entirely remodeled, a Bulldog Pipeless Furnace installed for "those chilly mornings," and the installation of a new Frigidaire had only just been completed by L. E. Smith Company. A new Voss Washing Machine had been put in under the direction of Cottage Service, Inc., and a shiny new gas range testified to the popularity of the Glenwood, handled by the Gloucester Gas Light Company.

"Larry," said Marcia, examining minutely Chubby's refrigerating plant, "did you remember to order ice from the Cape Pond Ice Company yesterday?"

"Sure thing," was the answer, "it'll be here early this morning, you can be sure."

"Let me show you my newest possession," said Chubby proudly. "In the dining-room."

Reaching the dining-room door first, Anne turned back with a little squeal of delight.

"Oh, Chubby," she cried, "a Duncan Phyfe table from Poole's!"

"That's new," Chubby returned, "but not the surprise I meant. What do you think of this?"

He held in his hand the most exquisite service plate any of the Clan had ever seen. It had a cream background, with a leaf-like pattern on the border, and in the center a charming landscape, hand-painted. On further examination it was revealed that the plate was Copeland Spode, and bore the date 1800-

1820. There were a dozen of these plates, each with a different design in the center.

"Richard Briggs', I'll bet my hat," said Jimmie, almost immediately.

"Right the first time," was the answer, "but how did you guess?"

"Saw them there yesterday," responded Jimmie briefly. "Remember, Gay?"

"I simply begged him to buy them for me," wailed Gay, "and now Chubby's got them!"

"Never mind, darling," Jimmie soothed her, "I'll buy you a pound of Mary Ellen Golden Chocolates this very day."

"Time we were going, isn't it?" asked Joan, glancing at her watch. "There's just time to dress."

"Where's my sweater?" Marcia wanted to know from everybody. "It's a perfectly good one, brand new, from W. G. Brown's."

"What color is it?" asked Anne.

"Blue slip on," was the reply, "warm and wooly and the most comfortable thing in the world."

"They've some nice ones at Brown's, haven't they," said Peggy. "And this is the time of year to think about sweaters, too. When you can buy such practical ones, and withal so good looking as you can at Brown's, I say the sweater season's welcome."

"Aren't you girls ever going to stop talking shops?" asked Chubby, disgustedly. "I'd planned to take you all to the North Shore this afternoon, and buy you all a drink at Barker's, but if we can't get started—"

"How about a box of Cynthia Sweets from Wetherell's, Chubby," asked Judith, "if we hurry?"

"Anything, anything," groaned the long suffering fat boy, "only do hurry!"

The girls took pity on him and fled.

"I've got to stop at the Gloucester National Bank," announced Joan, as they drove toward Gloucester. "It's absolutely necessary."

"Like a weekly dinner party at Del Monte's," suggested Phil. "I've heard a great deal about that Casino in Magnolia and I'm anxious to try it."

"We'll make reservations for Friday night," Chubby promised him. "That's the big night there."

"I've an errand myself at Earl O. Phillips'," put in Jimmie, "so we'd better allow a half hour or so for shopping in Gloucester."

"I'll meet you all at Trowbridge's," Chubby told them, "will anybody join me in an ice-cream soda?"

Peggy would and did, the others departing on their various errands. Joan went to Bott's to look for some good looking leather traveling equipment; she knew she'd find it there. Judith and Marcia started off blithely to seek occasional chairs at the National House Furnishing Company, while Anne decided to take advantage of the time by replenishing her fall foot gear at Armstrong's. Phil thought he'd have a look at the souvenirs in codfish skin at Blanchard's.

Returning to the car at the end of a half hour, they found no Chubby, but before they had time to give much thought to his possible whereabouts, they saw him coming toward them from the North Shore Furniture Company, where it seemed he'd been buying reed porch furniture.

Luncheon at Green Gables was delightful. Excellent food, delightfully served seemed to be the keynote of the dining-room. Judith adored Magnolia,

COSTUME PARTY AT ROCKAWAY

Through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Publicover a most delightful costume party was given at the Rockaway Hotel, Saturday evening. The ballroom was converted into an immense Fisherman's Cabin, with seines, draped and festooned about the walls and ceiling, and lavishly sprinkled with large balloons of vivid color, and bright colored ornaments.

Mr. James Berrell of Washington acted as master of ceremonies, and kept every one happy, everything going smoothly without hitch or interruption. The grand march was led by Miss Gay Powers and Edgar Wright of New York. The procession was just one interesting and original costume after another and was a beautiful spectacle. After the grand march, a dance (the Paul Jones), was given, so that all might become imbued with the spirit of the occasion.

During the evening many delightful and original acts were presented by some of the guests including the Dance of the Cats and Mice in appropriate costume. After many interesting figures the Cats pounced on the Mice and carried them off to their lairs or what have you. The Misses Helen Leslie Powers, Ruth Umsted and Helene Markowitz were the Mice, the Cats being Messrs. Edgar B. Wright, Richard Funk and Wade Jolly.

Miss Thalia Bacon did an Egyptian dance of great beauty, a finished performance which was repeated as an encore. An amusing and laughable skit was given by Wade Jolly, a 10 cents a dance, and depicted a professional hostess at an inexpensive dance hall relating her troubles.

During intermission refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Publicover and favors were given out by Wade Jolly. The favors were donated by Miss Lois Poole of Chicago.

A special act was given by Virginia Butler, a Denishawn graduate, and Marshall Irwin, who is one of the well known professional dancers of the country. This dance was done with flowing rhythm and delightful grace.

After intermission there was general dancing with other acts sprinkled in. A Parisian Apache Dance was presented by Miss Powers and Mr.

Wright, executed with great feeling and understanding—the costumes typical of the Paris under world, the dance almost professional in its finished acting. Miss Ruth Umsted was a riot as "Lulu Belle," a high class Nudatta hostess at a night club. She had the audience in near hysterics from laughter during her entire sketch and as an encore she did another song which was a scream. Miss Nancy Keyes accompanied on the piano Mr. Jolly and Miss Umsted, and did this with perfect time and skill. Miss Kate Sweetser, as "Mystico" read the palms of all who wished. Miss Sweetser has studied this science for years but is not a professional. Miss Berney strolled among the guests and made delightful caricatures of different persons. An impromptu song and dance, "Moanin' Low," by Miss Umsted and Mr. Jolly, was received with gales of laughter. Prizes were given for the best costumes. The judges were Mr. Thomas Blow, Mr. Charles Riter, Miss Wilde and Miss Farrell.

Miss Lois Poole received first prize, Mrs. W. A. Publicover second. Miss Poole wore a Russian shaker and her costume was white and silver and trimmed in fur. Mrs. Publicover's costume was of the gay '60's and was of deep purple satin with gold and black trimming. Both ladies were charming and it was with difficulty a decision was reached.

Mr. James Berrell as General Gage took first prize of the men's costume, and Mr. Leonard Craske in a "Louis XVI," gave him a close run for the premier prize.

Music was furnished by Louis Veator's orchestra with Miss Anna L. Magee, pianist; Irving Spinney, drummer. Those deserving special mention for the success of the party were Mr. and Mrs. Publicover, Mrs. E. B. Wright, Miss Georgia Leuthstrom, Miss Wilde, Mrs. Sarah Davis, Miss Madeline Higgins, Miss Lois Poole, Mr. James Berrell and Mr. Leslie C. Powers.

MARBLEHEAD, AUGUST 15, CLEGHORN TROPHY

Eastern Point Triangles made a big bid for the Cleghorn trophy in the final race of three-cornered team match between Marblehead, Eastern Point and Annisquam. Hastings Gamage and his Injun, and J. Henry Sleeper's Black Bess scored one and two in light airs, and Sprite and Flirt were six and seven, but Marblehead had rolled up an overwhelming lead in the first two races. Final score: Marblehead, 99; Eastern Point, 87; Annisquam, 56.

EASTERN POINT, AUGUST 17

Eastern Point Yacht Club concluded the midsummer series with a home race from Marblehead last Sunday afternoon in a moderate southerly breeze and smooth sea.

Tid IV, sailed by Mrs. Groverman Ellis, was first to cross the finish in the Sonder division, with Skeezix second, almost a minute behind. Hastings Gamage's Injun led the Triangles, while Jack Raymond with Old Ironsides scored an eyelash win over Mary Bess in the Cape Cod Knockabouts. The summary:

COSTUME PARTY AT ROCKAWAY

WINGAERSHEEK

Miss Bertha Wilde of New York designed the costumes in the cats and mice skit.

Among those in costume were noted Mrs. Edward Dunn, pirate; Mrs. Carpenter, Norwegian girl; Mr. Carpenter, Captain Kidd; Miss Wilde, lady of the 14th century; Miss Dean, ghost; Miss Marwell, Chinese princess; Miss Deheusche, Arabian shepherdess; Jane Schmidt, Saturday night kid; William Mowll, mandarin; Mrs. Cooper, bargain sale; Miss Lustum, Miss Snyder and Jane Phillips, Chinese women; Wade Jolly, chorus girl; Mrs. Richards, colonial lady; James Berrell, General Gage; Mrs. Leslie Powers, Scotch lassie; Kate Sweetser, fortune teller; Mrs. Hinckley, Arabian woman; Mr. Hinckley, gingham girl; Ed. Wright, Parisian; Catherine Berrell, Tyrolean peasant; Eileen Berrall, gypsy; Mrs. Cody, dark night; Eugene Young, novelty; C. Snyder, novelty; Miss Bacon, Egyptian dancer; Mrs. Hornby and Theodora Farrell, Chinese; Mrs. Annie Hamilton, Red Riding-hood; Ruth Umsted, Lulu Belle; Mildred Merrill, Grecian; Misses Balman, harem girls; Miss Target, tomboy; Mrs. Jones, bareback rider; Mr. Canfield, Pierrot; Mr. Breckenridge, English coachman; Miss Hinckley, night; Miss Manchovitz, nurse; Miss Hardcastle, Chinese.

This little community has enjoyed its usual quiet and peaceful sojourn in this beautiful land of "rocks and roses." The marshes and upland hereabouts never were lovelier than this summer, while covered with a blaze of the pink beauty of the wild roses. And this has been quickly followed by the orange of the native tansy and golden rod. It is indeed a precious privilege for tired city people to have so lovely and so quiet a place in which to rest, and every year sees not only the former occupants of cottages promptly on hand, but many new comers.

Among the former sojourners in our midst are Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Estabrook of Winchester, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan H. Poor, 2nd, and family of Peabody; Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Mathers and family of Allston. Mr. Mathers is associated with the Storrs & Bement Company, paper merchants of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Taylor of Cambridge; Mr. Taylor is a former President of the Bond Astronomical Club of Harvard and a talented authority on the solar system and planets.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Black and sons of Boston; Mr. Black is Publicity Manager for Filene's.

Prof. and Mrs. Hudson Hoogland of Harvard; Mr. and Mrs. J. Verner Critchley and daughters, Rosamond and Lorna, of Worcester.

Mrs. Amanda S. Hawks is again in her charming little studio-on-the-beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Allerton Hawks and family are occupying the bungalow of their late father, Mr. James Dudley Hawks of Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brier and family of Detroit are occupying the Ferns.

Mr. Russell Hawks and bride are nicely located in The Lodge, which has been redecorated most attractively and the place looks very handsome this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Esslinger and family of Weston were visitors here for the month of July.

Mr. Robert W. Bailey, Jr., is occupying Mr. Sylvester's camp on Bray St.

Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacLachlan and family of Melrose are in the Rehnberg bungalow.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Hathaway and family of Melrose are in their new colonial cottage.

Miss Grace Keyes of Concord, Mass., is spending the summer in the cottage now hers but formerly belonging to Dr. Edward Emerson and which she has enlarged and beautified in many ways.

summer. They will come and spend, but perhaps not as freely.

A survey of the hotel situation for years reveals this condition: The most of the hotels have the nucleus of a steadily established clientele — who come year after year. These are well paid professional and business men and their families, clerks in the higher positions in Washington and other official centers who find living costs no higher here and conditions incomparably to be preferred. They will come as always. Looking back on the lean and panicky pre-war years of the past forty years, we find that the summer resort business has always held its own and by and large in the long run steadily gained. These figures may be illuminating. In 1892, summer realty was one-seventh the total valuation of Gloucester, today summer realty approximates one-third the valuation and there are fewer large hotels than in 1892. We believe that the trend will continue gradually upward to the benefit of all concerned but at no such hectic pace as in the past decade. Cape Ann's surpassing natural beauty will always be a magnet which will attract constantly increasing numbers to its shores.

In making your 1931 advertising budget include The Shore; the most widely read summer resort publication along the seacoast.

received much injury otherwise than spewing a little oakum, otherwise she could not have continued on her voyage two months. The Ford shortly after launching suffered a similar mishap and was raced.

Nevertheless, there seems to be a feeling that such a race will be sailed. Sir Thomas Lipton says he will remain to see it and bring along his Shamrock. The Legion boys from all over the country would flock here in battalions to see it staged as proposed the first week in October. It would be a fitting wind-up to the Massachusetts State Tercentenary observance. But as before stated it all depends on what Captain Angus thinks about it. Somehow, we have a hunch that the series will be arranged.

"CHILDREN OF FIESOLE"

Josef Presser, who has spent considerable time in Europe making many studies of various Latin Quarter Derelicts, as well as landscapes, portraits, drawings of horses, is having a one-man show of his work in the Gallery of the Guild, opposite the Rockport Post Office, throughout this month, from 2.00 to 6.00 P.M. daily and Sundays.

The work is distinctive for the choice of theme and interpretation of character. Mr. Presser sees form constantly as volume through expressive line. His studies made in the squalid Cafes in Paris show strong emotional quality; his work has been praised by museum officials and connoisseurs alike. He has the distinction of being one of the very few artists to be represented in the Royal Uffizi Museum in Florence, Italy. His work is also known in Paris.

MY LADY GOES SHOPPING

and looked forward during the luncheon to the shops.

Lexington avenue greeted them with its usual beautiful shop window displays. Manahan's especially was attractive with new fall fashions. The girls were charmed with the new velvet evening wraps for fall. They were of apple green, lacquer red, midnight blue, and the ever fashionable black. Trimmed for the most part with white lapin shawl collar and cuffs, they were beautifully cut, and the skirts and sleeves most effectively draped.

The Grande Maison greeted them with comfortables and blankets, most appropriate to the approaching autumn season. Comfortables were of satin or velvet, in all the pastel colors. Blankets were also in pastel colors, or in white with pastel trimmings, while the blanket covers, of crepe trimmed with rare old laces were a delight to the eye.

Couch covers made a most attractive showing, in silks and taffetas, with pillows and cushions to match.

At Ovington's this time were service plates, in a variety of styles. There were plates of Crown Darby, Copeland Spode, Royal Worcester, Royal Dolton, Cauldon, and Minton. One in particular, a Royal Worcester, was much admired by the group. In the center was a hand-painted basket of flowers on an ivory background; on a jade green border background, panels of the same design added to the attractiveness of the plate, while an interweaving design of raised paste gold made of it a thing of rare and exquisite beauty.

Anne insisted on stopping at Schmidt's where the silver display was much admired. Row upon row of silver trays banked the entire wall; all sizes, shapes and varieties were there, in old Sheffield plate and rare old silver.

Reluctantly they left Magnolia, for the last time this season, and each one glanced back regretfully as they turned the corner of Lexington avenue.

And how better could we leave them, than returning from this final shopping tour, looking expectantly ahead to another season and other shopping expeditions?
C. ANNE SHORE.

STILLINGTON HALL

Beginning Monday, August 25, and continuing for one week, Mr. Leslie Buswell will present the Stillington players in the English comedy "X Versus X." The play, written by Fred Wright, an Englishman, has been revised and rewritten by Mr. Buswell and Mr. Durward Grinstead, and will be presented for the first time at Stillington Hall.

"X Versus X" is a social play, dealing with the difficulties attendant upon the getting of a divorce. It is replete with dramatic situations and clever lines.

Miss Margaret Barker, who did such splendid work in "The Stars in His Heaven," will play the part of Lady Seaton; Elena Miramova, who will be remembered by Stillington enthusiasts as Minna in "Christopher Rand," will take the part of Henrietta. John Griggs will play the role of an older man in "X Versus X," that of Mr. Fullerton, a lawyer. Mr. Buswell himself will be Lord Hurley, and Doris Rich, Lady Hurley, and Marsh Irvin will play Bernie. Helena Stungo will be seen as Piccy, and Sanford Meisner has come from New York to play the French waiter.

The play is being presented under the direction of Vladimir Rosing, lights are in charge of Mr. Edwin Ross, and Mr. Stuart Chaney is in charge of the scenery.

THE LITTLE THEATRE

The third play, "Hall-Marked," also by Galsworthy, lightened the tension produced by "Sun." It was very amusing and the parts well taken. Actors in this play were Eleanor Herbert, Roswell Hawley, M. L. Stevens, Elizabeth Runk, Russell Bailey, John Mann, Inez Simons, and Norman Sturgis; to say nothing of Mac and Brindle, the dogs, who behaved like veterans of the theatre.

The scenery for the three plays was designed by Lester Lang and built with the assistance of Martin Fall, C. Norris Houghton and a capable stage crew.

NORTH SHORE ARTS ASSOCIATION

Under the auspices of the North Shore Arts Association, the Boston Sinfonietta made its initial appearance on the North Shore last Saturday evening at the Association Gallery. The Sinfonietta is composed of sixteen Symphony players, and is under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, assisted by Jesus Maria Sanroma, two names which need no introduction to North Shore music lovers.

A brilliant program was presented holding the audience spellbound from the beginning of the overture "Mignon" through the last strains of the "Rhapsody in Blue." At the end, the players were recalled again and again by the enthusiastic ovations of the listeners.

Mr. Sanroma's piano solo in the "Rhapsody in Blue" was a marvel of expression and dexterity. The difficult composition was rendered easily as well as powerfully, and was extremely effective. A violin solo by Mr. Elcus in Wagner's "Dreams" was a thing of exquisite beauty.

Particularly pleasing was the "Dance of the Hours," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," and Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile" merited much applause. As an encore to this, the orchestra played "Anitra's Dance" from Grieg's "Peer Gynt."

A Ballet Suite from Rameau-Mottl was splendidly done and very favorably received. First the stately Menuet, then the wistful, contemplative Musette, and last the brilliant, Oriental Tambourin captivated the audience with charm of composition and beauty of rendition.

The complete program is as follows:

Program

1. Overture "Mignon" Thomas
2. Ballet Suite
(1683-1764) Rameau-Mottl
  - a. Menuet
(From "Platee")
  - b. Musette
(From "Les Fetes D'Hebe")
  - c. Tambourin
(From "Les Fetes D'Hebe")
3. Andante Cantabile
Tschaikowsky
(From Fifth Symphony)
4. Jota
Granados
- Intermission
5. Petite Suite Debussy
  - a. En Bateau
  - b. Cortège
  - c. Ballet
6. Dreams Wagner
(Violin Solo) Mr. Elcus
7. Dance of the Hours Ponchielli
(From "La Gioconda")

8. Rhapsody in Blue Gershwin
(Piano Solo) Mr. Sanroma

The Sinfonietta concert is the last in a series of three concerts offered this season by the North Shore Arts Association. The series has embraced a variety of composition, and has been remarkably successful. Much credit is due the North Shore Arts Association for its efforts in securing such worthwhile summer entertainment.

On August 24, Jesus Maria Sanroma will give a recital in the Association Gallery. This solo appearance of the great pianist is anticipated with much pleasure by North Shore music enthusiasts.

9 to 6 Week Days and 3 to 6 Sundays

VENETIAN CARNIVAL AT ROCKPORT

Rockport's art colony will frolic at its annual costume ball on Monday, August 25th. Dancing is scheduled from 8.30 P.M. until 3 A.M. An event of magnitude on the entire North Shore is this Artists' Costume Ball at the tip of Cape Ann.

This year's frolic will be in the nature of a Venetian Carnival. The Town Hall will be transformed by members of the Rockport Art Association into a setting which will depict the watery heart of Venice. The grand canal, with its picturesque bridges and palaces, gondolas and carefree gondoliers, limpid water, subdued lights and all the gorgeous color of the jewel of Italy will form a background for four or five hundred couples in all manner of gay costume.

Music will be furnished by Jean Goldkatt's famous Casa Loma orchestra. This bids fair to be the most interesting event of its kind in the history of the Rockport Art Association.

AT THE NORTH SHORE THEATRE

behind heaven on earth for hell in the skies! Taking off into red dawn with a laugh, a song! Do they come back? Do they find a rendezvous with death or with love? Indeed it is a story bombing the heart of humanity.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the North Shore Theatre will show a great double feature bill.

On these days you will see Greta Garbo in her second all-talking feature that will have your hearts beating with delight. It is "Romance." A story of love like a perfect flower — passion crystal-clear. Moving through the story the figure of a divine woman—the woman made for love—Garbo. Her very name like the ringing of golden bells — glamorous, seductive—Garbo—her love won only to be denied—a story to break your heart. Garbo, the divine woman—the woman made for love—with her unearthly beauty — inflaming men of the earth. Now— Garbo's husky voice tells a story which is romance incarnate — crystal-clear passion—love like a perfect flower —won only to be denied—a story to break your heart — glamorous, alluring. Romance is yesterday's dream, tomorrow's hope. It is a joy that may never come—clouds and stars — sunshine and shadow. It is heartache and memory—it is one woman's love played by the woman made for love. Don't miss it!

On the same bill will be shown Jack Mulhall in a great comedy feature, "The Fall Guy."

NORTH SHORE, AUGUST 31, SEPTEMBER 1-2-3

The inimitable Marx Brothers, famous Broadway comedians, who last season scored an outstanding success on the talking screen in "The Cocoanuts," are now starred in the riotous musical comedy success, "Animal Crackers," coming to the North Shore Theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, August 31, and September 1, 2, 3. In "Animal Crackers," which is the screen adaptation of their own widely known stage success, the Marx Brothers outdo themselves, romping merrily and madly through one delicious and happy go lucky scene after the other, the principal players in one of the wildest and wooliest stories ever to come to the screen.

Groucho, the tall, black moustached, wild-eyed member of this wise-cracking quartet, is cast as a famous African big game hunter. Returning to the comparative calm and quiet of a Long Island country estate where he is feted and honored in a manner befitting a "big game" hunter, Groucho, in his own insane fashion, proceeds to tear up the estate to the evident unsuppressed joy of Harpo, Chico and Zeppo.

Supporting the Marx Brothers in their merry mad round of unrestrained fun, and lending eye filling beauty to each sequence in which she appears, is Lillian Roth, Paramount's clever singing ingenue who scored so favorably in "Honey" and "The Love Parade." In "Animal Crackers," Miss Roth sings one brand new song, a particularly catchy melody, entitled, "Why Am I So Romantic?" This song is also played on the harp by the inimitable Harpo.

"Animal Crackers" is a worthy successor to "The Cocoanuts." As a matter of fact, those who have seen this newest Marx Brothers picture are as one in the opinion that it is even gayer and wilder than anything these popular comedians have ever done on either stage or screen. As one wag recently remarked about "Animal Crackers," it's even "cocoanut-tier."

Victor Heernan, responsible for many of the high spots in "Paramount on Parade," directed "Animal Crackers," which was written by George Kaufman and Morris Ryskind, authors of many well known stage comedies.

CAPE ANN THEATRE

For the final production at the Cape Ann Theatre, Miss Grace Dothea Fisher will present Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." Miss Fisher has chosen this particular play to end the season of 1930 because of its charming simplicity and graceful gayety. In its presentation, there will be no heavy ponderous attempt to hammer out blank verse, but every effort will be made to produce the play in the spirit in which Shakespeare wrote it.

Miss Fisher has with her at the theatre an excellent Shakespearean cast. Mr. Lark Taylor, who will play Orsino, the Duke of Illyria, is a Shakespearean actor of note in the American theatre. Formerly with Sothern and Marlowe, he has since played nearly every Shakespearean character in all parts of the country. Mr. Taylor was Sothern's leading man for a season in London and he has been acclaimed by the critics as the greatest Shylock since Henry Irving.

Robert Bunce Williams, whose uncouth humor is always known to patrons of the Cape Ann Theatre, will play Sir Toby Belch, Mr. Winston Hibler will play Sir Andrew Aguecheek, and Mr. Robert Hamilton will sing with great charm the songs of the fool Feste. Mr. Tassin will strut the pompous Puritan drollery of Malvolio.

Olivia will be in the capable hands of Miss Marjorie Moffett, Miss Ellen Larned will play Maria, Olivia's buxom sewing woman, and Miss Fisher herself will play Viola.
